Football at Otterbein is an ancient and honored institution. Inspired by a visit of Robert E. Speer to the campus in 1889, the male students, among whom was Ernest S. Barnard who later became president of the American League Baseball Association, collected four dollars, purchased a football, and spent the autumn days "kicking the ball at one another." Since 1921, Otterbein has been a member of the Ohio Athletic Conference, third oldest organization of its kind in the nation.

Under Coach Agler and his able assistants, Otterbein's football teams have enjoyed winning seasons. This has been accomplished by a firm policy of keeping athletics relevant to Christian liberal arts education, as it always has been in the best days of Otterbein athletics. We hope always to be able to echo the sentiments expressed by a student editor in writing of the successful team of 1910—"We are proud of the victories but we are equally as proud of the fair play which was always in evidence."
