WORLDS AWAY

"Worlds Away" captures observational moments from an outsider in a foreign land. This collection includes images taken during a librarian-exchange program in Shanghai, China in 2013 and a study-abroad course in Malawi, Africa in 2016. All photos were taken on an iPhone 5s.

Each country is portrayed through the eyes of the photographer, a visitor and outsider. The goal of these images is to give others an understanding and feeling of a place they've never been and to inspire others to see the world through their own eyes.

Jessica Crossfield McIntosh is the Public Services librarian at Otterbein. She studied photojournalism at the University of Florida, earned her B.S. in 2005, and worked in newspapers for four years. Her special interest in international photography was sparked when she participated in Florida FlyIns at UF and documented a Mayan village in Belize. She has visited 5 continents and considers Iceland the most magical place on Earth. She can be contacted at jcrossfieldmcintosh@otterbein.edu.
