The Cover

The end of thirteen years in the often hot and prickly seat of a college president came to a fitting end as Dr. Lynn W. Turner, President of Otterbein College, addressed the members of the Class of 1971. As all Commencements are, Otterbein's 124th was both an end and a beginning for the graduates; on June 6 this was also true for the speaker.

In his address, Dr. Turner challenged the graduates to write by their deeds the Commencement message for the Class of 2001. TOWERS presumes to offer much the same challenge to Dr. Turner.

Let your retirement, Dr. Turner, be neither sterile nor cluttered with the trash of needless frustrations and might-have-beens. Let it be a retirement TO more than a retirement FROM. And so use your days and years that 2001 A.D. will be for you, too, part of a rich and meaningful period of life. God Bless.

Commencement

Dr. Turner Gives Options For Commencement, 2001 A.D.

"You have the privilege of seeing the dawn of the Twenty-First Century," Dr. Lynn W. Turner told the 1971 Otterbein College graduating class on Sunday, June 6.

In a speech considerably shortened from its original form "because Bishop Ensley said this morning at Baccalaureate much of what I had planned to say this afternoon," Dr. Turner challenged the 306 graduates to write the Commencement condition for their own sons and daughters in the future class of 2001.

Dr. Turner described two projected Commencements for the coming generation—one totally anarchial, the other sterile and state-controlled. In the first, there was no Otterbein College. What was left had been renamed "Freedom Hall," after student vote in 1986 had eliminated the name "Otterbein" as too much of a reminder of the institutional church. Religious cell groups and drug-induced sensitivity sessions replaced education, home economics, business administration, history and government, religion and philosophy. A shoddy campus, chaos and a drug-created limbo were foreseen.

"Let me explain," Dr. Turner said, "this is not my prediction of what things will be like, but a picture of the way they will be if certain tendencies in our society today are allowed to develop unchecked. It would be the ultimate realization of the Consciousness III level in Green America."

In the president's second option for Commencement 2001, the campus had become "Campus 0070" with everything functional, uniform, clean —and state-controlled. Careers were chosen by computer at age 10 and the Viet Nam War had now killed a million young Americans.

"Mankind has always been fascinated by the future," Dr. Turner observed, "but he's never been very practical about it. For the most part, we allow things to change us, rather than exert ourselves to control things and direct change. We are great at inventing new machines, but very poor at foreseeing what the machines are going to do to us.

"I am too much of an optimist to be a successful Jeremiah, and too much of a realist to believe in Utopias. I have enough faith in you to be confident that neither of my dire alternatives for 2001 A.D. will come to pass, but not quite enough assurance to be certain about what kind of future you will create.

"You will write the Commencement address of 2001 A.D., not in perishable words, but in irrevocable action."

Three Honorary Degrees Awarded

Otterbein College awarded three honorary degrees at its 124th commencement exercises Sunday, June 6. Dr. Hubert M. James, Professor of Physics at Purdue University was awarded a Doctor of Science degree. He holds degrees from Randolph-Macon College and Harvard University, where he was a Research Fellow for two years. Dr. James was awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship in 1939 and from 1941 through 1946 was associated with the M.I.T. Radiation Laboratory. He is a Fellow of the American Physical Society, a member of numerous professional societies and the co-author of "Theory of Servomechanisms." He has also authored more than 60 papers in various fields of physics.

Receiving an honorary Doctor of Laws was Dr. James V. Miller, President of Pacific University, Forest Grove, Oregon. From 1964-1970 Dr. Miller was Vice President of Academic Affairs at Otterbein. Previous to that he was chairman of philosophy and religion at Bates College in Lewiston, Maine. Dr. Miller holds degrees from Indiana Central College and Boston College where he earned a Ph.D. in 1955. While at Otterbein he was instrumental in establishing the College's 3/3 academic calendar and curriculum and the new governance program.

An honorary Doctor of Science was awarded to Dr. J. Barkley Rosser, Director of the Mathematics Research Center, University of Wisconsin. Dr. Rosser holds degrees from the University of Florida and Harvard University and has taught at UCLA and Cornell, as well as the University of Wisconsin, where he is now a Professor of Mathematics. He began working with the government in missile and rocketry fields in 1939.

Dr. Rosser was awarded a Certificate of Commendation from the Secretary of the Navy in 1960 for his help in developing the Polaris missile and a Presidential Certificate of Merit in 1948 for his WW II work in weaponry. He has also been involved in the U. S. space program since 1955 and has authored or co-authored six books in the fields of mathematics, logic and computers.

Commencements are detailed in the size of the graduating classes, the speakers' words of advice, and the recognition given to persons of importance. But to the individual graduate, Commencement is a personal thing compounded of perspiration trickling under the traditional academic robe, the pride of parents and friends, the sometimes nervous uncertainty of future employment.

Commencement is being the third generation to graduate from the same school, getting married a week early in order to graduate with a new name, getting a degree after years of part-time study or after returning to school when the family is grown. Commencement can be the merest beginning to a succession of degrees and academic work, or a Whew!—I-made-it—thank-heavens-I'm-done experience.

To many who are testing the old orders in terms of relevance and a less structured life style, Commencement can be a classic of ritual tedium. To others who are dizzied by the cyclonic winds of change, Commencement can be a reassuring landmark of stability.

Whatever the individual's personal feeling, Commencement remains a pencil mark on the wall of our years, marking a point of growth somewhere between learning to read and learning to be wise.

Members of the Class of '66 catch up on the news of the past five years.

Honorary Alumnus Awards were received by Tom and Donna Kerr, Myrtle Grimes (Mrs. Mack) and Mildred and Keith Crane.

Good Turn-Out For Alumni Luncheon

In his remarks to the nearly 500 alumni and friends gathered in the Campus Center Dining Room for the Alumni Day Luncheon, out-going Otterbein President Lynn W. Turner recalled, "On our first Alumni Day together in old Barlow Hall back in 1958, you were all sweltering and sitting on each other's laps. Now you're in a much larger dining hall, with air conditioning to keep you from sweltering, but you're still sitting on each other's laps!"

The attendance record for a reunion class was set by the Class of 1961, dubbed "the swingers" by incoming Alumni President Alan E. Norris. Nearly 60 persons, including spouses, had been counted the night before at the luau for the '61 Class. The classes of 1951, 1926 and 1921 also showed a strong attendance with 29, 26, and 24 members present, respectively.

While the largest number of alumni returned from relatively close areas, at least four came long distances. Earl Ford, '22, and Joseph Henry, '26, came across country from California, while Milton Czatt, '16, and Carroll Widdoes, '26, came north from Florida.

Highlight of the afternoon for the Golden Anniversary class was the presentation of Honor Year certificates, delivered with the inimitable style and wit of their own class member, J. Ruskin Howe.

Following the luncheon was an outdoor concert by the Symphony of Winds (concert band). The events of the day were concluded with the Centurion Club dinner.

Alumni Awards Given; New Officers Announced

Dr. Verda Evans, '28, Cleveland, was presented the Distinguished Alumnus Award by the Otterbein Alumni Association at Alumni Day festivities on campus June 5. The award was presented by classmate and fellow Otterbein trustee, Miss Mary B. Thomas.

Dr. Evans is a member of the college Board of Trustees and presently serves in the Cleveland Public Schools as Director of the English-Language Arts program.

An additional Distinguished Alumnus Award was presented by Alumni President Robert Corbin to President and Mrs. Lynn W. Turner. The Turners are Honorary Alumni, Class of 1958.

Honorary Alumnus Awards were presented to Keith and Mildred Crane, and Mrytle Grimes. Keith Crane has been at the college since 1947 in the Chemistry Department while his wife, Mildred, has been head nurse in the campus Health Center for the same period.

Myrtle Grimes, Columbus, is the widow of Alumni Association past president, Mack A. Grimes. Their two daughters are graduates of Otterbein.

Otterbein President-Elect Thomas J. Kerr IV and his wife Donna, were also presented Honorary Alumni status.

Distinguished Alumnus Awards were given to Vera and Lynn Turner, H'58, and to Verda Evans, '28.

President-Elect Thomas J. Kerr talks with Charles Nunemaker, '26.

Otterbein Alumni Association officers for the 1971-72 term were also announced. They are: Alan Norris, '57, Westerville, president; Rita Gorsuch, '61, Westerville, vice-president; Martha Troop Miles, '49, Westerville, secretary. Three council-at-large seats went to William A. Barr, '46, Dr. William N. Freeman, '57, and Sarah Rose Skaates, '56, all of Westerville.

Meet

Your Alumni President

Alan E. Norris

The 1971-72 President of the Otterbein Alumni Association is a third generation alumnus who has lived all of his life within sound of the college bell. His parents, wife, a brother, and a sister-in-law are all graduates of Otterbein as well as assorted cousins and more distant relatives.

And yet, as he faces the challenge of leading the organization, Alan E. Norris, '57, finds himself less concerned with the strictly traditional aspects of alumnihood which might be expected from his own history, as with the forward-looking viewpoint of the newest alumni.

"I am excited about the possibilities inherent in the Young Alumni Advisory Committee which got started under Bob Corbin's leadership this past year," Mr. Norris told TOWERS. "I think it is important for the Alumni Association to know the needs and desires of all members, and while the communication has been pretty good with those of us who have been out of school longer than ten or fifteen years, it has not been so well established with the most recent graduates."

Mr. Norris is well experienced in developing and maintaining a feel for the various segments of a constituency. In 1970 he was re-elected State Representative from the 59th House District of Ohio. During his third term of office he is serving as chairman of the Joint Committee on Domestic Relations Law Reform and of the Criminal Law Section of the House Judiciary Committee. He is Vice Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, a member of the State Government Committee and Criminal Code Revision Committee.

He is the 1967 recipient of the Westerville Jaycees "Outstanding Young Man Award," an honorary Kentucky Colonel, and the author of a variety of articles on legal topics. He is listed in Who's Who in American Politics.

A practicing attorney in Westerville with fellow alumni Roy Metz and Francis "Red" Bailey, both '43, Mr. Norris has been active in the local Kiwanis Club of which he is a charter member, Masonic bodies and Church of the Master United Methodist Church. A former member of the Otterbein Alumni Council before being elected Alumni Association Vice-President in 1969, he has also maintained an active interest in the Pi Kappa Phi Alumni Association of which he is a past president.

Mr. Norris is married to the former Nancy Myers, '61, who is the 1971-72 president of the Westerville Otterbein Women's Club and is Publicity Director for the Otterbein Theater. The Norrises have two children; Tom, 7, and Tracy, 4. Their home at 58 W. College Ave. provided rooms for many former Otterbein students during the years Alan's grandmother, Maude W. Norris (Mrs. E. J.), M'17, lived there as a widow.

To Alumni President Norris, TOWERS offers best wishes for a successful term.

New Trustees Elected From Faculty, Students

Dr. Elizabeth O'Bear, Professor of German and Chairman of the Department of Foreign Languages, and Miss Christine Lee Chatlain, '72, were elected this spring to three-year terms as faculty and student members, respectively, of the Otterbein College Board of Trustees.

Dr. O'Bear has been at Otterbein since 1960. She holds two degrees from Oberlin College and a Ph.D. from the Ohio State University.

Miss Chatlain was crowned May Queen just one month prior to her election as Student Trustee. She is a member of Sigma Alpha Tau sorority, Cap and Dagger, the Otterbein speech team, the AFROTC Angel Flight, and has been active in the Campus Crusade for Christ. The speech and theater major was chosen departmental representative to the College Senate.

Also named a trustee at faculty elections in April was Dr. Marilyn Day, Asst. Professor and Chairman of the Women's Phys. Ed. Department. Dr. Day filled the unexpired term through June 30 of Dr. Roy Turley who resigned the post to become Vice President of Academic Affairs.

Alumni Association Taps Feelings Of Young Alumni

How do the younger members of the Otterbein Alumni Association feel about the association itself, their role in it, and the communications media from the college to alumni?

This is a question which has been asked by succeeding Alumni Presidents for the past few years. The percentage of alumni who have been out of college for five years or less is a growingly impressive one, and some figures indicate that those who have graduated within the past two decades comprise a heavy majority of the total membership.

"What this means for people in our position," Alumni Past President Robert Corbin told Alumni Council members last year, "is that we have to find out what being an alumnus of Otterbein means to the graduates of the sixties and seventies, find out what needs and interests they may have which the Alumni Association can meet, and then plan accordingly."

In addition to random and informal samplings of opinion from alumni of ten years or less, Mr. Corbin authorized the formation of an informal Young Alumni Advisory Committee to do additional thinking on the subject, with recommendations to be presented to the Alumni Council at their October 2 meeting on campus.

Comments and opinions collected from individuals and from the initial meeting of the Young Alumni Advisory Committee indicate a range of interest and degree of desired involvement.

At one end of a scale would be the encouragement to have separate and special groups and/or programs exclusively for the most recent graduates, while at the other end would be concern for a splintered association, with the same problems as at present merely postponed another five years.

One '64 graduate summed up her reaction to alumni groups of any kind with, "Who needs them? We (she and her husband, '63) will always support Otterbein, be interested in what's happening on campus and to other alumni but to form a group just so you can have a meeting every now and then is a waste of time."

Meetings of small groups of recent grads, students, and faculty in the form of receptions, dinners and other get-togethers, perhaps before and/or after athletic, theatre of cultural events on campus, however, have been under consideration by the Y.A.A.C.

An alumnus of '67 wrote that the kind of reporting from campus which held the greatest interest for him was that which reflected the work of faculty members to make their work "relevant" and alive for students, as well as to ways the faculty members themselves chose to grow professionally and personally.

The possibility of a four page tabloid size newspaper to be produced under the supervision of young alumni is being weighed by the Y.A.A.C. The paper would include contributions from young alums, faculty and students, with news oriented toward campus affairs and items of current interest, as opposed to the alumni news orientation of TOWERS.

Another '64 grad commented on the present campus-alumni communication media, "I suppose the kinds of happenings that make TOWERS worthwhile are the constructive, challenging, growing, changing situations it reports, both on campus and with the alumni. Somehow it always gives me a lift to know there are exciting things going on, even if we don't happen to be in the center of them!"

Also in recent years the thinking of those involved in alumni work has come back more and more often to the concept of continuing education for alumni. A Continuing Education Workshop sponsored by the Alumni Association in October, 1968, drew a modest attendance but much enthusiasm from those present.

"This is the best thing Otterbein has done in years," was the reaction of a '65 member. The concept of continuing education has been thought about from a variety of angles—from adding a new dimension to TOWERS to sponsoring a week or week-end brush-up-on-your-education session on campus for alumni and families.

1971 Alumni President Alan Norris and the sub-committee of the Y.A.A.C. will continue to research opinions and reflect on their application during the summer.

"Our work will have the best possible results, and those best serving all alumni, only if we are informed about alumni thinking," Mr. Norris has said. "Not only do we welcome and invite comments from all sides, we'll be tickled to death to get them. And now is the time to get opinions stated, not after decisions have been made and action taken."

Alumni—recent or not-so-recent—with opinions and suggestions about any phase of the Alumni Association operation may write Mr. Norris either in care of the Alumni Office, or at his home, 58 W. College Ave., Westerville, Ohio 43081.

Alumni Council Hears Progress Reports May 15

The Alumni Council met May 15 with thirty-three in attendance to hear reports on the activities of the campus, the Board of Trustees, and the Alumni Association.

Among those items noted and discussed were:

1) The tour of alumni groups made by Dr. and Mrs. Turner;

2) The 125th Anniversary celebration and campaign;

3) The Senior Luau sponsored by the Alumni Association and held successfully in February;

4) The Board of Trustee's report of no deficit spending for the past fifteen months, and of a contract with a food catering service to handle college food preparation next year;

5) Announcement of October 28, 1971, as Presidents' Day, at which time President-Elect Thomas J. Kerr will be installed and the 125th Anniversary officially begun;

6) Reports by alumni representatives to the Personnel Committee, the Curriculum Committee and the Administrative Council of the college;

7) Reports from local alumni groups;

8) Findings of the sub-committee of an informal Young Alumni Committee and subsequent formation of a "Young Alumni Advisory Committee."

In other action, the revision of the constitution articles dealing with alumni members of the Board of Trustees were approved in order to bring the constitution in line with the present formation of the Board.

Jim and Meg Million, 'x66 and 'x70, and their "Million Dollar Baby," Michael Emerson, show off one of the "I'm a little Cardinal from Otterbein" bibs sent by the Alumni Office to proud parents of future Otterbein students.

Cardinal Bibs Welcome Otterbein Babies

New arrivals to Otterbein families are now being welcomed with a very practical reminder of their parents' college affiliation. Since last April, each baby whose birth and/or adoption has been reported to the Alumni Office has been sent an official Otterbein College bib.

As parents who have used the bibs so far have found out, the terry cloth accessory not only does a good job of soaking up spills and dribbles, but does a subtle bit of advertising along the way.

During the first year of Operation Bibs, from April 4, 1970, to April 19 of this year, the baby gifts were sent to 54 boys and 55 girls. The 109 bibs travelled to homes as close as Westerville and as far as West Germany and England. The bulk of them, 72, went to Ohio babies, with Michigan and Pennsylvania holding second place with four each. Two bibs apiece were sent to Colorado, Florida, Nebraska, New York, Texas and Wisconsin. One bib went to each of fourteen other states, including Alaska and Hawaii.

Parents who would like extra bibs without adding to their existing families, or alumni who would like to use them for gifts, may find additional Otterbein bibs stocked by the college Bookstore.

English Prof. is Editor Of "Little" Magazine

Dr. William T. Hamilton, Chairman of the Department of English, now carries the additional title of Fiction Editor for his off-campus work with the "little" magazine SNOWY EGRET.

According to Dr. Hamilton, SNOWY EGRET is devoted to the "literary aspects of natural history," and has been published for a number of years by Humphrey Olsen of Williamsburg, Ky.

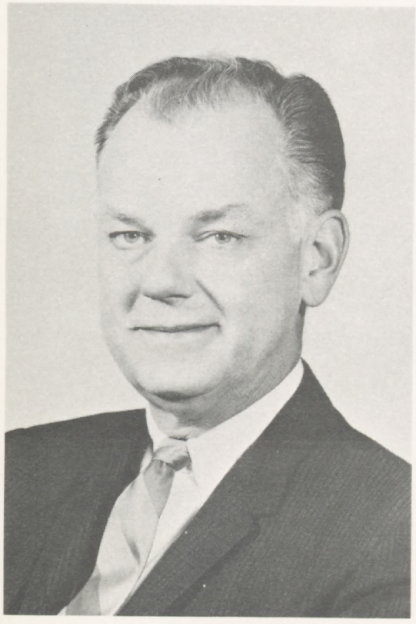
Dr. Hamilton's interest in the magazine began when he got in touch with Mr. Olsen concerning Dr. Hamilton's doctoral dissertation at the University of Minnesota, a selected edition of the work of Alexander Wilson (1766-1813), an early American poet and naturalist. Mr. Olsen has studied Wilson extensively, and their mutual interests led him to invite Dr. Hamilton to assume the fiction editorship of the magazine.

The Otterbein professor told TOWERS, "Since early adolescence I have had a strong amateur interest in natural history, and Wilson (and SNOWY EGRET) have permitted me to combine this interest with my professional interests in literature."

As editor, Dr. Hamilton is interested in identifying and publishing good modern fiction which involves the broad theme of man in nature. "Since at least the time of James Fenimore Cooper," he notes, "this has been a major concern of American literature, and as the wilderness becomes sorely diminished in our time, there seems to be a new interest in the subject."

Dr. Hamilton's editorial office is at his home, 204 W. Main St., Westerville, Ohio.

Second Begley Award Given Roy Bowen



Dr. Roy H. Bowen

Dr. Roy H. Bowen, '33, is the second recipient of the annually awarded Ed Begley Memorial Drama Award.

Founded by the Los Angeles Otterbein Alumni Club with the advice and consent of the Theater Department, the Begley Award is given to an Otterbein graduate who has distinguished himself in theater. The first recipient of the award was Dr. Jack Wright, currently Assistant Director of Theatre at the University of Texas, who had appeared with the late actor in his guest star appearance in the Otterbein production of "J. B."

Dr. Bowen is a highly logical choice for the 1971 Begley Award since, in addition to his work as Professor of Speech and Director of Theater at Ohio State University, he will guest direct the Fall Homecoming production of the Otterbein Theatre.

An Associate Professor on a full-time basis at Ohio State since 1958, Dr. Bowen was named Director of Theatre in 1960. Prior to his full-time work at O. S. U., Dr. Bowen had served as a graduate assistant and assistant instructor (1946-49) and as a visiting assistant professor (1948-58) while simultaneously serving as managing director of the Columbus Players Club.

Dr. Bowen is a member of the National Theatre Conference, the American Educational Theatre Association and the Ohio Community Theatre Association, of which he was a founder and past president. He has done much of the organizational work for the American Playwrights Theatre and is currently its secretary-treasurer. Based at Ohio State, the American Playwrights Theatre was formed in December, 1963, to bring first-run plays to non-commercial stages throughout the United States.

He has directed over 100 plays in Columbus, many of them using casts drawn both from the university and the community. He has written several articles which have appeared in professional journals and is currently working on a book on theater appreciation.

Jack White Is Administrator Of Florida Nursing Home

Walter (Jack) N. White, x'55, is Administrator of the Nursing Pavilion of Shell Point Village in Fort Myers, Fla. The 180-bed nursing home is part of a Christian retirement village owned and operated by The Christian and Missionary Alliance Church.

After leaving Otterbein, Mr. White transferred to the University of Virginia where he received his BA with a major in psychology. Masters degree work in hospital administration was completed at the Medical College of Virginia.

Mr. White's professional life has all been in Virginia, up to his present position, where he served as administrator of several community hospitals and one hospital specializing in the care of crippled children.

Otterbein Graduates Signed For W.S.U.'s Acting Program

Two recent Otterbein College graduates have been accepted for Wayne State University's Program in Acting, one of the most prestigious in the country. Michael Hartman, '70, and Dennis Romer, '71, will begin the two year course leading to a Master of Arts degree in Theatre this September.

The Wayne State graduate program is professionally oriented and combines course work with participation in a "rolling" repertory theatre specializing in classical productions. Six to seven productions are mounted annually and afford each Acting Program participant one-hundred-fifty to one-hundred-sixty stage appearances in nine months time, providing an unparalleled arena for students like Mr. Hartman and Mr. Romer who hope for a career in professional theatre, but also have the option of returning to educational theatre or teaching once they complete their studies.

Mr. Hartman is originally from Dayton, while Mr. Romer came to Otterbein from Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Both credit the Otterbein College Theatre Department under the direction of Dr. Charles Dodrill with their interest in professional theatre and the excellence of undergraduate training and experience that secured them their positions at Wayne State next fall.

During the summer Mr. Romer is participating in his third season with the Otterbein Summer Theatre, and Mr. Hartman has been acting with the Weathervane Playhouse in Newark.

Turner Appreciation Dinner

A check for $5000 is presented to Dr. Lynn W. Turner on behalf of alumni and friends by J. Ralph Riley, Chairman of the Presidential Recognition Committee.

On the evening of May 16, Dr. Lynn W. and Vera Turner were paid tribute by the college community through spoken word, song, film, and tangible gifts.

During the administration of its seventeenth president, Otterbein College has accomplished a remarkable growth both of physical facilities and in academics. "The Turner Years," 1958-71, have seen five men's housing units built and two women's dormitories. Such major campus buildings as the Campus Center, Science Center, Hirsch Health Center and Library have been constructed during this time, as well as two Maintenance Building additions, and the present remodeling of the Central Cooling and Heating Plant.

The Three-three Plan with its required sabbatical leave every seventh term has won respect in the academic world as the Governance Plan is doing in other areas.

At the Appreciation Dinner honoring the Turners, these facts were allowed to speak for themselves as guests watched the audio-visual reminiscences prepared by Ross Fleming, Director of the Learning Resource Center.

Brief tributes in Pres. Turner's behalf were offered by representatives of the various constituencies of the college. Perhaps W. Edward Vaughn, College Senator and Student Trustee, best summed up the speakers' feelings when he referred to King Arthur's speech in "Camelot" comparing mankind to the many drops of water which form a stream. "Those drops . . . some do sparkle. They do sparkle," he quoted, concluding with the wish that the sparkle of the Turners continue into the retirement years.

Closing the evening's program was J. Ralph Riley, Chairman of the Recognition Committee and member of the Board of Trustees. Mr. Riley presented the Turners with personal mementos, then handed over a check for $5000, which had been contributed by alumni and friends. In addition, money has been donated to the new library in the Turners' name and a plaque so stating will be placed in the building.

Vocal selections by the A Cappella Choir under the direction of Roger McMurrin concluded the evening.

Letter Thanks, Tells Future Plans

The following is an open letter from Dr. Turner to the college community as a whole. It is included in its entirety in TOWERS at his request.

Mrs. Turner and I have searched our combined vocabularies to find the proper words to express our feelings about the reception and dinner held in our honor Sunday, May 16, but we find them inadequate. I suppose that as long as we are human we yearn to be appreciated, even though we realize in our own judgments that we fall far short of what we ought to be. So for all the kind words and generous gifts and even for the exaggerated tributes —we are grateful.

One of the several personal gifts received by Pres. and Mrs. Turner at the May 16 dinner in their honor was this caricature by Ohio artist Leland S. McClelland.

Mrs. Turner and I have been overwhelmed by the generosity of our friends. We have received gifts of money, gifts of travel, gifts of books, gifts of flowers, gifts of food, gifts of time and talent, gifts of love and appreciation. We have been showered with gifts. We have been blessed with gifts. We have been humbled by gifts. We have been embarrassed by gifts. We have been grateful for gifts. We have been thankful for gifts. We have been moved by gifts. We have been touched by gifts. We have been encouraged by gifts. We have been inspired by gifts. We have been challenged by gifts. We have been strengthened by gifts. We have been enriched by gifts. We have been made humble by gifts. We have been made grateful by gifts. We have been made thankful by gifts. We have been made glad by gifts. We have been made rich by gifts. We have been made poor by gifts. We have been made richer by gifts. We have been made poorer by gifts. We have been made richer and poorer by gifts. We have been made richer in spirit and poorer in material things by gifts. We have been made richer in material things and poorer in spirit by gifts. We have been made richer in spirit and richer in material things by gifts. We have been made poorer in spirit and poorer in material things by gifts. We have been made richer and poorer by gifts. We have been made richer and poorer by gifts. We have been made richer and poorer

Otterbein Retirees Saluted

James K. Ray

Franklin M. Young

Nell H. Pagean

Three members of the Otterbein College faculty retired at the end of the academic year in June. They are: Nell Pagean, Professor of Education; James K. Ray, Associate Professor of English; Franklin M. Young, Assistant Professor of Education.

Dr. Pagean's retirement comes after twenty-three years in the Otterbein classroom. Her teaching experience at the Westerville college, however, represents exactly half her total teaching career which includes service in elementary and secondary classrooms, in guidance work, and in five institutions of higher education.

Dr. Pagean holds membership in at least half a dozen professional organizations, has served as Chapter and State Chairman of Professional Affairs for Delta Kappa Gamma, and is listed in "Who's Who in American Education," Spring-1961.

Professor Ray shares the longevity record of this year's faculty retirees, having come to the Otterbein campus in 1948. Before coming to Otterbein, Prof. Ray had taught in both the Portsmouth and Lucasville, Ohio, high schools, at Clemson College and the Portsmouth Branch of Ohio University.

A member of the National Council of Teachers of English and of the College English Association of Ohio, Prof. Ray is the author of "Proverbs and Proverbial Allusions in the Works of Christopher Marlowe on Planting Flowers and Spading" in the OTTERBEIN MISCELLANY for May, 1970, and of WILLIAM J. FLAGG: HIS LIFE AND WORKS, in progress.

He has also been a popular speaker through the Public Relations Office with his witty approach to "A Conducted Tour Through Thurber Land," and "The King's English Ain't What It Used To Be."

For Franklin M. Young, '26, this year's retirement is actually his second. Eight years ago he retired from a public school career spanning thirty-seven years, all but three of which were spent in the schools of Miamisburg, Ohio. In 1963 he came back to his alma mater to assume a position within the Education Department.

Prof. Young holds membership in the American Association of School Administrators, Association for Student Teaching, National Education Association, and Ohio Education Association. He is past president of the Western Ohio Superintendents' and Principals' Round Table. He was a member of the Ohio High School Athletic Association (SW District) for eleven years, ten of which he was secretary-treasurer. He is a past president and member of the State Board of Control for the same organization.

Prof. Young is married and the father of Beverly Anne Young Long (Mrs. James), '54, and the grandfather of three.

In other retirements from the campus, nearly one hundred years of combined service are represented by five employees of the college.

Albert "Tink" Sanders began work in 1947 as Supt. of Maintenance and retires with the title of Head Electrician. "Tink" was made an Honorary Alumnus in 1970 by the Otterbein College Alumni Association.

Another employee fondly remembered by former students is Mrs. Chloie Ballard of the cooking staff. Mrs. Ballard retires after twenty-two years in the Otterbein kitchens.

Two other food service employees are Mrs. Lydia Mikesell and Mrs. Marybelle Schneider, with eighteen and fifteen years experience at Otterbein, respectively. Concluding the list of retirees is George Wise, Head Fireman at the Heating Plant since he came to Otterbein in 1959.

Presidents' Day - - -

Installation For The Future;

Recognition Of The Past

Thursday, October 28, 1971, has been declared Presidents' Day at Otterbein College. The special event will have a three-fold purpose: to officially install Thomas Jefferson Kerr IV as eighteenth president of Otterbein College, to recognize the contributions of growth and leadership of Otterbein's presidents from the first, Rev. William Davis, to the present, and to help launch the celebration of the 125th Anniversary Year.

The installation of Dr. Kerr as president marks a new approach to the transfer of presidential leadership from one person to another. The lavish pomp and ceremony of collegiate inaugurals in the past is out of keeping with the current life style which values inner truth more than external display. In planning the events of Presidents' Day, committee members were ever mindful of Dr. Kerr's request for simplicity as well as for his historian's respect for Otterbein's past.

Featured speaker during the installation program will be Dr. Emerson C. Shuck, '38, President of Eastern Washington State College at Cheney, Washington, and formerly Vice President for Academic Affairs at Ohio Wesleyan University.

Dr. Shuck is a prolific writer and speaker on educational subjects with a growing number of regional and national associations on his list of audiences. He has nearly fifty published articles and speeches to his credit.

In service to Otterbein College, Dr. Shuck can count more than a decade as an alumni member of the Board of Trustees where he served many years on the Committee on Education and Administration. In this capacity, he worked hard with the faculty and administration for earlier curriculum changes and in the development of the 3/3 Plan.

In addition to the presidency of Eastern Washington State, one of five major state institutions of higher education in the state, Dr. Shuck is a member of more than a half dozen professional associations, and holds the honorary Litt. D. degree which his alma mater bestowed in 1963. He is married to the former Sarah Beidleman, '38; two of their four children are also Otterbein graduates: Sarah Kathryn Demchak (Mrs. David), '64, and Mary Malinda Bertram (Mrs. David), x'65.

Otterbein College is lucky to have five living past presidents, each of whom will be recognized during the Presidents' Day ceremonies.

Leading the parade according to chronology of term of office will be John Ruskin Howe, '21, B.D., Ph.D., D.D., whose leadership from 1939-45 carried Otterbein during the World War II years when the campus was nearly stripped of its male population.

Royal F. Martin, '14, B.P.E., B.A., M.Ed., L.L.D., held the post of Interim President in 1945. Dr. Martin's Otterbein career began in 1913 before his graduation and continued with only a couple of years' interruption to his retirement in 1958.

J. Gordon Howard, '22, B.A., B.D., M.A., D.D., was head of the "Otterbein family" for twelve years, 1945-47. The presidential home occupied by the Howards was named "Howard House" in his honor when he left the campus to become a Bishop in the Evangelical United Brethren (now United Methodist) Church.

Floyd J. Vance, '16, B.A., M.A., Ph.D., L.L.D., added the office of Interim President during 1957-58 to his list of college responsibilities which included that of treasurer, director of admissions (twice), and registrar.

Lynn W. Turner, H'58, B.A., M.A., Ph.D., L.L.D., has seen in his 1958-71 tenure the greatest growth in all directions as well as the longest term of any living president.

At TOWERS presstime, details of the Presidents' Day program were not entirely complete. The tentative planning, however, will follow this schedule: Program of Installation and Recognition—3:30 p.m., Cowan Hall; Reception for all honorees and guests—5-6:30 p.m., Campus Center; Dinner—6:30-7:45 p.m., Campus Center; Program by Sierra Leone National Dance Company (an Artist Series event)—8 p.m., Cowan Hall.

The committee planning the Presidents' Day activities is composed of Dr. Harold Hancock, Chm.; Tom Clark, Director of Public Relations; John Becker, Librarian; Sylvia Phillips Vance, faculty; Nancy Myers Norris, alumna and president of the Westerville Otterbein Women's Club; Rev. Chester Turner, Asst. Director of Development (Church Relations); Dr. Lyle Barkhymer, faculty; Daniel Jarlenksi, Tony del Valle and Ginny Paine, students.

Dr. Hancock Writes New College History

As part of the celebration of the 125th anniversary of the founding of Otterbein College, Dr. Harold Hancock has written a new history. The volume of over 200 pages includes 60 pages of pictures and stresses the period since 1930 when the last college history was written by Dr. Willard Bartlett. The 125th Anniversary Committee asked Dr. Hancock to write THE HISTORY OF OTTERBEIN COLLEGE to honor the college's birthday.

The first chapter deals with the Otterbein heritage and summarizes the history of the first seventy-five years. Subsequent chapters evaluate the contributions of recent presidents, describe student life and activities, present brief histories of departments and comment on the future of the institution.

More than 100 pictures illustrate the history of the college, including everything from photographs of Otterbein's past to the present. In addition to pictures of Philip William Otterbein and President Lewis Davis, pictures are included of Otterbein's new president, his new residence and the uncompleted new library. Collective pictures of the faculty in 1933 and of 1950 appear, as well as of the faculty today. Other pictures present scenes of campus social life and organizations. On the inside cover is a campus map, and in the back is a collage of newspaper headlines on governance.

Josten's/American Yearbook Company of Cincinnati is the publisher of the 6" x 9" volume. Its local representative is Carl Vorpe, '51. The volume will be available this Fall in both a paperback edition at a cost of $3.64, and with a hard cover at $5.72. Both prices include tax. The tear-out form on the inside back cover of TOWERS may be used for advance orders.

Dr. Hancock has been a member of the faculty since 1944 and is Chairman of the Department of History and Government. He writes frequently on Delaware history. He has been active in developing the 3/3 plan and campus governance. He is a college trustee.

Dr. Hancock will be available in the College Bookstore at Fall Homecoming to autograph copies of THE HISTORY OF OTTERBEIN COLLEGE.

Otterbein College Receives $5000 Kellogg Grant

The W. K. Kellogg Foundation has provided a $5000 grant to Otterbein College for their Environmental Studies programs. The fund will be used for materials to be added to the common course, "Dynamics of the Ecosystem," offered to Otterbein students by the Life and Earth Science Department, and in other related areas.

The course, which emphasizes the inter-relationships between the organism and its physical environment, became a required science course at Otterbein last year.

Dr. Robert E. Kinsinger, Kellogg Foundation vice president, explained that the grant to Otterbein is one of approximately 300 similar grants being made to small private liberal arts colleges throughout the United States as part of the Foundation's continuing program of support for activities aimed at finding solutions to environmental problems throughout the nation.

A special committee of Otterbein professors and administrators was established to study the needs of the College, and submit a proposal to Kellogg. Members of the committee are: Dr. Keith Miller, Dr. Robert Place, Dr. Albert Lovejoy, Dr. John Laubach, Dr. Jerry Hopfengardner, John Ward, Norman Chaney and John Becker, with students Richard Mayhew and Cheryl Hanla. L. W. Norris Serves Humanities In Washington, D. C. Post

At the end of last summer, Dr. Louis W. Norris, '28, retired from the presidency of Albion College.

A White House appointment to the National Council on the Humanities resulted in the Norrises moving to Washington, D. C., where he is presently serving as a Program Officer with the National Endowment for the Humanities. In this capacity, Dr. Norris is supervising grants to colleges and universities to support the humanities.

An article by Dr. Norris will soon appear in EDUCATIONAL RECORD.

Portrait of Hannah Lambert Mayne Is Presented to Mayne Hall

At ceremonies held May 17 in the lounge of Mayne Hall, a portrait of the late Hannah Lambert Mayne, in whose memory Mayne Hall was named, was unveiled.

In making the gift of the portrait to the women's residence hall and to Otterbein College, Rev. John C. Mayne spoke of the high values represented by Otterbein College.

The Rev. Mr. Mayne's mother, Hannah Lambert Mayne, was credited by her family with outstanding ability to create a great deal out of little. Widowed just ten days before the birth of her youngest child, John C. Mayne, Mrs. Mayne successfully raised her family of five children on the $16 per month pension of a Presbyterian minister's widow.

Mayne Hall was constructed in 1964 following the generous gift for that purpose of Horace Mayne, eldest of the five Mayne children. While his health did not permit him to attend the unveiling of his mother's portrait, Horace Mayne was represented at the ceremonies by his son, Roger.

Following the formal unveiling, the Rev. Mr. Mayne recalled for TOWERS the long and extensive association of the Lambert and Mayne families with Otterbein College. Hannah Lambert, x'90, was one of six children who attended Otterbein: W. O. Lambert, '00, Elsie Lambert Reibel, '03, Caroline (Carrie) Lambert Charles, '01, D. Ira, '97, and Bertha Lambert Harris, '26. Three children of W. O. Lambert graduated from Otterbein: Pauline Lambert Warfel, '23, Lucille Lambert Webner, '25, and Charles Lambert, '27. Representing the third generation in this line is Mary Sue Webner Smith, '58.

Another Lambert line extending to the third generation is that of Carrie Lambert Charles, whose sons Daniel, '32 and Phillip, '29 attended the college. Phillip Charles married Otterbeinite Dorothea Flickinger, x'32, and sent both their children, Richard, '57, and Mary Ann, '56, to their alma mater to in turn marry Astrida Salnais, '57, and Joseph W. Eschbach, '55.

Of the five children of Hannah Lambert and John C. Mayne, Sr., each has assumed a position to give credit to the upbringing by their mother. Horace L., '13, prospered in real estate and the automobile business, having handled sales of the first Fordson tractors. Mary Helen, M'17, married Walter E. Roush, '15; both are now deceased.

Dwight C. Mayne, x'22, is a chemical engineer in Ontario, Calif., who worked on the metal which was ultimately used in John Glenn's space capsule. His daughters are Jean Mayne Fulton, '41, and Henrietta Mayne Hobbs, '44. Daniel Ira, x'20, now deceased, was chief patent counsel for Eastman Kodak. John C. Jr., '23, and Anne P. Wilson Mayne, x'24, are serving a Presbyterian pastorate from their home in Arlington, Va.

The Rev. Mr. Mayne noted that the above listing was not complete, and that family ties and connections in many directions extended beyond this accounting of those most directly related to the subject of the portrait just presented.

The painting of Hannah Lambert Mayne is now on display within the lounge of Mayne Hall.

Roush Sporting Goods Center Completes Three-Part Complex

A new concept of sporting goods merchandising is exemplified by the new Roush Sporting Goods Center, Westerville, which celebrated its grand opening in April. The Center contains twelve complete departments with the latest equipment and information about every popular sport from bowling to football, as well as trophies, supplies and sports apparel.

Heading the Sporting Goods Center is former Otterbein athlete Edwin "Dubbs" Roush, '47, who left his high school coaching career in 1951 to open a small hardware store. The results of that early decision have made merchandising history.

That first store, Roush Hardware, was expanded into a retail outlet with more departments than most department stores as it shifted location from downtown Westerville to the Westerville Shopping Center. Roush Hardware won for its owner considerable respect and recognition among customers and businessmen alike for its modern and aggressive approach to merchandising.

The second venture was Roushonda, added behind the main store six years ago when Mr. Roush saw the future potential in Hondas and mechanical equipment, such as tractors and mowers. Roushonda maintains a large service division which draws customers from all parts of Central Ohio.

Roush Sporting Goods Center makes the third segment of this growing and future-minded business complex.

Edwin L. "Dubbs" Roush

Otterbein College recognized the expertise of Dubbs Roush when it elected him an alumni Trustee. His active interest in the college has been shown in his support of athletic and other programs. He is married to the former Mary Lou Harold, x'45. Their daughter, Wendy, is a 1971 graduate of the college.

Jack Hinton Prepares Radio Announcement Guide

The CBS Radio Network released in April for the first time, a printed set of guidelines for public service announcements. In the past, public service organizations seeking free time on the network were given instructions verbally on how to submit this type of announcement.

According to the Advertising Council, which schedules specific campaigns for public service organizations on all networks, CBS Radio is now the only network to have such guidelines available in printed form.

Prepared by Jack Hinton, '60, Director of Program Practices, and Naomi Andrews, Director, Advertising Operations, the CBS Radio guidelines set down the requirements in regard to length of spots, clearance procedures, audio quality, submission of copy and production techniques as well as a few "don'ts," such as the use of sirens or other "alarming" sounds.

The guidelines are being sent to all public service organizations which are currently dealing with the CBS Radio Network as well as those which have submitted announcements in the past. The Advertising Council is also serving as a distribution point.

Putterbaugh Gets Grant As "Teacher-Principal"

The Martha Holden Jennings Foundation has awarded the Worthington City Schools a $5,500.00 grant to develop an in-service teacher-principal training program for the 1971-72 school year. W. Eugene Putterbaugh, '52, currently principal at Worthington Estates, will be Worthington's first "teaching principal" who, according to the provisions of the project, will return to the classroom as a teacher for one year in order to gain a new awareness of the roles of principal, teacher, and student.

The project will involve the employment of an additional elementary principal so that each year one principal can assume the role of a classroom teacher in a school other than his own. The "teaching principal" is to be employed at his regular principal's salary for a 10-month period. He will teach in a regular team-teaching situation during the school year and spend the additional four weeks in developing inservice programs for teachers.

The major purposes of the project are for the "teaching principal" to: (1) demonstrate innovative programs, teaching skills, and techniques; (2) serve as a model in using self-improvement methods; (3) develop and implement effective means of individualizing instruction; (4) develop empathy for the role of classroom teacher; (5) identify problems in the teaching of the new curricula; (6) provide feedback to the other principals for inservice activities; and (7) interact on an "open" basis with the building principal so that maximum growth for both parties will take place.

The Martha Holden Jennings Foundation is a non-profit charitable Ohio Corporation organized to "provide greater recognition to the teaching profession at the elementary and secondary levels and to encourage teachers to specialize in areas beyond the normal curriculum."

When selected as the first principal to take part in this project, Putterbaugh said, "I personally think it is a great honor to be in on the groundwork and I am really looking forward to putting into practice some of the things I have talked about. I feel it is a great honor to have been chosen."

He has been with the Worthington schools since 1956, following experience in Upper Arlington as well as Sunbury, Ohio.

"I have never regretted going into teaching," said Putterbaugh. "My only regret is that I have not stayed in teaching as such. I like the contact with the children. I enjoy getting down on the floor and getting to know them."

Administrator and Coach Announces Retirement

E. F. (Mac) McCarroll, '25, who has served as a teacher and coach to Twin City children since 1925, will retire Aug. 1.

Mr. McCarroll joined Dennison public schools, Uhrichsville, Ohio, as a coach in 1925, was named principal in 1928 and became superintendent in 1937.

He has served as assistant superintendent of Claymont schools since the district was formed July 1, 1965.

He obtained his bachelor of science degree from Otterbein College in 1925. En route he dropped out of college one year to work and obtain enough money so that he could return to complete degree requirements. He has a Master's degree from the University of Michigan where he attended law school two years.

In his first year with Dennison schools, Mr. McCarroll was head football, basketball and baseball coach. The following year Dennison dropped baseball in favor of track.

He continued to coach when he was named principal in 1928, serving in that capacity until being selected superintendent in 1937.

Although through the years McCarroll has continued in an administrative role, since 1928 he has at times been called "out of retirement" to handle the coaching responsibility for various Dennison athletic teams.

John A. Duval

John Duval Finds Success In Professional Theatre

He lists himself as "Type: Character; Height: 6'1"; Weight: 250; Eyes: Blue; Hair: Brown; Member of Equity."

He is John Duval, '62, professional actor.

Well remembered by Otterbein Theatre patrons for his appearances here while a student, Mr. Duval taught high school speech and drama for a few years after his graduation. He returned to Otterbein for the 1969 season of Summer Theatre, and as the result of that experience and the encouragement of Dr. Charles Dodrill, and John Soliday, '62, also a member of the company that season, Mr. Duval decided to give the professional world of theater a try.

He shared the results of that decision with current Otterbein theater students last Spring when he returned to campus for a brief visit while touring with the national company of "Zorba" which was then playing in Columbus. Mr. Duval stressed the practical aspects of the acting profession, emphasizing that acting is a business, does require work and a realistic approach. As a character actor, Mr. Duval has found steady employment, something he might have found more difficult if he had sought only leading roles.

Preceding his stint in "Zorba," Mr. Duval had roles in two Rockefeller Productions, and in two Off-Off Broadway plays. His collegiate experience includes three appearances for Miami of Ohio University, two for Huron Playhouse, and six for Otterbein College, including the overseas touring troupe of "The Boy Friend."

Anderegg Advises for Oil Spill Clean-Up

Great Northern Oil employee Fred Anderegg, '40, played an important advisory role in the Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport aviation fuel leakage which slickened the Minnesota and Mississippi Rivers earlier this year.

Upon St. Paul Mayor Charles McCarty's request, the Metropolitan Airports Commission (MAC) authorized emergency measures to clean up the reported 150,000 gallons of spilled fuel. Representing Miss-ota Croix, oil control coordinating committee which develops inventories of materials, equipment and techniques for clean up of oil spills, Vice Chairman Anderegg reviewed the situation and recommended to MAC the necessary clean up steps. He helped make available to MAC oil absorbent materials and contractors to complete the job.

F. G. Hester was the first chairman of Miss-ota Croix, organized one year ago by local petroleum people. In 1972 Anderegg will assume chairman duties.

In the Fall of 1968 he accepted the call to become the minister of the United Church of Christ, Congregational in Burlington, Massachusetts in order to complete a degree program.

Since becoming a member of the Massachusetts Conference of the United Church of Christ in the Fall of 1969, Mr. Davis has served as co-chairman of three "outreach workshops" in the Metropolitan Boston Association, was a member of a committee to plan a "day off" outing for ministers and their wives, and is currently a member of MBA Mission and Service Committee. Kappa Phi Omega Has Fiftieth Anniversary

On October 23, Kappa Phi Omega Sorority will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary with a dinner at the Imperial House North.

The sorority was founded by a group of girls who had gone through Westerville High School together. They entered Otterbein College in the fall of 1919 and continued their close friendship by forming a sorority. At that time these were secret organizations at Otterbein. By the fall of 1921 they were recognized by the administration and this group became known as the Onyx Club. Greek names were frowned upon by the college but Onyx had one, Kappa Phi Omega. Now, members are known as Kappas.

Charter members were Marguerite Gould Barnhard, Pauline Lambert Warfel, Ellen M. Jones, Margaret Frazier Conley, Kathleen White Dimke, Hilda Gibson Stone, all from Westerville, and Ethel Ullrich Hitchcock from Dayton. Also from Westerville were the first pledges, Wray Richardson Mills, Lucille Lambert Webner and Mary Meyer. Later an older group of Otterbein women affiliated with the sorority of whom Maude Owings Evans and Ann Morris Bercaw are living. All the charter members are living with the exception of Kathleen White Dimke and most plan to attend the anniversary dinner to be followed by the old style slumber party of their student days at Imperial House.

The Norris family is unique in having four sisters, Margaret Norris Kemp, Bernice Norris Howard, Marianne Norris Temple and Virginia Norris Smith all members as well as a sister-in-law, Pauline Kelser Norris.

The sorority has had continuous existence on the campus since its founding. Next year the active members will move into Moore House on West Home Street which will serve as their sorority home.

Sabbatical Takes Curt Tong To Philippines

For Curtis W. Tong, '56, Associate Professor of Physical Education and Otterbein basketball coach, his sabbatical leave during the Spring Term was a meaningful experience on two levels. From a professional point of view, the opportunity to conduct a three-week clinic in basketball theory, philosophy and technique at Silliman University in the Philippines was not only a challenge but necessitated close examination of his own thinking.

"The Filipinos know enough about basketball that they weren't going to accept what I said just because I said it," he said. "They always asked 'Why?' and this was very good. Basketball is a big sport in the Philippines, but by our standards of coaching they are weak in fundamentals."

Dr. Tong noted that being able to work with a culture different from his own added greater depth to his understanding of people as well as sports and to his ability to handle them.

"People's culture falls into sporting patterns all over the world," he told TOWERS. "You can learn a great deal about people by watching how they play. The Filipinos, for instance, are very volatile people, and in basketball they dish it out furiously, but they can't take it when it's returned."

Dr. Tong cited his summer classes as benefiting already from some of the insights gained by his experience at Silliman. "Every day I see myself using something I brought back with me from the Silliman workshop," he says. "It may be a technique of making a point, or in recognizing more clearly how a particular individual approaches a sport."

On a personal level, the trip to the Philippines enabled Dr. Tong to return to the place where he was born and where with his family he was held in Japanese internment centers during World War II. Dr. Tong's father, former missionary Rev. Walter C. Tong, accompanied the Otterbein coach to the Pacific islands. En route they stayed with friends in Japan, people who had served as their guards during their imprisonment.

"By being able to stay in Japanese homes, as friends, we came so much closer to getting the feel of the country and the people than if I had simply gone there alone as a tourist," Dr. Tong said.

Grinning that his father makes a wonderful travelling companion because "Dad knows so many people all over the world," Dr. Tong related that the two of them had made stops in both Taiwan and Hong Kong before arriving in Manila.

Friends in both Manila and the Tongs' former home in Davao were visited, along with memorial stops at cemeteries and to the dungeons where other friends had died.

"We found the old prison in Manila where we had been interned for a while," Dr. Tong recalled, "but the city has grown up around it, and the building itself changed so much—it's no longer a prison—that it was hard to see it as I remembered it."

Rev. Tong returned to the United States and his work with the Church World Service Organization before his son was finished with his duties at Silliman.

Dr. Tong returned to Westerville by way of Saigon, Bankok, Katmandu, India, Jerusalem and London. "I was in Calcutta just long enough to become concerned about the cholera epidemic," he said. "The day I left, which was about a week after the epidemic started, they were estimating 5000 had died."

In Jerusalem, he met his goal of seeing firsthand the birthplace of Christ and other sacred landmarks of Christianity, as well as sensing the evidence of war and Arab-Israeli tension.

"The impact of my whole experience struck me the other day while I was playing tennis," he said. "There I was on a nice comfortable tennis court with no real worries, and just the week before I'd been on the lookout that someone didn't toss a grenade in the back of the jeep. You get a whole new perspective on life this way."

Miss Anna Dell LaFever as she appeared in the 1924 SIBYL.

Memorial Gift Planned For Anna Dell LaFever

A study carrel in the new library will be named in honor of Miss Anna Dell LaFever, '92, upon the completion of a memorial gift pledged by friends.

Miss LaFever taught school for only a few years upon her graduation from Otterbein before her mother's death prompted her to return to Westerville to live with her father. She became an Assistant Librarian at Otterbein in 1908 and remained in that position until her death of a heart ailment on February 6, 1934. Miss Tirza Barnes, '85, was the Otterbein librarian during Miss LaFever's employment there, retiring at about the time of Miss LaFever's death in 1934.

A Westerville resident for most of her life, Miss LaFever's family lived at one time in the home on N. State Rd. more recently remembered as the Rosselot farm.

In initiating the memorial gift in her name, friends have noted the very deep devotion and dedication to Otterbein College of Anna Dell LaFever. The 1924 SIBYL indicates the regard in which others held her in these words: "With a smile and a nod Miss LaFever is always ready to be of any assistance to the students. Her personality invites confidence and commands respect; her services are invaluable."

Others who remember Miss LaFever and who wish to add to the memorial gift in her behalf may do so by contacting the Development Office.

Orville Freeman Tells Campus Food for World Has Top Priority

Former Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman cited the problem of feeding the world's people as having top priority in the list of world problems in an April 12 convocation speech at Otterbein College.

"The problem of Ecology is serious," he told his youthful audience. "It is serious not only in the United States, but in the world as well. In many instances we are pressing the finite limits, of food and fiber, and of the disposal of wastes."

In the press conference preceeding his address to the students, Freeman talked about Earth Week. "The public should be informed," he said, "in order that they may charge industry with the responsibility of finding solutions. There must be public support if we are going to make the sacrifices and investments needed to correct the situation."

Freeman, currently the President of Business International Corp., based in New York City, discussed air pollution. "Living in New York, I am well aware of the fact that the atmosphere around our large cities, in fact, the large cities throughout the world, is both harmful and repressing.

"In your area, the pollution of Lake Erie is prominent. Lake Erie has, in effect, been fertilized until it is suffocating."

In his speech, entitled "The Critical Triangle — Trade, Aid, and Investment," Freeman said, "Ours is a dangerous time, but it's also a promising time."

"If we conceive of ourselves as primarily impotent, destructive and irrational, we'll submit to an unchosen fate. If, on the other hand, we have confidence in the ability of man to do good, we may use our capacities to raise the quality of life."

"In my judgment," he continued, "much of the disillusion and negativism and the violence of our day is a reaction to the gap between the repeated promise of good things and the failure to perform."

To the former Secretary under Kennedy and Johnson, the answer lies in internationalism of resource and product. "The only way to a safe and peaceful world is an open world, with free trade, free investments, free movement of free people and ideas and resources, plus aid from the wealthy one third to the depressed two thirds of the world.

"Internationalization of production has come about because it is effective. It works. And one of the exciting things about the rapid emergence of multinational corporations on the world scene is that no one sat down and planned it. By definition, a multinational company is one that looks at the entire world as an area of operation, and acts that way.

"I have spent considerable time examining multinational corporations because they compose the greatest financial, technical, and managerial force in recorded history. The sales already exceed the gross national product of any country in the world, other than the United States. Collectively, multinational corporations have the brains and muscle to save the world from self-destruction."

Otterbein Alumni Asked For O.P.I.A.G. Support

Dr. Robert Place, Assistant Professor of Chemistry and co-chairman with Wavalene Kumler Tong, '59, of the Westerville OPIAG (Ohio Public Interest Action Group — see Spring TOWERS p. 12), has asked TOWERS to announce that alumni and friends of Otterbein may participate in the work of OPIAG through the college based organization.

The basic thrust of OPIAG will be in fighting pollution at all levels, and doing it through effective and legal channels. Ohio is one of two test states chosen to pioneer the Public Interest Action promoted by Ralph Nader.

Dr. Place's appeal reads in part:

All we are asking for is Ohio money to hire Ohio people to solve Ohio's problems. All we are asking for is that you invest $10 in Ohio's future, your future, and your children's future. What will life be like in 20 years if we do not act now to clean up our environment? Population and industrialization are increasing rapidly and work must be done now to help you and your family achieve and maintain a quality environment in which to live and grow.

Please help yourself and all Ohioans. Make your check payable to: Ohio Public Interest Action Group, Account No. 801-8-82154, Ohio National Bank, 51 N. High St., Columbus, Ohio 43216. Mark "For deposit only" and the money will be put in this OPIAG account.

For answers to questions or for further discussion on OPIAG and its work, interested persons may call or write either Dr. Place at his college address, or Mrs. Tong, c/o Westerville High School, 303 S. Otterbein Ave., Westerville, Ohio 43081.
