Otterbein Offers Degrees in Nursing

Plans are well underway for the new 2+ 2 nursing program at Otterbein College. This unique program will consist of articulated Associate of Science in Nursing (A.S.N.) and Bachelor of Science in Nursing (B.S.N.) segments. Upon successful completion of the first two years, students will receive an A.S.N. degree and will write the licensing examination to become a Registered Nurse (R.N.). At this point students may elect to leave Otterbein and practice as an R.N. or to proceed into the upper division segment and work toward the B.S.N..

The upper division B.S.N. segment of the program will be designed for students who are already R.N.'s. The B.S.N. segment, in which full or part-time study will be possible, will attempt to meet the needs of R.N.'s who received their previous education at Otterbein and through other Associate Degree or hospital diploma programs.

Dr. Barbara Chapman, nursing department chairman, and Mary Ann Bradford, nursing faculty member, are working this year on plans for the program. Applicants for three additional faculty positions for 1978-79 are currently being interviewed. The curriculum, which will include courses in nursing, chemistry, life science, psychology, sociology and Integrative Studies, has been submitted for approval by the State Board of Nursing Education and Nurse Registration. Necessary library materials, books, journals and audiovisual materials have been identified. Plans are also underway for creation of an on-campus nursing practice laboratory. Clinical experiences with hospitalized patients will be provided primarily at Grant Hospital.

Applications are being accepted for the first class in the A.S.N. segment. Approximately 40 students will begin work toward the A.S.N. degree in September, 1978. The upper division B.S.N. segment will begin in September, 1980.

The new program is a cooperative effort between Grant Hospital and Otterbein College. Otterbein and Grant Hospital have cooperated for a number of years in providing nursing education for students through the Grant Hospital School of Nursing. After reviewing existing needs, it was decided that Grant Hospital School of Nursing would no longer admit students after the summer of 1977. Otterbein will assume primary responsibility for developing and administering the new nursing program.

Students Recruit Students

Forty-one Otterbein students recently contacted approximately 4,500 potential Otterbein students. For the past six weeks the student recruiters gathered in the Alumni Lounge in the Howard House to call high school students all over the United States who have indicated some interest in attending Otterbein. The student telephoners answered questions, offered to send college literature and issued invitations to visit the campus.

Admissions counselor Barbara Lehman, '76 who organized the student telethon said, "I really feel the personal touch made possible by a telethon has a tremendous influence on a potential student's final decision. And the rapport that is established between a current student and a high school senior is something that can't be imitated."

New Members of the Otterbein Staff Welcomed

New to the alumni-development staff is Deborah Banwart James, '77. Deborah began work on December 1 as assistant director of development and alumni affairs. Formerly an administrative assistant with the Greater Columbus Arts Council's Artists-in-the-Schools program, her primary responsibilities at Otterbein include directing all aspects of the Otterbein Fund.

Mary Lynne Musgrove, who has been teaching the Integrative Studies course, "The Emerging Woman," for several terms, has filled a newly created position as part-time career development consultant in the placement office. She holds a B.A. in art history and English from the University of Illinois and an M.A. in student personnel and counseling psychology from Ohio State University. Previous employment experience has included a variety of career and vocational counseling experience. Her chief responsibility here will be career counseling with non-education majors.

Bill Stewart, a Springfield native, has been named staff assistant in public relations with responsibilities in sports information and photography. Formerly a public relations assistant with the National Football League, Bill received a B.S. in journalism from Ohio University as well as a M. Ed. in sports administration.

Up On The House Top Not A Creature Was Stirring, But In Hanby Hall — Well, That Was Another Matter!

On December 27, 1977, just two days after Christmas, a somewhat befuddled deer was found inside Hanby Hall. The deer was safely removed from the women's residence hall and released.

College service personnel speculate the deer jumped through a window located at the rear of the residence hall lounge after becoming confused by light being reflected from the window.

However, other college officials question whether it was merely coincidence that the deer was found in Hanby Hall. Considering that Hanby Hall was named for Kate Winter Hanby, class of 1857, whose husband Benjamin Hanby, class of 1858, composed the popular children's Christmas tune "Up On The House Top," wouldn't it just be possible that Santa may have misplaced one of his reindeer Christmas Eve while making his rounds "up on the house tops?"

WMNI/WRMZ, Wendy's Give Support To Otterbein

The College has received a gift from WMNI/WRMZ, Bill Mnich, President, designated for the naming of the press box in the Rike Physical Education Recreation Center.

Wendy's International has also presented Otterbein with a gift for the naming of a commemorative area on campus.

Sibyl Seeks Support

The staff of the 1978 SIBYL is looking for patrons for this year's yearbook. Any interested alumnus who would like to help the SIBYL staff meet sky-rocketing publishing costs and receive a copy of the 1978 yearbook, please send a check for $15.00 along with your name and class year to Marcha Waddell, SIBYL editor, Campus Center, Otterbein College, Westerville, Ohio 43081. Your name will be listed as a patron in the yearbook and your support will be very much appreciated.

Otterbein Cagers Are Champions

At press time, the Otterbein College basketball team, after winning its first Ohio Athletic Conference Tournament Championship, was preparing to make its first appearance at the NCAA Tournament in Terre Haute, Indiana.

First round action will feature Albion College with a 17-5 slate vs. Otterbein's 19-8 record.

Making their way into NCAA play, the Cardinals defeated four OAC tournament foes — Ohio Wesleyan, 75-72; Muskingum, 54-53; Wittenberg, 69-63 and, for the championship, Wooster, 72-71.

Good luck Otters!

Double Your Dollar Double Our Pleasure

Through Matching Gift Programs, more than 700 corporations will match the gifts of their employees to educational institutions, and in some cases, will match the gifts of the employees spouse too.

These corporations match the employee's contribution to Otterbein dollar for dollar. The donor simply fills in a short form provided by the employer and the company matches the gift by sending an equal amount to Otterbein. In most cases, the program of a parent firm will apply to its divisions, subsidiaries and affiliated companies.

In 1976-77, Otterbein received over $13,000 from Matching Gift Corporations. If you would like to know if your company participates in the matching gift plan, write or call the Development Office at (614) 890-3000.

New Scholarship and Grant Established

The Wilbur R. Franklin Family Scholarship Fund has been established by Wilbur R. Franklin in memory of Marion Adams Franklin, '21, and in honor of Wilbur R. Franklin, '23, Wilbur R. Franklin, Jr. and Marjorie Franklin. The scholarship is intended to be of assistance to freshman and upperclass athletes at Otterbein.

The William M. Junk and Frances Smith Junk Grant has been established by Mr. and Mrs. William Junk of Washington C.H., Ohio. The grant will be available to qualified entering freshmen.

Lifetime Membership in President's Club Available

The Otterbein College Development Board has voted to create a lifetime membership in the President's Club. To qualify, one must meet the following requirements:

a "decision for the arts"

by Elwyn M. Williams
Vice President for Development and Public Relations

In the months ahead the theme "Decision For The Arts" will become increasingly familiar to Otterbein alumni and friends. Music, art and theatre have always been popular student choices and Otterbein enjoys an excellent reputation in these academic disciplines. Over the years one out of twelve Otterbein graduates has had a major background in fine arts and the current enrollment indicates an even higher percentage of the student body interested in this area of study.

In the past five years the music department has averaged 64 majors and 12 graduates each year with a current enrollment of 80 majors. The largest classroom in Lambert Hall seats 20 but must accommodate 35. A growing number of speech and theatre majors and art majors also face space limitations. Lighting for art classes is inadequate. The theatre program lacks proper facilities for scene preparation and there are no current facilities for dance. (The dance program currently enrolls 200 students annually, even with the present use of off-campus space.)

A contemporary fine arts center is the practical dream of those who have developed a program beyond the limitations of Lambert Hall. One of the key concepts of the "Venture Into Opportunity" campaign was the utilization of Alumni Gymnasium. Since 1972 extensive studies have been made by on-campus committees and trustees regarding the best use of this building with the final recommendation that the renovation result in a contemporary fine arts center to meet current and anticipated program needs. This recommendation was incorporated in a total new campaign, authorized in June 1977 by the Board of Trustees with the theme "Decision For The Arts."

An early priority in the "Decision" program is the renovation of Alumni Gymnasium. Work has already begun with a completion date set for late fall in 1978. With the opening of the Rike Physical Education Recreation Center, work could begin on this $1.4 million renovation project, the first phase of the $2.5 million "Decision For The Arts."

The new Music and Arts Center will incorporate music, art and dance programs under one roof. The Center will provide a 275 seat auditorium, art, dance and music studios, a photo lab, a rehearsal hall, classrooms and offices to help meet growing physical needs of these academic disciplines.

The "Decision For The Arts" package is an extension of the efforts begun in the 1970's to consolidate and improve campus facilities rather than an expansion program. Included among the projects to be funded by the $2.5 million "Decision For The Arts" campaign are the addition of a scenery shop to Cowan Hall, continued interior renovation of Towers Hall and the funding of energy saving steps. The plan illustrates Otterbein's careful use of conserving resources by renovating two campus buildings (Towers Hall and Alumni Gymnasium) using present facilities to the maximum.

To date, $461,000 has been contributed to the campaign including a pledge of $250,000 from the Vida S. Clements Foundation, a $60,000 local business firm's pledge and trustee and faculty/staff pledges to date.

Trustee solicitation under the direction of Thomas Bromeley, '51 and Leadership Gift contacts by William LeMay, '48 and his committee are in progress now. National chairman Elmer Funkhouser, Jr. indicates that the campaign is on schedule and more widespread efforts will be made when advance gifts work is more nearly completed.

Early commitment from the campus community is an important factor in assuring the success of the "Decision For The Arts." The on-campus faculty/staff campaign is headed by life science professor Mike Herschler and librarian John Becker, '50. "The campus campaign was launched earlier than originally planned because of the solid approval of the program and the level of awareness and movement of the campaign," said Dr. Michael Herschler, faculty chairman of the "Decision" program. "The campus community is to be commended for its all-out effort. If this is an example of what we can expect in the months ahead, there is no question of the program's success," he said.

In addition to this high priority project every effort will be made during the current year to sustain the important Otterbein Fund. The College must have basic support for program and academic excellence require maximum participation by concerned alumni and friends. It will take our best efforts to meet both needs. More information will be forthcoming about the total development needs and a brochure is available for those who wish to have more information about the "Decision For The Arts."

Thus with the completion of the fine arts center scheduled for this fall, the months ahead promise to be exciting and challenging ones for the Otterbein constituency.

This little Russian is ready for winter — be it in Russia or Ohio!!

RUSSIA:

"Better to see once than to hear many times."

by Norman Dohn, '43

A visit to the Soviet Union no longer is the unique experience it was twenty years ago when the Kremlin first lifted the Iron Curtain to American tourists. But it still was an exciting adventure for the thirty Otterbein alumni, relatives and friends who spent a week in Leningrad and Moscow following Thanksgiving. Five others associated with the College made a similar trip the week before.

The tour party, sponsored by the Otterbein Alumni Association, included President and Mrs. Thomas Kerr and was joined by about 150 representatives of several other Ohio college alumni groups.

While a week in Russia does not an expert make, noted Dr. Harold Boda, '25, who with Mrs. Boda was among the travelers, "the visit enabled us to separate, to some extent, certain myths surrounding the strengths and weaknesses of the Soviet Union from a more realistic understanding of conditions as they are."

President Kerr, impressed by Russia's contrast and contradictions, commented, "We observed a people who were both an expressionless mass yet warm and friendly as individuals; collective in living patterns and patient in endless lines yet pushy and aggressive on the sidewalk, in the shops and at the coat check.

"The USSR has soared in space and achieved in heavy construction but has fallen flat in some areas of consumer production and construction detail. It is a land of history and mystery. The czars, the Orthodox church, the more than 100 nationalities, Communism and Lenin deification produce mysterious diversity. Unity has come from collectivism and resistance from invasions."

Sandi McFeater, '72 was also struck by the paradoxes, noting that Russia has one of the most modern and efficient mass transportation systems in the world and yet it is not unusual to see the ancient abacus being used in many shops and stores.

Equally rewarding as the trip itself was the chance to renew campus friendships and share in the camaraderie generated when Otterbein folks get together. For me it was pleasurable to resume a friendship with a Sphinx fraternity brother, Fred Long, whom I hadn't seen since the early days of World War II when he left Otterbein for military service. He retired in 1972 with the rank of colonel and he and his wife, Elizabeth Fern Griffith Long, '39 live in Newport, R.I., where Fred works for the state and Elizabeth is a public school librarian.

Although acknowledging there was much to see, appreciate and ponder, Fred listed as his foremost impression of the trip "the good nature, courtesy and intelligence of the Otterbein group," adding:

"It was reassuring to me that my undergraduate convictions regarding the caliber of person attracted to Otterbein was not just founded in romantic memories, but sustained by renewed contact after so many years. There were other persons with attractive personalities and sensitive approaches to the opportunities inherent in this visit, but there was no group with such consistent considerations and good sense."

The considerateness of which Fred speaks was demonstrated when a member of the group, Gladys Beachley, '43 slipped and broke a bone in her leg the first day of sightseeing in Leningrad. Despite the discomfort and clumsiness of the heavy cast applied by a Russian doctor, Gladys participated in most activities with the thoughtful help of her traveling companions. One who helped her consistently was Joseph Skidmore, a sophomore at Ohio Northern University, traveling with his mother and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Howard (Doc) Wright, '35.*

Doc, a retired pharmacist, was designated "leader" of the Otterbein group. His booming voice directed us to our tour bus and kept us together while sightseeing. And his delightful humor and witty remarks kept us in stitches.

For Neva Fritsche, the trip was an opportunity to see for herself many of the sights and places she has been told about by her husband, Ernest, '38, who in the summer of 1956 spent 30 days in the Soviet Union as part of a 12-member National Home Builders Association delegation. The group paved the way for other professional visitors and eventually for American tourists who numbered close to 100,000 in 1977.

Tourism is becoming big business in the Soviet Union. The lure is out for Americans and the U.S. dollar. And a concerted effort is being made to drum up interest in the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow. But despite the attempt to attract tourists and promote commerce, Russian bureaucracy created unnecessary obstacles and hassles the visitor, perhaps unwittingly, wherever he goes.

Not until he arrives in the country does the tourist know the name of the hotel in which he will be staying, what he will be doing or seeing. He is relatively free to come and go as he pleases but he is restricted to the accommodations of his assigned hotel and denied admission to other hotels unless he has a pass. It's possible to eat in a restaurant outside one's hotel but only if arrangements are made well in advance.

Passing up a performance of the Moscow circus planned for the entire group, my daughter Mary and I and the Longs joined two other couples for dinner at a restaurant featuring Georgian food and music. Not Jimmy Carter's Georgia but Russia's Black Sea region of the same name.

received as we danced with, embraced and warmed to the Russian people in that setting are what every visitor to Russia covets, but cannot be promised by the travel agency or received as a political obligation in an official capacity. It was the most storybook encounter of the trip.

The Kerrs and about fifteen others from the Otterbein party visited with teachers and students in a Moscow "special school". Fred Long described it as both a delightful and disturbing event:

The gestures of goodwill given and

"Delightful, because the people from the sturdy principal to the delicate first form girls who sang in their chorus, were at once dedicated to their work and yet anxious to be approved by their foreign visitors. Disturbing, because they have preserved two things in their school system which we seem to have lost.

"The atmosphere of quiet, purposeful educational respect for what they were doing and for each other was pervasive. The teachers exerted firm, easy authority, which was free of coercion and rooted in their security as members of a respected faculty. The students demonstrated a dedication to learning completely free of a sense of resentment toward the restraints of academic discipline.

"This sort of academic identification with role, I believe, is an accomplishment which they achieve or retain and which we seem to have lost — or at least feel we have. They have preserved childhood. They have children in their schools. We hasten our children into mini-adults much too fast for our or their good."

A night at the opera was enjoyed by all at Leningrad's most renowned theater, the Kirov. The auditorium itself is a magnificent five-tiered gilt horseshoe — all plush and crystal with flying angels to top it off. The building was badly damaged by German artillery during the war. But renovations began even before the 900-day siege of the city had lifted, and concerts resumed in the fall of 1944.

Another highlight of the Leningrad part of the tour was a visit to the Hermitage, once the winter palace of the czars and now one of the world's great museums containing more than two million items ranging from prehistoric artifacts to classics of modern art.

In Moscow, a visit behind the Kremlin walls left a lasting impression with everyone. We were unable to view the glass-enclosed remains of Lenin, however, since his tomb was temporarily closed.

When our Intourist guide said goodbye at Moscow airport, she repeated an old Russian saying: "Better to see once than to hear many times."

How true. One must see Russia for himself, no matter how microscopic the view or how brief the stay, to have an appreciation of a giant nation whose 260 million citizens are spread over a land mass the size of Canada and Alaska combined.

Once having seen Russia, however, I have no great desire to return. I prefer to see other parts of the globe on future Otterbein Alumni Association tours.

Editor's Note: Many thanks to President Kerr and assistant professor of economics and business administration Pat Lewis for the use of their photographs.

The Kid in Jersey Number 42

by Bill Stewart

When he pulled on jersey number 42 four years ago, Otterbein freshman center Ed Williams' skinny six foot seven inch frame filled out the uniform about as good as the wire hanger it had been draped on during the off season.

And four years has only added a total of 15 pounds to his elongated physique but who ever said you needed a muscular body to play hoop?

It might have helped Williams to have had a little more meat on his bones seeing that injuries cut down somewhat on his playing time in four years; a knee operation between his freshman and sophomore years, infected ankle tendons before his junior season and a bum wrist prior to his senior campaign. Yet somewhere along the line he found time to build career totals of 1,097 points and 760 rebounds.

But his point and rebound totals aren't a true indication of Ed Williams' net worth to the Otterbein basketball team. The best way to measure his value is to take a look at the Otterbein season record, 15 wins and 8 losses.

The skinny kid from Reynoldsburg has grown in four years. Along the way he has picked up honors such as Most Valuable Freshman, All District IV and All Ohio Athletic Conference as a junior. This season he has been twice named "OAC Player of the Week" and was named to the All Tournament Teams in the Indianapolis Classic and the Colonial City Classic in Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

However, the one honor he didn't earn for his on-the-court abilities is probably the one that explains the success of this year's Cardinal cagers.

What Ed Williams lacks in muscle he more than makes up for in maturity and leadership which is why the rest of his teammates unanimously voted him captain of this year's Otterbein squad.

The only senior on a 15 man team had a lot to do with molding the other 14 into a unit which was considered one of the top teams in the OAC throughout the season.

"Looking at him as a high school player four years ago we just didn't know how much he would grow as an athlete" says Otterbein coach Dick Reynolds, "but now there's no doubt he's lived up to all the hopes we had for him."

"Certainly his statistics prove how good a player he is and it's been great to watch him steadily improve as each season passed. But it pleases me more to see how he has matured and developed as a person and how his own self-dedication has made him the athlete he is today."

But with Ed Williams' college basketball career over, who knows who will take jersey number 42 off that old wire hanger next year. Maybe another All America candidate, maybe a four-year bench warmer. Certainly whoever it is has to do a lot of growing to fill it out better than that skinny kid from down the road.

The Wind
I met the wind on the woodside
A saucy chap that day
As he pulled my hair and lashed my face
And hurried me on my way.

Then as he raced before me,
Breathless I looked to see
Him pluck a leaf from an oak top
And hurl it down to me.

'73 next reunion June 1978

To the Class of '73:

It's been five years, bunkies! For most of us the last five years have brought a multitude of new experiences and changes, perhaps more than in any other five year period in our lives! Shouldn't that be exciting material to exchange at this year's reunion? Let's try to get together now, even in this busy part of our lives, before we are farther apart — not to reminisce, but to build anew.

See you June 10!

To the Class of '74:

It has been four years since we graduated and it is time we got together once again to renew old friendships and share growth experiences. Sentimentality aside, there were many exciting and important events we shared together during our four years at Otterbein. Classroom encounters, music, theater, and sports events, dorm, sorority and fraternity living all contributed to our growth while we earned degrees.

On June 10, 1978, the Class of '74 will be having its first reunion. I hope you will be able to attend.
