ALUMNI COLLEGE

WHAT'S AN ALUMNI COLLEGE?

A chance for you and your family to:

- Attend classes taught by members of the Otterbein faculty.
- Take a vacation the whole family will enjoy.
- Attend a play featuring an "all-star" cast of Otterbein alums.
- Send your pre-schoolers and small children to day camp.
- Participate in a golf or tennis tournament.
- Indulge in a banana split while keeping time to the tunes of your very own alumni band playing your old favorites.

Plan now to attend the 1975 Alumni College, June 12 to June 15. Bring your whole family back to campus for a 4-day weekend of continuing education, recreation and traditional alumni day events. Or, if you're pressed for time, select a few activities from:

Classes Take advantage of the continuing education classes taught by Otterbein faculty on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of the 4-day weekend. Classes are being planned in a variety of disciplines, including psychology, economics, and others. Topics in all disciplines will relate to the theme "Current Concerns in Society."

Day Care Services We want Otterbein's Alumni College to be a family affair, so don't hesitate to bring the kids! Qualified personnel will be on hand to make sure your trip back to the 'Bein will be as memorable for your children as it is for you. Arrangements are being made to incorporate Otterbein's day care facilities and near-by Dogwood Park into the activities for the littlest "Beiners."

Recreation There will be plenty of opportunities for those of you who are sports-minded to get in a few games of softball, golf or tennis—and by all means you'll want to try out the facilities in the new Rike Physical Education-Recreation Center.

Cultural Events Throughout the years Otterbein has produced a number of outstanding artists. Exhibits displaying the works of Otterbein authors and artists promise to be key attractions throughout the weekend. Other cultural highlights include a tour of historical homes in the area and an alumni theatre production.

Dinner/Dance Dine with your old classmates, then dance to the tunes of Chuck Selby, one of Columbus' most versatile bands.

Class Reunions An expanded reunion schedule allows you to renew acquaintances with all your friends. This year's reunions are: 5th year—1969, '70, '71; 10th year—1965; 25th year—1950; 30th year—1944, '45, '46; 40th year—1935; 50th year—1925; Golden Ages—all over 50th year.

Plenty of free time is scheduled throughout the weekend for just plain fun and relaxation. You can stay in the Columbus area and eat at your favorite restaurant, or take advantage of economical campus housing and food. Costs will be established by a committee of alumni on a break-even basis, so this first annual Alumni College can provide an inexpensive vacation for you and your family. Complete price information, including a la carte prices for selected events, will be announced soon.

Campus News

COLLEGE CHAPLAIN BOB CLARKE WAS all smiles as he reported a $532 total for the Campus Sharing Days Auction on November 3rd. The annual campus event benefits less fortunate students through World University Service, an organization which assists struggling universities in sixty different countries from every continent.

"This year's total well surpassed last year's $290," commented Clarke. "The fraternities, sororities, faculty and staff all responded enthusiastically, donating items from exam week snack kits to fifty pages of typing—double spaced!"

Campus Sharing Days has traditionally been a part of Religion-in-Life Week, an annual event for the past 10 years.

OUR SPEECH STUDENTS RECENTLY took first place in the dramatic duo competition in a national level speech contest held at Parkersburg Community College. Otterbein placed fifth out of 28 schools in their best finish since coach Don Hines took over two years ago.

Julie Sickles, a senior from Canton, and Sue Ball, a freshman from Columbus, shared the dramatic duo competition first place honors. Taking fourth place in the same event were Janet James, a sophomore from Clarkston, Michigan, and Dan Hawk, a sophomore from Tiffin.

OTTERBEIN COLLEGE PRESIDENT Thomas J. Kerr, IV was one of 200 participants in the Inflation Conference on Health, Education, Income Security, and Social Services on September 19 and 20 in Washington, D.C. The participants assessed and discussed the impact of inflation on the groups each represented, and suggested possible government and private sector inflation-fighting economic policies. Dr. Kerr told his group that inflation has had a devastating impact on higher education, especially private institutions. Inflation has cost Otterbein College $1.2 million in the past two years, forcing the College to decrease its staff and services.

In his assessment of higher education Doctor Kerr proposed action in three areas: a realignment of grant programs to only high priority requests; the adoption of a federal loan program where students borrow a percent of their comprehensive tuition and pay back under a time schedule according to their adjusted income levels; tax deductions for educational expenditures.

Kerr called upon the government itself to live within the means afforded by productivity. He cited Otterbein's 19 years with a balanced budget as an example of careful fiscal management.

"We must reduce debt . . . and government must make every effort to prevent higher taxes and debt reduction from falling with unreasonable hardship on a few industries or groups," he said.

ALUMNI AUTHORS ARE BEING TRACKED down by librarian John Becker and alumni director Chet Turner for this summer's alumni college published writing display. All published writings by Otterbein alumni are wanted for the Otterbein Room, and John and Chet urge that they be autographed and dated by their authors.

This June these publications, including books, reports, magazine and newspaper articles, journal offprints and other publications, will be displayed for the alumni college participants. Hopefully many of the authors will be on hand for discussion.

Send your publications, and if you know of any more modest alumni who have been too shy to respond, send their names.

Speaking of alumni authors,

Ralph Wileman, '53, has co-authored a book, A Structure for Population Education, which is an outline for population studies geared to any learning level from kindergarten through 12th grade. Mary Turner Lane was co-author.

Bob Joyce, '69, has won 2nd prize with his poem "Vintage Glass" in the West Virginia State Poetry Contest. The poem is about Otterbein's collection of Clements goblets.

Assistant professor of education Mildred Stauffer has published a "ballad of reunion" for children entitled The Shipwreck. In it a father and his son, a shipwrecked sailor, learn to understand each other through verbal communication. Mrs. Stauffer's message is "let's communicate".

TEN STUDENTS WERE INDUCTED INTO Torch and Key, a scholastic honorary, at its November meeting. Known as the Otterbein scholars these students are chosen because of their high scholarship and character. The ten new members are Karla Jones, Shinnston, W.Va.; Georgia Neibarger, Johnstown; Charles Beall, Columbus; Cheryl Bateman, Columbus; Kathy Buxton, Coshocton; Kathy Ronan, Parma; Polly Shelton, Bay Village; Cynthia Hupp, Munroe Falls; Barb Smith, Mansfield; and Mary Hedges, Lima.

THE PI KAPPA PHI ALUMNI ASSOCIATION has been awarding scholarships to Otterbein students since 1958. Selection is not based upon membership in Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity, but on financial need, a good grade point average, and campus involvement.

This year the Fraternity awarded $1,200 to six students. Receiving the awards were Dave Daubenmire, '75, Jim Inniger, '75, Martha Edwards Miller, '75, Bruce Flinchbaugh, '75, Fred Donelson, '76, and Darcy Birmingham, '77.

1974 TELETHONERS RAISED OVER $51,788 during the annual November telethon. At the close of nine evenings of telephoning, 110 alumni, faculty and student volunteers had received 325 pledges amounting to $51,788. During the course of the telethon, volunteers attempted over 1500 calls completing nearly 1,000 of them.

Of those contacted during the telethon, 64% agreed to make some kind of gift to help Otterbein meet the $100,000 Kresge Challenge. To date, more than $100,000 in new gifts and pledges have been received in response to the telethon and the recently mailed Venture Into Opportunity Phase II brochure.

"This is a most encouraging response from our alumni and friends," commented Elwyn M. Williams, Vice President for Development. "However, we still need to raise $228,000 by October 15, 1975 to receive the Kresge grant. We are hopeful that several corporate and individual gifts in the leadership range will be stimulated by this supportive response thus far; but many more of our alumni will need to make their gifts during 1975 if Otterbein is to claim the Kresge Challenge."

A total of 287 individuals indicated to the telethoners that they would be making some type of gift. This could mean an additional $20,000 if these unspecified gifts come in at the average level for the telethon as a whole.

Two main categories of alumni and friends were called during the 1974 telethon. First, those individuals who had made a single cash gift of $25 or more sometime during Phase I. Secondly, individuals who had made pledges during Phase I. In this group were many people who were still paying on their Phase I pledge. A majority of the donors reached in this category were willing to extend their pledge for one or more additional tax years. New gifts and pledges are the only monies that can be counted toward the Kresge Challenge grant.

When Doctor Leonard came to Otterbein in 1964, he began teaching a geology course with little or no help from textbooks, laboratories or lectures. Instead of a syllabus he handed his students an itinerary and told them to come up with a sleeping bag, a good sturdy pair of shoes and some warm clothes.

Before long "Doc" was leading his classes all over the states of Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia, teaching them to appreciate their surroundings. Besides learning to identify certain geologic formations, the students learn self-reliance and self-confidence.

Most of Doc's students have had little experience in the outdoors. Many are not even familiar with the neighboring state parks, and have never spent a weekend climbing rocks, rappelling down cliffs, or camping inside a cave. That's why many of them think they experience the "unusual" when they accompany Doc off the beaten path.

But Doc insists there is nothing unusual about his field trips. To him they are outdoor experiences. The geology just naturally comes with it. He does insist, however, that the outdoor experience is the most important part of the learning.

Presently Doc is spending his sabbatical out West with eight students who are working on school projects. In early January they backpacked through the Smokies, and visited the Georgia mining regions and the bird sanctuaries and salt domes of the Gulf Coast region before heading West.

By the time they return in early March, they will have visited Big Bend Park in southwest Texas, New Mexico, the Colorado plateau, Utah, Arizona, southern California, and the Sierra Nevada Mountains, all of which are rich geologic study areas.

Nature Novices Experience An Outdoor Classroom

The "unordinary" becomes the ordinary on Doc's field trips. We sleep in caves, barns, or wherever we end up after a full day of hiking, rappelling, fossil hunting and canoeing. We go where there are no paths at all.

Natural bridges are found all over the United States, but Otterbein students find that Kentucky offers good sandstone specimen. Here John Dimar, '75, Tim Warner and their classmates explore this natural bridge believed to have been formed by a sapping process, where an underground stream dissolved the adhesive substance in sandstone. A gradual erosion from both sides formed a supportive pedestal for the rock arch.

As he leads his students through the caves, Doc explains the formation process and some of the features, including stalactites (shown in picture above) and stalagmites. "The field trips offer a relaxing journey through geologic history, and a break from the usual routine," wrote Tom ('75) and Judy ('76) Flippo.

To me the closeness and sharing that developed between individuals within the group were a significant part, and perhaps the most important part, of the course.

Jill Waggamon, '77

I remember best of all our trip to Kelly's Island. The excursion took us to the north shore, the most beautiful side of the island. We collected driftwood to build our campfire, and slept right on the edge of the water. The sound of the water lapping in, and the stars, and sunrise the next morning, are things I'll never forget. "Geologizing," as we liked to call it, became something special in the hands of Doctor Leonard. We must have seemed an odd sight, following this easy-going man from rock to rock, as though we were students following Aristotle. Knowledge flows from him on contact. He has a fascinating background, and is able to captivate his listener, but he is usually quiet and must be asked about himself. We often found ourselves asking him about himself.

The Gas Pipe Comes a Long Way!

by Susi Garden, '77

Susi Garden, publicity chairman for WOBN radio, and WOBN's adviser, Dr. Jim Grissinger, put together this article on the station's history. OC sports were broadcasted on commercial stations back in the 30's by the late Dale Evans, '33, and other students. But Susi begins her story in the late 40's when Otterbein began broadcasting with its own "gas pipe" transmitter under its call letters WOBNC.

Otterbein's radio station got its meager beginnings back in 1948 when two students, Jim Roose, '48, and Jim Yost, '51, (who later became a longtime trustee of Otterbein) teamed up with Professor Lee Shackson, then head of the music department, and put together a very primitive radio transmitter with World War II surplus supplies.

This "gas pipe" transmitter fed low power radio signals through the power lines so that it was possible to receive programs without airwaves on regular AM radio. The studio and control rooms were set up on the third floor of Towers Hall where, using the call letters of WOBNC, they operated under the "carrier current" limitations of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC).

By 1950 the station's operations had grown to such an extent that the studio and control rooms were moved to Cowan Hall. Because of a new hookup to the power line, WOBNC now had wider coverage.

Trouble arose, though, soon afterwards. The FCC sent an officer from Detroit to measure the power of the station. Because students had hooked a metal "clothesline" between Lambert and Cowan Halls with the transmitter attached, WOBNC was using two million times the power allowed. After continuing hassles with the FCC, WOBNC seriously considered becoming legitimate.

During the 1956-57 school year WOBNC applied to the FCC to become an educational FM station, and thus committed themselves to a required mass of paperwork.

It was a scavenger hunt getting together the necessary information. Photographs of the surrounding countryside were taken from the roof of Cowan Hall. The purpose of our station was drawn up, and its financing was detailed in a report.

But this was just the beginning. The station had little equipment, and even less money to spend.

But Otterbein alumni came to the rescue. Robert Bromeley, '29, who still owns a station in Pennsylvania, contributed a new transmitter. Vida Clements purchased the "console" which is in use at the station today. Philco gave two turntables while College funds paid for the 60 foot antenna on top of Cowan Hall, and for the building and furnishing of the studio and control room.

Finally, in October of 1958 the grand opening of the station took place complete with the newly assigned call letters—WOBN. Representatives from commercial stations all over central Ohio were on hand for the first WOBN program. From then on WOBN's progress was swift and striking.

As I talked with WOBN adviser Jim Grissinger, he began to reminisce about the station's 16 years of operation. "When the 1968 election results were being calculated computers were widely used throughout the United States to predict the outcome. Aided by a simple Ouija Board WOBN announced Nixon's victory by 7:30 pm, well in advance of the computers. Someone picked up the story called the national wire services and soon all America knew that tiny WOBN had scooped the vast forces of the computers!"

Agler Retires; Seils Accepts Head Coach Job

After leading this fall's Cardinals to their first winning season in a decade, Robert "Moe" Agler retired as head coach to become Director of Facilities at Otterbein's Rike Physical Education Recreation Center. Agler, whose overall record reads 75-62-5, will also remain in his current position as athletic director. Agler's gridders finished the 1974 season with an impressive 6-3 overall record and a 4-1 Red Division slate. The Cardinals' only divisional defeat came at the hands of perennial power Baldwin-Wallace who dealt the Cards a 35-22 upset to capture the loop title.

Former Otterbein offensive backfield coach Rich Seils has been named to replace the 16-year veteran Agler. A 1967 graduate of Denison University, Seils was an all league center, MVP, captain and four-year letterman during his collegiate career.

He came to the Otterbein football program as an assistant in 1973 and an instructor in the health and physical education department. As offensive backfield coach, Seils called most of Otterbein's offensive plays for the past two seasons and was the primary force behind the recruitment of 55 1974 freshmen, many of whom contributed heavily to Otterbein's first winning season since 1964. He also instituted a wishbone offense, which has produced 28.2 points per game for the Cardinals this season.

1969, and then moved to Grandview Heights High School as an assistant football coach, head wrestling coach and physical education teacher. After one year, he took over the head grid job.

In 1971 he became offensive coordinator at Defiance College and head wrestling coach. During his two years at Defiance, the Yellow Jackets produced identical 5-4 records.

Bachtel Named Otter MVP

Sophomore cross country standout Tom Bachtel was named the squad's Most Valuable Player at the annual cross country banquet held Nov. 10.

Bachtel, who twice bettered the school cross country record and lowered it to its present 25:28 standard, led Otterbein to a 7-1 dual meet finish, which stands as the best ever by an Otter cross country squad.

The Cardinals finished third in the Ohio Conference Relays, second in the OAC Championship and 14th overall in the demanding All-Ohio meet, which consists of both university and college division schools in the state.

The 1974 co-captains, Dave Brown and Jamie Brunk, were honored at the November banquet, while next year's co-captains, Dave Brown and Westerville's Jeff Yoest, were elected by their teammates.

Girls End Volleyball Season, 2-8

The 1974 women's volleyball team led by captain Linda Bailey, '75, finished the season with a disheartening 2-8 record. The inexperienced team faced tough competition throughout the state, but managed to set back Denison University and Cincinnati Bible College for two morale boosting victories.

First year coach Kathy Hannie commented that although they suffered from inexperience, "all the girls will return next year, and we are optimistic about our chances for a winning team."

The JayVee team, captained by sophomore Kathy Paul, gained experience in six matches as it traveled with the varsity club.

remember the Cassandra program when a secret female voice used to predict the future, including up and coming exam questions. Only she and her cohorts knew that the questions were merely those that certain professors had previously announced in class. But to many students who never paid full attention these questions seemed to be an invaluable miracle.

Although sports programming has been and still is the most popular show, WOBN has made several innovations in programming. Otterbein covered the elections at both the Franklin County and State election press headquarters. WOBN had four students covering every incoming news item.

We now encourage total campus involvement with prime time educational programming. Interviews are used in which we discuss current topics of interest to the Otterbein campus. Thanks to interested alumni and devoted students, WOBN has come a long way from the "gas pipe" of the forties.

1974-75 Affiliate Artist

Dancer/Choreographer Valerie Hammer will present a series of informances on campus and in the Columbus metropolitan area during her 56 days as Otterbein's second Affiliate Artist. Sponsored by the Sears Roebuck Foundation, National Endowment for the Arts and Otterbein College, her appointment is part of a program to deepen public appreciation for the live performing arts while providing professional career development for young performers.

Ms. Hammer will be on campus January 8-26, March 24-April 2, and May 19-June 4. Interested groups and persons may request Ms. Hammer's appearance by contacting Fran Bay, Public Relations Office, Otterbein College.
