Artist Series

The Otterbein Artist Series will feature six attractions this year. The Gregg Smith Singers, one of America's most distinguished choral ensembles will open the season on Wednesday, November 5.

Shirley Verrett, mezzo-soprano who won special acclaim for her interpretation of Carmen with the Metropolitan Opera, will appear in concert on Tuesday, November 18.

Los Indios Tabajaras, virtuoso guitar duo with fifteen years of experience on four continents, will make their initial appearance at Otterbein on Friday, January 16.

Cellist Tsuyoshi Tsutsumi, an exciting instrumentalist with appearances on the Metropolitan Museum of Art's Young Artist Series and with orchestras in the United States, Canada, the Far East and Europe, will present a concert on Wednesday, February 4.

On Friday, February 13, The Canadian Opera Company will perform Rossini's comic love story, "The Barber of Seville." The company, which has toured since 1958, will be accompanied by its own orchestra under the direction of John Fenwick.

The final event of the series will be on Friday, April 10, when The Beaux Arts Trio of New York, acclaimed as the finest chamber music trio in America, comes to the Westerville campus.

All events are held at 8:15 p.m. in Cowan Hall Auditorium.

Season Tickets are currently available by mail order.

College Theatre

Four directors will assist in the 1969-1970 Otterbein theatre season, which features three major dramatic productions, a hit musical and a children's theatre show.

Donald R. Streibig, executive director of the Ohio Arts Council, will be guest director for the season opener, Tennessee Williams' "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof", October 23-24-25.

Mrs. Charles Dodrill ("Petie") will direct "The Prince and the Pauper" on November 21 and 22. Mrs. Dod-rill, who holds an M.A. in theatre from Ohio University, serves as costume designer for all productions in addition to directing an annual children's play and a summer theatre season.

"The World of Carl Sandburg", January 29-30-31, will be directed by senior speech and theatre major, Teri Hiatt. Teri plans to enter professional stage work.

The final two shows of the season will be under the guidance of Director of Theatre, Dr. Charles Dodrill. On March 5, 6, and 7, he will direct the annual guest artist performance, Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night."

The smash Broadway and screen musical, "My Fair Lady," will be presented in association with the department of music, to close the season May 13, 14, 15, and 16. Season tickets are currently available by mail order from Otterbein College Theatre, Westerville, Ohio.

Art Exhibit

First of the monthly art exhibits at the Campus Center will be a show of Rico Lebrun's paintings, drawings, and graphics. Described as "one of the most vigorous and skilled craftsmen this country has produced," Lebrun's drawings force the observer to confront human suffering — the inevitable result of man's inhumanity to man.

The exhibit, which is part of a collection owned by the Lester L. Johnsons of Dayton, is to open on October 5.

Summer Theatre Acclaimed

The campus in summer is no longer the sleepy place it used to be — with scarcely a sound except the screeching of a tot's trike or the chatter of the sparrows high in the tree-tops.

Instead — especially if you pay a visit on a summer evening in July or early August, you'll find a world exciting and full of imagination. For 'tis then that the "pit" of the Campus Center becomes the arena of the Otterbein Summer Theatre — an institution fast assuming a place to be reckoned with, if you believe the critics.

Harold Eisenstein of the Columbus Jewish Center directed "Major Barbara"; John C. Soliday, '62, Ph.D. candidate at the University of Minnesota, directed the hilarious "Thurber Carnival"; and "Petie" Dodrill (Mrs. Charles) won special laurels for her direction of "The Absence of a Celilo." Dr. Charles W. Dodrill, director of theatre at the college, was responsible for "Bus Stop" and "Pursuit of Happiness."

THOSE ANCIENT TOWERS

Ageless — Yet Aging

Today, I walked the Avenue
And, rising high against the sky,
The Towers of Otterbein
Came into view.

It minded me of other days,
When in my youth I spent long hours
Beneath those Towers,
Those Towers of Otterbein.

They still are mine, those red brick walls,
Those dear old halls;
But most of all,
Those Towers of Otterbein.

— Zoe Alexander Horlocker, x'12

The Old Order Changeth . . .

On July 11, an Ohio college president wrote a letter to his constituents to tell them that "Old Main" would be turned over to a wrecking company the following week, and that certain precious parts of the building — the cornerstones and foundation stones, the front entrance pillars and keystones, the clock and bell — would be preserved by the college. Certain other small items would be for sale to alumni and others who would like to have them for sentiment's sake. "Old Main" must go to make room for a new building, but it will never be forgotten.

Another Ohio college lost a beloved chapel during the summer. Writing of the sobering event, the alumni magazine editor wrote:

"Many hearts are going to be broken a little on the morning of June 10. Mine, too, for at that time the dismantling of the Chapel begins." She writes of sacred memories, and wedding vows, and infant baptisms, and says that "each alumnus will have had many personal associations . . . closer ties, ties which have grown from times that have stirred us and determined the course of our future . . . (But) time itself has taken its toll . . . now required is a new structure."

It Can Happen Here!

Probably there is no one now living who remembers the building of Towers Hall (or did you know it as "The Ad Building" — "The Chapel" — "The College"?). It was built in 1872 to replace a building destroyed by fire before it was completed. And so it has been the center of the college for nearly a hundred years. Here was the elegance of the "society halls," here the classrooms where we listened to many of our favorite teachers, here for many years the president's office and the offices where we paid our bills and picked up our grades, here the chapel where for three quarters of a century we caught the spirit of a church-related college in daily chapel exercises. This for years was the center of the community — lectures and concerts, debates and plays, the awarding of diplomas, the valedictories.

Of Days Gone By and Years To Come

In old Towers Hall today — if we but take the time to see and hear — are the ghosts of former years, the forms of those who walk this way no longer, the memories of precious hours that helped to shape the lives of those who call themselves by the name of Otterbein.

But if we look more closely, we cannot deny the ravages of time. Just as our own steps must begin to falter as we grow older, just as our eyesight dims, just as our aches and pains grow more pronounced, and just as we must eventually outgrow our earthly bodies, so too must a building outlive its usefulness.

The trustees of Otterbein are concerned not only with the past but with the future — they must ever be making long-range plans for the fulfillment of the purpose for which the college was founded — to benefit "the Church and all mankind." One of the concerns for this future is the decision that must soon be made about Towers Hall.

Of Dollars and Dreams

Woodrow Macke, Vice President for Business Affairs, has reported to the trustees that if Towers Hall is to be saved, it will cost $1,970,000 for remodeling. A new roof alone (which is a necessity) would cost more than $40,000. Other absolute needs within the next few years would include completely new electrical, plumbing, heating, ventilating and air conditioning systems; the remodeling of all interior room space, including the lowering of ceilings, replastering, reflooring, redecorating; the addition of a new stairway and/or elevators, which would be required in a newly remodeled building by building code; replacing old entrances; under-pinning of the entire foundation of the building, which would involve difficult section-by-section excavation and replacement of foundation blocks; and the re-building of the towers themselves!

What should be done? Towers Hall is part of our heritage as alumni. But is it the crumbling plaster which we hold in our hearts? Is it the leaking roof? Or the drafty classrooms, cold in winter, too hot to use in summer? Or the long trek to the once-magnificent literary society halls where only the memories linger — for those who still remember?

Or do we hold more precious still the memory of our youth, our young dreams, our loves, our passion to build a better world, the essence of Otterbein?

How do you feel about Towers Hall? What do you think Otterbein should do — re-build the old to help to keep alive the memories of those of earlier years? Or build a new and better "Towers" in which the dreams of future students can be born?

Zoe Horlocker speaks for many of us when she writes

"... of other days,
When in my youth I spent long hours
Beneath those Towers,
Those Towers of Otterbein."

How can we best build "The Towers" of the future?

E. B.

HOW DO YOU FEEL ABOUT IT?

Would you favor spending approximately two million dollars to "preserve" Towers Hall for posterity? Or do you think the same amount of money would be put to better use to build a new building designed specifically to meet the educational needs of present and future generations of students?

The trustees and administrative officers of Otterbein would sincerely appreciate your expression of opinion. You may write to President Lynn W. Turner; Mr. Woodrow Macke, vice president for business affairs; or to Dr. Harold Boda of Dayton, chairman of the Board of Trustees.

former Methodist missionaries who had served in Burma.

Pictured on this page is one example of African tribal art from Sierra Leone, which is now a part of the collection of Otterbein College. This Bundu mask and others were assembled at Otterbein many years ago by Professor Emeritus E. W. E. Schear, '07, for their ethnological significance.

From the turn of the century when such works were recognized by Picasso, Braque, Gris and other masters of modern art for their artistic worth, interest in African tribal art has been steadily increasing.

Otterbein has elected to develop the nucleus of the African tribal art collection which Professor Schear began. Our connections with Sierra Leone through the years, the potential gifts of tribal art from missionaries who have served in Africa, and the general desirability of learning more about Negro history further influenced our choice of focus for this educational collection.

Many Otterbein alumni and friends have visited or worked in Sierra Leone or Nigeria, and surely there are fine examples of African art in this wider Otterbein community. We frankly hope that if you have such works in your possession, you will consider the possibility of sharing in the building of this educational collection of African tribal art. We would be happy to talk with you about it.

Kress Foundation Supports Consortium in Art

The art department of Otterbein College and the departments of four other colleges in central Ohio have formed a consortium and have received Kress Foundation support to improve the art history programs of the member schools. The program being developed during the past three years has several thrusts. In one program, the most immediate solution was the hiring of European art historians for circuit teaching in their own special areas.

A longer range program is the development of proctored courses. These courses utilizing tapes, slides, films and original art works offer a wealth of material which students study, for the most part independently, at their own pace. The teacher's time is freed from routine teaching, enabling him to concentrate on developing a rich multi-media introductory program and discussion sessions in which the interests of the group are explored. The first such course offered was in meso-American art. The second, being developed at present and to be taught in the Spring of 1970, is in African tribal art.

To prepare this course one faculty member from each school was given a Kress grant in the summer of 1969. The group has been involved in individual study and seminar sessions. Earl Hassenpflug, chairman of the art department at Otterbein, utilized his grant to travel to New York, West Africa, Paris and London. Each stop afforded the opportunity to study major museum collections of African art and to make some purchases. The faculty participants in the study are now combining their efforts in organizing the course.

A third thrust of the Kress Foundation grant is the development of a museum collection with a focus on one specific area in each of the schools. Sharing the collections between the schools will provide a rich variety of original study material for students in all five colleges.

Denison University has led with the development of a magnificent collection of Burmese art assembled during the past five years, largely as a result of gifts from

Proclaimed as Science Year

Dedication on April 24

Otterbein College is celebrating the completion of the new Science Center by proclaiming 1969-70 as Science Year. Dedication ceremonies will be held on Friday, April 24, on the Founders' Day weekend. (This is a change from the Homecoming date which was announced originally.)

Emeriti to be Honored

At the time of the dedication, special honors will be conferred on emeritus faculty members of the division of science and mathematics. Emeritus Professors Fred Bamforth, A. J. Esselstyn, Benjamin Glover, Lyle Michael, James McCloy and E. W. E. Schear have taught for a total of 192 years at Otterbein, an average of 32 years each.

Speakers and Open House

Several convocation and seminar speakers of wide acclaim in their fields will address the student body on the relevance and significance of science in the curriculum and in the world of the future. These special events will take place throughout the year, and alumni and other friends are welcome to attend.

The April 24 Dedication Day will provide the opportunity for visiting the new science facilities. There will be open house in the two new buildings, with guided tours and live demonstrations depicting campus scientific activities. The dedication committee, headed by Dr. Jeanne Willis of the life and earth sciences department, urges you to mark the date on your calendar and plan to participate in this significant day in the history of Otterbein.

Remodeled McFadden Included In Dedication

Included in the facilities to be dedicated are the "new" science building, originally conceived as an "addition" to the older building and connected to it, and the completely remodeled McFadden Hall. Classes were held in the new structure during the remodeling of McFadden, and the entire complex is now in use. The center provides classrooms, laboratories and offices for the departments of chemistry, life and earth sciences, physics, mathematics and psychology. A number of the classrooms and the lecture hall are also used by other departments of the college.

Details of the various events of Science Year will be announced soon.

Seventeen New Members Appointed To Faculty

Seventeen new members have joined the Otterbein faculty for the coming year. The faculty now numbers 103, with 95 full-time and eight part-time.

The new members are: Dr. Theodore C. Burrowes, assistant professor of mathematics, from the University of Oregon; Gary E. Coburn, assistant professor of English, from The Ohio State University; Diana Craft Ford, instructor in health and physical education, from Ohio Northern University; Jerry E. Ginn, assistant professor of foreign languages (French), from The Ohio State University; Jerrold D. Hopfengardner, assistant professor of education, from the Ohio Department of Education.

Also, Dr. Shirley S. L. Lui, assistant professor of psychology, from the University of Massachusetts; Roger G. McMurrin, instructor in music, from The Ohio State University; Dr. H. Keith Miller, assistant professor of life science, from the Ohio Department of Health; Ruth Hartzell Rentz, assistant professor of foreign languages (German) from the University of Colorado; Margaret E. Sayers, assistant professor of foreign languages (continued on page 8)

Committees Study Governance

(Spanish), from The Ohio State University; Lt. Col. Dallas K. Stephens, professor of aerospace studies, from duty in Vietnam.

Also Joanne Miller Stichweh, '67, instructor in visual arts, from The Ohio State University; Dr. Christopher H. Stowell, assistant professor of foreign languages (Spanish), from the College of Wooster; Roland T. Williams, instructor in English, from Indiana University; Dr. James E. Winkates, assistant professor of government, from the University of Virginia.

Part-time instructors are Geraldine Kettell Antoine (Spanish) and Phyllis Brooks Rogers (home economics).

Changes in the administrative staff include the following: Marcia Rumbaugh, member of the alumni and development staff since 1962, has been named to the newly created post of acquisitions librarian. She is a graduate of the College of Wooster. John Dickey is the new director of the campus center; William Tosh is director of data processing; and Bryan Snyder is a new assistant in the student personnel office. Alice Kay Jenkins, '67, also a student personnel staff member, has now been named director of women's housing.

"Reason to Rap"

Jerrold Hopfengardner, newly-appointed assistant professor of education, is the author of "Reason to Rap," which appears in the September OHIO PARENT TEACHER. The article suggests closer cooperation between the PTA and its school, emphasizing the unique position of school counselors in facilitating this collaboration.

The new faculty member has written a number of articles and other publications in connection with his work with the Ohio Department of Education, many of them in the area of guidance.

Mr. Hopfengardner received his B.S. degree from the University of Dayton in 1959; his M.Ed. from Miami University in 1961, and is now a Ph.D. candidate at The Ohio State University.

President Lynn W. Turner and Professor Harold Hancock have given us the following progress report from the committee on campus governance. Its proposals are still under study.

All over the country, colleges and universities are changing their traditional forms of government, in which trustees operated like absentee landlords, looking briefly at the behavior of the tenants but chiefly at the figures for income and expenditures; the faculty made all the rules for the classroom; the administrators tried to hold everything together; and the students debated the respective merits of inviting a rock group or a jazz combo to the campus. Some of the changes have been quite radical — others very superficial. Some have been made under extreme pressure, some quite hurriedly in order to stave off revolution, and some as a result of revolution. But the direction of change is everywhere the same — toward giving faculty, and even more especially students, a genuine voice in the government of the institutions.

At Otterbein, the recommendation for change has come from within rather than from without, and the plans have proceeded with "deliberate speed," rather than in revolutionary fashion. At the beginning of the school year, 1968-69, after stating his concurrence with the trend toward wider participation in his opening addresses to faculty and students, President Turner appointed an ad hoc committee on college governance, which reported its findings to the Board of Trustees, the Faculty, and the Student Senate in October.

Alumni Included

Dr. Harold Boda then, in compliance with a resolution of the Board, appointed a Committee on Governance, consisting of Dr. James V. Miller, vice president for academic affairs; Dr. Roy Turley, professor of chemistry; L. William Steck, '37, trustee; Mrs. William Skaates (Sarah Rose, '56), alumna; Mr. Steve Spurgeon, president of the Student Senate; and President Lynn W. Turner.

This committee met ten times during the remainder of the year and produced a nine-page report which was submitted to the Faculty and the Student Senate in May, and the Trustees in June. The committee recommended a thorough-going reform of college government, based principally upon the replacement of the present Faculty and Student Senate as legislative bodies by a single, 21-member College Senate, on which faculty, administrators, students, trustees, and alumni would be represented. This plan would, in effect, replace confrontation and duplication of action in the present bi-cameral or tri-cameral system with the unified policy-making decisions of a uni-cameral legislative body.

Faculty Committee Suggests Changes

In June, the faculty requested each of its five divisions to appoint two members, along with Vice President Miller, to a committee to consider the governance proposal. Ten meetings were held during the summer, and deliberations are still in progress. Students were also invited and attended the meetings. This faculty committee has evolved a plan which differs considerably from the recommendations of the Committee on Governance.

Two legislative bodies would be established, one to be composed mostly of faculty members but with some students and administrators to be concerned mainly with academic affairs. The other body would be composed mostly of students, but would include some faculty members and administrators, to be concerned mainly with non-academic affairs. Students, faculty, and administrators would serve on all committees, in varying proportions, and the present number of standing committees would be reduced.

Whether a complete revision of the committee and "council" structure of the college will result will depend upon decisions of the student body, the Trustees and the Faculty. In the opinion of your editor, each group will be deliberate in its actions and will consider the best interests of the students. When studies have been completed and new plans of governance are adopted, TOWERS will keep its readers informed.

OFIC Sets Record

Otterbein received $48,535 as its share of business contributions through the Ohio Foundation of Independent Colleges for the fiscal year ended May 31. Gifts through OFIC in its eighteenth year set another new record totaling $1,672,490 from 1,979 contributions.

Otterbein's latest check brings to $578,375 the total received through OFIC since the organization was formed. This year's payment is estimated by President Turner to be equal to the return on an endowment of slightly more than $1 million.

The Ohio Foundation now includes 34 accredited colleges. Each corporate gift is divided among members 60 per cent equally, and 40 per cent according to enrollment, unless a donor specifies otherwise.

Gifts distributed among member colleges since OFIC started in 1951 now total $18,034,079. The majority of corporate contributions are used for improvement of faculty salaries, OFIC colleges report.

Library Receives Grant

John Becker, '50, librarian, announces that the college is the recipient of a $6,529 Library Resources Program Grant under Title II of the Higher Education Act of 1965, Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The federal funds will be used for the purchase of books and microfilms to complement the new 3/3 curriculum, emphasizing independent study for juniors and seniors.

"Effective learning in such a program demands that the library collection have adequate size and quality from the beginning," Mr. Becker said, "and a continued stress be placed on the addition of new material as a long-range policy."

To Teach In Kobe

Mrs. Lillian Frank, associate professor of art at Otterbein College, has taken a one-year leave of absence to teach the History of Western Art at Kobe College, Japan. She will lecture in English while studying the Japanese language, and will gather materials for a course in Japanese art to be taught at Otterbein.

George H. Dunlap Scholarship Established

A new scholarship has been established at Otterbein by the Nationwide Foundation, to be awarded annually to students majoring in business administration or social services or both.

Candidates for the $1,000 scholarship will be judged by the Scholarship Committee on the basis of financial needs, character and proven qualities of leadership. The award may be divided between two students or awarded entirely to one student.

The grant is named in honor of George H. Dunlap, general chairman and chief executive officer of the Nationwide organization and a trustee-at-large of Otterbein College since 1964. He serves on the college's Budget Control and Executive Committees.

Mr. Dunlap started his association with the Nationwide organization in 1939 when, at the age of 33, he was elected to the Board of Directors. In 1964 he was elected president of Nationwide Corporation. He was named general chairman and chief executive officer last April.

Crusade Progressing for Library and Scholarships

Chester Turner, '43, director of church relations, has given us a report on the progress of the Otterbein College Crusade among the former Evangelical United Brethren churches.

The crusade has two objectives, both of which are of special interest to alumni, parents and other friends of the college.

The following goals have been established: $1,064,000 to complete the amount needed for a new college library, and $536,000 for financial aid to United Methodist students.

The college is most grateful to all who have given so generously of their money and their pledges to the crusade (it is a four-year program), and to those who have given countless hours of help in the organization and solicitation.

Churches in the Florida, Tennessee, West Virginia, Ohio East and Ohio Miami Conferences have conducted campaigns, and those in the Ohio Sandusky and Ohio Southeast Conferences are now in progress. A campaign in Erie Conference has been scheduled for the spring of 1970.

Others Contribute

In addition to the church campaign, members of the faculty, of the Otterbein Women's Club, and other generous individuals have made contributions to the fund for the new library.

Mrs. George Henderson, Thrift Shop chairman and honorary alumna, presents Gutenberg Bible facsimile to President Turner.

Famous Bible Presented to College

A two-volume Gutenberg Bible facsimile has been presented to the Otterbein College Centennial Library marking its 100,000th acquisition.

The Cooper Square 42-line Gutenberg Bible is a facsimile edition of the first complete evidence of the success of movable type created by Johann Gutenberg between the years of 1450 and 1455, and contains accurate reproductions of the finest medieval illuminations in existence. The Bible will be a part of the Otterbein Room collection.

The new edition of the revered cornerstone of Western printing is derived from the only other facsimile ever reproduced, the 1913-14 edition by Insel-Verlag. Only 47 copies of the original Gutenberg Bible are known to exist in the world today.

The Gutenberg volumes were donated by the Otterbein Women's Club, which has contributed over $5,500 to the library since 1965. Of this amount, $3,000 was given for the purchase of 450 books and $2,500 was raised for the library building project. Last January, the club presented a 54-volume set of Luther's Works in memory of the late Helen Ensor Smith, '18, member and former president of the club.

Ginter Named Conductor

The Columbus Symphony Orchestra management has announced the appointment of Anthony Ginter to the post of conductor of the Symphony Youth Orchestra.

Ginter, now in his fifth year as assistant professor of music at Otterbein, was born and educated in Canada, is a graduate of the Royal Conservatory of Music and holds a master's degree from Indiana University. He was a violinist with the Toronto Symphony for seven years and performed with the Hart House Chamber Orchestra.

He has been associate conductor of the Columbus Symphony Youth Orchestra for the past two years, and is a member of the first violin section of the Columbus Symphony.

Choir Travels In Europe

The Otterbein A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Richard Chamberlain, toured a number of European cities during the summer, including London, Paris, Amsterdam, Cologne, Berlin, Munich, Lucerne, Innsbruck, Graz and Salzburg.

The group, augmented by several alumni, sang in churches and theaters and were entertained by local churches in most areas. Members of the choir are grateful to Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Bettler, Mr. Roger Powell and the late Mrs. F. O. Clements, whose gifts helped to make the tour possible.

Students Study Abroad

Forty-six Otterbein students will study abroad this year. Six will study at Strasbourg, France; eight at the Centro De Estudios, Segovia, Spain; seven at Stuttgart and Tuebingen universities in Germany; five at Basel, Switzerland; two aboard the SS Ryn-dam in the World Campus Afloat; and eighteen will be in Sierra Leone during the winter term in the new program sponsored by the department of education.

Faculty On Study Tour

Mrs. Mildred Stauffer, assistant professor of education, was one of two Otterbein faculty members who participated during the summer in a West African Study Tour sponsored by the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education.

Earl Hassenpflug was another member of the tour, under a grant by the faculty fellowship committee of the Kress Consortium in Art History. (See "Otterbein Collecting African Art" on page 6).

Mrs. Stauffer studied the structure of selected African educational systems and programs and participated in a series of seminars with African educational leaders. She also arranged final details of a pilot program in comparative education for prospective teachers in Sierra Leone.

Under the pilot program, fifteen education students and a faculty member will spend the 1970 winter term in Sierra Leone pursuing independent study and methods of teaching.

India and China To be Studied

Three faculty members have been accepted in the China-India Studies Program of the Regional Council for International Education for the coming year. They are Melencio Cua, assistant professor of business administration; Dr. Jung Young Lee, assistant professor of religion and philosophy; and Dr. James E. Winkates, assistant professor of government.

Four three-day faculty institute programs have been planned on "The Cultural and Intellectual Framework of Chinese and Indian Life," with each member expected to participate fully in all sessions. The institutes will be held at Punderson Manor House, Cleveland.

Otterbein faculty members have been active in the RCIE for the past several years, with members of various academic departments participating.

The center is named in honor of the late Colonel and Mrs. Gustav Hirsch of Columbus in recognition of the benefaction of their daughter, Miss Irene Hirsch, who has made Otterbein the beneficiary of a deferred gift in the form of a life insurance policy.

The new clinic, located on West Home Street near the Campus Center, contains four doctors' examination rooms, a main treatment room, nurses' quarters, four two-bed infirmary rooms, kitchen, business office, nursing office and reception room.

Four Honored For Service

Four friends of Otterbein were honored by the college Alumni Association on Alumni Day, June 14.

Forest Moreland, print shop foreman since 1947, and Dr. Harold Hancock, chairman of the department of history and government and member of the faculty since 1944, were designated as Honorary Alumni in appreciation of meritorious service to the college and her alumni. Mack Grimes, president of the Alumni Association, made the awards. Mr. Moreland was presented for the award by Craig Gifford, '57, and Doctor Hancock was presented by John Becker, '50.

Dr. Wade S. Miller, retiring vice president for development and public relations, was given a special Distinguished Service Award in recognition of twenty-seven years of service to the college. Doctor Miller is an honorary alumnus of Otterbein, and holds an honorary doctor of divinity degree from his alma mater, Lebanon Valley College. He received the citation from Otterbein President Lynn W. Turner.

Horace W. Troop, '23, Judge of the Tenth District Court of Appeals, was presented the Distinguished Alumnus Award, the highest honor an Otterbein alumnus can receive, in recognition of outstanding service to his community, his church, and his college. His son, Horace William Troop, Jr., '50, prepared and read the citation for his father.

Alumni Club Activities

"O" Club News

The ever-active "O" Club has completed a number of campus projects for which sports fans will be grateful. The following projects were sponsored jointly by the Club and the college and were financed from club dues and the sale of reserved seats to football and basketball games.

Alumni Gymnasium has taken on a "new front" with the addition of four glass doors and glass paneling with aluminum frames.

The stadium press box has been enclosed with glass sliding windows framed in aluminum. According to D. C. Ballenger, '39, club president, the completion of these two projects brings the total contribution of the club to more than $38,000 in the past ten years.

The "O" Club has also donated new flags to the music department for the Cardinal Marching Band and the drill team. Club officer "Dubbs" Roush, '46, has also donated a new large American flag in the name of the club.

Football Squad Honored At Kick-Off Dinner

A hundred eighty attended the thirteenth annual "O" Club Football Kick-Off Dinner on September 3 at the Indian Run Golf Course Dining Room. The coaching staff and the squad were honored guests, with Clare Nutt, '31, originator of the dinner, serving as chairman.

Homecoming Plans Announced

The fourteenth annual "O" Club Homecoming Dinner will be held at 5:30 on October 25 at the Campus Center. The agenda will include the presentation of the awards and election of officers.

Continuing Education Seminar Set For October 10-11

Alumni Association President Helen Knight Williams, '43, has announced the subject of the Continuing Education Seminar on October 10 and 11 as "The Creative College in the Expanding Universe."

Key-note address of the Friday evening session will be given by Larry Cox, instructor in psychology at Otterbein, and will focus on "Encounter with Reality."

Phil Barnhart, assistant professor of physics and astronomy, and William Amy, associate professor of religion, will share the Saturday morning meetings, when they will speak on "Astronomy — The New Revolution in Science" and "The East is Not the West."

Prospective Students Welcome On Campus

High School Day on the campus is scheduled for October 4 and for April 18. Prospective students should plan to visit the campus on these special days if possible. They are welcome, however, at any time, according to Michael Kish, director of admissions.

Whether you plan to bring high school students for a special event or on some other occasion, please write to the admissions office (or call) to be sure that arrangements will be made especially for them. Visitors will be taken on tours of the campus and someone from the office will be available to answer questions, if these arrangements are made in advance.

One Otterbein Family

"Sales success is built on customer service. This is the philosophy of L. William Steck, who exemplifies this principle to a greater degree than anyone in the company." So states Harold Crone, manager of Mark Securities, Inc., called by Bill Steck, '37, "my boss."

Mr. Crone is highly complimentary of Mrs. Steck (Sara Kathryn Kelser, '37) as well. "Proud of her husband," he says of her, "Sally Steck is also an efficient home-front sales manager, and that is exactly what we call her, as she takes Bill's calls and assists with his schedule. Mark Securities is indeed proud of this fine sales team."

Mr. Steck serves as sales representative for the fifteen counties of the central Ohio area, marketing Landmark's stocks and debentures and Mutual Investing Foundation's mutual funds. He is the company's leading sales representative, and when the "Millionaires Club" was founded last year, he and his wife became charter members, indicating the sale of $1,000,000 worth of securities in one year. He has already reached that goal in 1969.

He was the recipient of the 1968-69 Distinguished Sales Award of the Columbus Sales Executive Club, an organization of twenty companies from all over the country, based in Ohio.

Bill has been with the Landmark organization (formerly Ohio Farm Bureau Cooperative) for approximately twenty years, and was formerly a member of the Otterbein faculty.

In the meantime, he has served as mayor of Westerville for seventeen years, attending council meetings, representing the city at ribbon-cutting ceremonies, holding court (he is generally known to mete out the maximum fine in cases of "driving under the influence"), and helping with the long-range plans of the fast-growing city.

Sunday services at the Church of the Messiah (former Methodist) would not be complete without the Steck family, where Sally sings in the choir, Bill has a number of important responsibilities, and their children are active in young people's activities.

Bill has just been re-elected for his fourth five-year term on the Otterbein Board of Trustees, and serves on the Development Board. The whole family lends enthusiastic support to all college activities — witness all football and basketball contests.

The past year has been an unusually exciting one for Sally, as she was named "Mrs. Westerville" at the 1968 Westerville Fair, and has served in many extra-curricular capacities in this role. She is a member of the Otterbein Women's Club and is active in the work of its Thrift Shop.

The three Steck children are also part of the "Otterbein family." Fred, a 1969 graduate of the college, has started a National Science Foundation traineeship for graduate study leading to a Ph.D. at Michigan State University. The grant provides an average of $2,600 a year for three years, plus fees and tuition. Fred plans to study forest ecology in the department of forestry.

Katrina is a sophomore at Otterbein, and spends her vacations working in the alumni-development office. Gretchen is a freshman, and was the recipient of the Westerville Otterbein Women's Club Scholarship, which is given annually to an outstanding graduate of Westerville High School.

Receives NSF Grant To Write History

Carl M. Becker

Carl M. Becker, '49, is one of three members of the history faculty of Wright State University who have received a grant of $24,300 for the first phase of a cooperative project on the history of Dayton from 1850 to 1950. The grant from the National Science Foundation is to support the first year of what is expected to be a three year effort.

In their proposal to the NSF, the three historians said that such a study would provide an unusually worthwhile challenge as a case study in urban history. Dayton's growth, they said, was different from that of similar cities, partially because it was more of an inbred growth, rather than as a result of great migration to the city.

It is also considered significant that the city's industrial leaders were allied with the political and religious leadership of the community in developing innovative programs for meeting a variety of the city's problems, such as flood control and governmental structure.

The first phase of the work will involve inventory and evaluation of all available materials, both published and unpublished, the writing of the history to be the second phase.

The three faculty members have different specialties. Becker is a student of economic and technological history; Paul G. Merriam will be responsible for statistical detail; and Jacob H. Dorn's field is primarily social, religious and cultural.

Mr. Becker has already published several works about Dayton history, particularly during the Civil War. Carl and his wife Marilou, sp '48, and their family live in Miamisburg.

Robert C. Koettel

Studies Changes in Students' Sense of Values

The problems of youth were uppermost in the Ph.D. study of Robert C. Koettel, '64. His dissertation topic at The Ohio State University, where he received the degree in June, was "Changes in Value Orientation during Four Years of College and the Relationship between Value Orientation and Interpersonal Atmospheres." He specialized in the study of adolescent psychology, and taught courses in educational psychology at the university and in developmental psychology in the nursing education department of Children's Hospital.

After spending the summer in Europe, he and his wife (Bonne Wurgler, '65) have established residence in Las Vegas, Nevada, where Koettel has joined the faculty of the psychology department at the University of Southern Nevada.

Ecumenism Is Topic Of Doctoral Study

Thomas E. Dipko

When Thomas E. Dipko, '58, received the Doctor of Philosophy degree in theology from Boston University last May, it was on the basis of a topic of much interest to today's theologians and laymen: "Denominational Ecumenism: The Doctrine of the One Church in Selected Church School Curricula."

Doctor Dipko was a magna cum laude graduate of United Seminary in 1961, and was ordained by the Western Pennsylvania Conference (E.U.B.) in that year.

During his graduate study, he has served as minister of the First United Methodist Church, East Conemaugh, Pennsylvania; assistant minister of First Church, Congregational, Swampscott, Massachusetts; assistant minister of South United Church of Christ, Andover, Massachusetts; and as graduate assistant in the department of ecumenics of Boston University. During a year of study abroad, he earned the certificate of the Graduate School of Ecumenical Studies of the University of Geneva, Switzerland.

He currently serves as interim minister of All Souls United Church of Christ in Lowell, Massachusetts. He and his wife Sandra have two daughters and live in Lowell.

David Norris

Assigned to Europe By IBM

David Norris, '61, has been promoted to European operations by International Business Machines, and serves as a large scale computer consultant, assigned to the Shell Oil Company's computer network. He is based in The Hague, Netherlands, where the Shell Oil computer center is located, and travels extensively to other areas.

His duties include the teaching of computer classes as new installations are made throughout the continent.

Dave joined IBM in 1964 as a systems engineer in Columbus, where he was responsible for large-scale computer installations in the central Ohio area. He has done graduate work at the University of Chicago and the University of Wisconsin, and counts traveling as an important hobby. He has spent several vacations in Europe and last year took a photographic safari in Africa, taking movies and slides. He is something of a stereo "bug" and likes sailing. Prior to leaving for The Hague, he was "going through the chairs" of Masonry, is a member of Kiwanis, and has been active in Pi Kappa Phi alumni work.

Steven Lorenz

New Chief Executive Of Publishing Firm

We spent a most enjoyable evening recently reading the autobiography of Dr. Edmund S. Lorenz, '80, founder of the Lorenz Music Publishing Company in Dayton. The Lorenz family has long been closely connected with the former United Brethren Church, and Doctor Lorenz was a minister before going into the field of popular Sunday School, hymnal and anthem composing and publishing.

The autobiography was a shortened version of a much longer life story of a "patriarch" of years gone by, and is a charmingly told revelation of the struggles and successes of one of Otterbein's well known and respected alumni. It was excerpted and given to the college by Mrs. J. Balmer Showers, a daughter of Doctor Lorenz, and was appended by a tribute written by Ellen Jane Lorenz Porter, his granddaughter, former music editor of the company, who also did the typing of the 117-page manuscript.

The autobiography was given to Otterbein at the request of Dr. Robert Price, curator of the Otterbein Room, and John Becker, '50, librarian. Mrs. Showers gave a large collection of her father's publications last year. These are also a part of the Otterbein Room collection.

A fourth-generation descendant of the company founder has now been named chief executive officer of the Lorenz Publishing Company. He is Steven R. Lorenz, '64, one of three partners in the company. Steven recently has been graduated from Harvard Business School with a P. M. D. degree (Program for Management Development). During the course he was elected to the Executive Council and was made chairman of the year book committee.

The P. M. D. course is designed for men presently in middle management, who are trained as general managers in order that they may be tapped for top management positions. It is planned to give knowledge and some experience in all areas of business. A student must be sponsored by his company, which pays all expenses for the sixteen-week training period.

The publishing company now has three separate divisions — Sacred Music Press, Heritage Music Press, and the Lorenz Printing Company.

The new chief executive officer is married to an Otterbein classmate, the former Marilyn L. Shute.

Dan Harris Is Visiting Professor

The University of Miami (Florida) School of Music has announced the appointment of Dr. Daniel A. Harris, '23, as visiting professor of voice in the department of applied music.

In addition to his A. B. degree, Otterbein conferred the honorary Doctor of Music degree on Mr. Harris in 1939. Prior to his teaching career, he gave opera performances as a baritone in Italy, France, and Belgium for eight years. He appeared later with the Cincinnati Summer Opera, the St. Louis Opera, the Chicago City Opera, and the Metropolitan Opera Company, and was soloist with the National Orchestra Association, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra.

Doctor Harris prepared the biographic articles on singers for the 1962 edition of World Book Encyclopedia. In 1966 he served as language coach for the Metropolitan National Opera Company and in 1967 worked in the same capacity with the American National Opera Company. He is a professor emeritus of the Oberlin Conservatory of Music.

New Manager Of Corrosion Lab

Wilber W. Kirk

Wilber W. Kirk, '54, has been promoted from supervisor to manager of the Marine Corrosion Research Laboratory of the International Nickel Company in Wrightsville Beach, North Carolina. After graduation from Otterbein, Mr. Kirk served in the U. S. Army Security Agency, with one year being spent in Eritrea. He attended graduate school at The Ohio State University, receiving the M. S. degree in metallurgical engineering in 1959. He was a staff engineer with Bettis Atomic Power Laboratory from 1958 to 1962 and has been with International Nickel since that time.

In his present capacity he is responsible for the company's marine research programs and the total operation of the laboratory. He also directs the activities of the Sea Horse Institute and hosts its annual meeting, which provides a forum for an exchange of information concerning marine corrosion and biodeterioration problems associated with the world's oceans.

Mr. Kirk is a member of a number of technical societies, and he and his wife (Dolores Tomer, x'56) are active in the Wrightsville United Methodist Church. Dolores is president of the WSCS, has taught a Sunday School class for seven years, and is a member of the Administrative Board, the Commission on Education and the Altar Guild. Wilber's church activities include membership and past chairmanship of the Administrative Board, three-year membership on the Finance Committee, lay leadership for three years, presidency of the Young Adult Sunday School Class and singing in the church choir.

Dolores has been a Brownie Scout Leader for two years, assists in Cub Scout Work and in project work with the Wilmington Women's Club. Wilber is an active committeeman for the Greater Wilmington Chamber of Commerce and works for the development of marine resources along the coast. The Kirks have four children, ages seven to twelve.

Named Technical Director At General Motors

Donald J. Henry

The appointment of Donald J. Henry, '33, as one of four technical directors of General Motors Research Laboratories has been announced by Dr. Paul F. Chenea, GM vice president in charge of the corporation's research laboratories. Otterbein alumni will recall that the first technical director of the laboratories was also an Otterbein graduate, the late distinguished Dr. Frank O. Clements, '96.

In his new position, Mr. Henry is responsible for the Materials Sciences departments, which consist of Chemistry, Fuels & Lubricants, Metallurgical Engineering, and Polymers.

He joined the Research Laboratories in 1937, and has devoted more than thirty years to the advancement of heat treatment processes, precision casting methods and general foundry technology. In 1943, he was placed in charge of the heat treat section, and helped as senior engineer to put shell molding on a production basis in General Motors foundries.

In 1950 Mr. Henry was made assistant head of the Metallurgical Engineering Department, and in 1962, became head of that department. Years of research and development work under his leadership led in 1968 to the introduction of microwave heating systems in two GM divisions. Also used for the first time in 1968 was an M-930 aluminum-lead alloy which he helped develop.

Mr. Henry was awarded the Master of Science degree in 1937 from The Ohio State University. He is a registered professional engineer, and the author of a number of patents relating to metallurgical materials and processes. He has made technical presentations before many chapters of the American Society for Metals and American Foundrymen's Society.

The new director is a member of Sigma Xi and Alpha Sigma Mu honor societies, and belongs to the American Society for Metals; National Society for Professional Engineers; Engineering Society of Detroit; American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers; American Foundrymen's Society; Society of Automotive Engineers; and the Michigan Association of the Professions.

Information Needed For Science Year

While the college is celebrating Science Year, TOWERS would like to gather as much information as possible on Otterbein graduates who are in careers related to science and mathematics and to give special recognition to them. We have found that many of the men and women who are serving their fellowmen with sacrifice and distinction are too busy or too modest to permit their names to be used. It will be a great service to the college, however, if you will help us collect data in which the true image of Otterbein may be seen.

We see this image as one of service to humanity, of integrity, of true dedication to the verities which science attempts to discover and reaffirm. Please help us by supplying information about yourself and/or your friends or relatives in the field.

Roy Bowen Honored

In an unprecedented gesture of appreciation and affection, The Ohio State University College of Arts dedicated the entire 1969 Stadium Theatre season to Dr. Roy Bowen, '33, its director and one of its founders, and member of The Ohio State University faculty.

In addition to directing Stadium Theatre productions, Roy conducted a summer seminar in contemporary British drama, and relaxed at his hobby, rose gardening. Roy and his wife Addie are the parents of a daughter, who was recently married in Paris, where she is studying at the Sorbonne.

According to Sara Wisheart, COLUMBUS DISPATCH columnist who devoted more than a page of the Sunday paper to the Bowens, one wall of his study is covered with scrolls and plaques in recognition of his work. Roy is proudest of the impressive thanks from the Columbus Players Club with which he was associated as director for ten years, and of the honor accorded him by Stadium Theatre this year.

In September, Roy plans to lead a theatre tour to London, where students will visit the Edinboro Festival and tour the current theatre circuit.

Thomas H. Wonderling

Head Baseball Coach At Austin Peay

Tom Wonderling, former assistant baseball coach at Bowling Green State University, has been named head baseball coach at Austin Peay State University in Clarksville, Tennessee.

Tom started coaching in 1963 while a student at Lindsey Wilson Junior College. He later was an assistant football and basketball coach and head baseball coach at Columbus Ready High School for two years, where he had a 48-26 won-lost record in baseball, including the Central Catholic League championship in 1967. His 1968 team was second in the league.

During seven years in Columbus, Tom was instrumental in developing sandlot baseball in the Pony League and the Babe Ruth League, with 244 wins against only 34 losses for a fantastic .871 won-lost percentage. In 1964, at the age of 21, he was the youngest coach in the history of Babe Ruth League baseball to take a team to the world series. His team finished third in the series. In 1965 and 1966 his Babe Ruth squad won the Ohio state titles.

The new coach received his associate of arts degree from Lindsey Wilson Junior College in 1965, the bachelor of science in education from Otterbein in the summer of 1967, the master of education from Xavier University in 1968, and the specialist in education degree from Bowling Green State University in August of this year.

Charles Kuralt Re-Visits Otterbein

Charles Kuralt and his roving team from CBS TV network paid a second visit to Westerville within the past two years — this time to discuss apples!

The newsmen visited Dr. Robert Price to quiz the Otterbein professor about the legendary Johnny Appleseed (1774-1845) and his historic appleseed plantings. Kuralt has been using Dr. Price's book, Johnny Appleseed: Man and Myth, as a guide in his assignment on the man.

The Johnny Appleseed segment will be shown soon on CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite (6:30-7:00 p.m.).

The CBS team originally drove their motor-bus into Westerville in 1967 to film the career-story of 87-year-old Dr. J. F. Smith, professor emeritus of speech. A poignant post-script to the "Prof. Smith Story" occurred when the CBS team revisited the professor — this time at the Westerville Convalescent Center, where he is seriously ill.

Communications Committee Makes Recommendations

A second committee appointed by the Board of Trustees during the past year is one to improve communications between alumni and the campus community.

One of the recommendations being made by this committee at the next meeting of the trustees is for an increase in the frequency of publications for alumni, to include a newsletter several times a year to supplement the quarterly TOWERS bulletin.

A second recommendation is for the inclusion in TOWERS of a column or page devoted to answering questions posed by alumni on news of the campus, procedures for admissions, long-range plans of the administration, and other items on which alumni would like more information.

This recommendation was implemented in the Spring Issue of TOWERS with the page entitled "Tell It Like It Is." An invitation was given at that time to alumni to write their questions to the editor, and it is hoped that questions will be posed from time to time. Meanwhile, alumni are being invited in this issue to voice their opinions on the disposition of Towers Hall. (See our article on page 4).

Members of the committee on improving communications are well aware of the importance of person-to-person relations in all areas of the college community. While they do not believe that any committee can be completely effective in such a field, they do invite your questions and will do their best to find satisfactory answers. Otterbein Wins Opener and Stagg Trophy

A Postscript To the Stagg Story

Mary Thomas, '28, who usually doesn't write sports stories, told us this one. In the year 1885-86, Alonzo Stagg and George Scott were roommates at Yale. George Scott was a professor of Latin at Otterbein from 1887 to 1931, served as president of the college from 1901 to 1904, and was one of Otterbein's most scholarly and best-loved teachers. He died in 1938 at his home in Westerville.

Alumni who remember Doctor Scott can imagine the delighted chuckle with which he would have received the news that an Otterbein team had brought to the campus as a trophy the battered hat which had been worn by the famous friend of his own student days.

McKee Signs with Pirates

Jim McKee, hard throwing Otterbein righthander, led the nation's College Division Baseball strikeout artists for 1969, according to statistics released by NCAA National Collegiate Sports Services.

McKee fanned 126 batters over 71 innings, an average of 16.0 per nine innings. His closest competitor pitched a 15.5 average. McKee's season total set a new Ohio Conference record.

The 6-7 McKee signed a contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates following his graduation on June 15. He spent two weeks at the Pittsburgh rookie camp in Bradenton, Florida, and played the remainder of the season with the Pirates' Salem, Virginia, farm club in the Carolina league.

It Was a Great Reunion

If we counted correctly, more people attended the 1969 Alumni Luncheon than in any previous year. Reunion classes more than filled the big dining room of the Campus Center, and some Very Important People had to be seated in the auxiliary rooms — but what a great time was had by all!

Yes, it rained, and some of us got very wet crossing the parking lot to the Hirsch Health Center for the dedication. All the class pictures had to be taken inside, and you will notice that the classes of 1929 and 1949 had to pose twice to get everyone in the picture.

If 1970 is a reunion year for you, why not mark your calendar now for next Alumni Day (June 13) and be a part of a memorable occasion?
