One of a college's greatest resources is her alumni. The academic excellence of a college is ultimately tested in the mental competence and intellectual achievement of her alumni. The spiritual soundness of a college is finally revealed in the moral fortitude and personal integrity of those who have been her students. It is likewise the case with Otterbein College.

A strong Alumni Association is essential for a strong college. The present greatest need of the Otterbein College Alumni Association is for leadership in local alumni clubs. The primary objective for an alumni club is to promote, by organized effort, the best interests and prestige of Otterbein College. An alumni club is a working unit for organized effort in a particular community or area.

Otterbein Receives Book Store

The University Book Store, a landmark in Westerville owned privately by the Jones family for many years, was recently donated to Otterbein by Miss Ellen Jones, who succeeded her father in the management of the business.

In exchange for the store and inventory valued at more than $30,000, Otterbein entered into an annuity agreement whereby the college will pay Miss Jones a guaranteed income for life.

Since Otterbein has a book store in the new Campus Center, the University Book Store was sold to Mr. Craig Gifford, Director of College Information at Otterbein, who will add new lines of merchandise and continue uptown operations.

A GUARANTEED INCOME FOR LIFE

In each succeeding issue of TOWERS some phase of estate planning will be presented. Below we discuss two guaranteed life income plans with the tax advantages of each. In the next issue we will discuss Wills.

The Fixed Gift Annuity

The Example —

Mr. Smith gives $10,000 to Otterbein College in cash, property or securities and accepts in return an annuity contract in which the college agrees to pay to him, for life, a fixed guaranteed income, the amount determined by Mr. Smith's age. Rates go as high as 7.4%.

The Tax Results —

At age 65, Otterbein would pay Mr. Smith $500 annually, (5% x $10,000). If he names a survivor to receive the income for life, the annual return would be slightly less.

The gift value of this annuity is $4,265.50, which he may claim as an income tax deduction, divided over five years, if necessary.

If Mr. Smith should give appreciated stocks, he would pay a capital gains tax on only the difference between the cost of the stock and the actuarial value of his annuity.

Assuming that Mr. Smith bought stock for $5,000 which is now worth $10,000, his capital gain would be $5,000 and he would ordinarily pay a tax high as $1,250, depending on his income tax bracket.

By giving the stock to Otterbein, he would pay a capital gains tax on only $734.50 ($5,734.50 actuarial value minus cost of $5,000).

Mr. Smith has a further tax deduction. A portion of the income is exempt from income tax. Of the $500 Mr. Smith receives annually, he would pay an income tax on only $104.50.

The Variable Life Income

The Example —

Mr. Smith makes a gift of money, property, or securities to Otterbein, and the college agrees to invest the money with its regular endowment investments of some $2,751,000, and to pay Mr. Smith, annually, during his lifetime and the lifetime of his wife or other person, the average rate of interest earned on all college investments during that particular year. In succeeding years, the rates would vary according to the earnings of the fund.

The Tax Results —

Assume that Mr. Smith is 65 years old, and that he gives Otterbein $10,000 in exchange for a life income contract.

Mr. Smith may claim a charitable gift deduction of $6,658 or up to the 30% limit for charitable gifts in a single year. If the gift exemption is more than the 30% allowed, he may carry the balance over the next five years.

Mr. Smith pays no capital gains tax by giving property or stocks which have appreciated in value.

All income Mr. Smith receives is taxable. The amount of the charitable gift deduction is determined by the age of the donor. The average earned by the college endowment last year was 4.05%.

For additional information, write for Otterbein bulletins on Lifetime Security through Gifts that Live and Tax Economics in Giving. See form below.

Facts About Life Income Contracts

A life income contract is a sound investment which produces good income for the donor during his lifetime and will benefit young people attending Otterbein as long as the college endures.

Either life income agreement may cover a single life or it may have a survivorship clause. In a survivorship agreement two persons may share the benefits. The payments are made to either one during lifetime and then to the survivor at the same rate as long as he shall live.

An Otterbein life income contract is backed by all the resources of the college totaling over nine million dollars. In all the years Otterbein

UP ON THE HOUSETOP

The year 1964 focuses a sharp spotlight on Ohio - the 100th anniversary of the writing, right here, of Benjamin R. Hanby's famous Christmas song "Up On The Housetop." Ohio's Otterbein College, from which he graduated, is spearheading an anniversary observance.

The spotlight plays on three Ohio settings: Westerville, near Columbus, from which obscure Hanby catapulted to fame in 1856 when, as an Otterbein College sophomore, he wrote the smash-hit "Darling Nelly Gray," where he is buried, and where the Ohio Historical Society now preserves his college home as a museum-shrine; Rushville, in southeastern Ohio, where he was born in 1833 midway between the nearby birthplace of General William Sherman and the nearby boyhood home of General Philip Sheridan; and New Paris, in southwestern Ohio, where he wrote the Christmas song.

Chicago shares a spotlight too. The song was first published there when Hanby lived there in 1866.

It is not easy to crash any field with a best seller. It is even more difficult to crash with a lasting song, particularly an over-worked field like Christmas songs. But Hanby did this. On December 24, 1963, children sang "Up On The Housetop" on the national television program "Today." Larry Hooper, the deep basso of Lawrence Welk's nationally televised shows sings it in a Welk-recorded medley "Merry Christmas." It is included in the song book "Garry Moore's Favorite Christmas Songs."

This "crash-through" was Hanby's third. His first was in the difficult anti-slavery field with "Darling Nelly Gray" (1856), said by Dr. Francis P. Gaines, later president of Washington and Lee University, to be the only anti-slavery song that ever succeeded. His second was in the strictly Civil War field, with "Ole Shady" (1861) written at Seven Mile, Ohio - one of the first jubilees and a prime favorite of General Sherman. His third was the Christmas song (1864). Later, he had a fourth in one of the most satiated fields - the hymn. His "Who Is He In Yonder Stall" (1866), found in a hymnal of The Church Of England, was carried by the British throughout the Empire. Last summer I found it in hymnals at the Glasgow Cathedral and at St. George's Anglican Cathedral in Jerusalem. Hanby was a versatile "crash-through" artist. Considering the adverse circumstances under which the Christmas song was written, it is miraculous that it ever got outside tiny New Paris - population 500. Hanby was pastor of a small church there. The Civil War was crowding other things out of the news. Hanby dared bring musical instruments into the church, particularly an organ and a flute. Though he won a majority of the members, he saw that his persistence would shatter the congregation, so he resigned from the ministry.

His heart broke as he closed the door on his little church and his chosen profession. He was poor. He had a young wife and two small children. Who would think that out of this sad setting could come a rollicking Santa Claus song - one of the few lasting ones?

Hanby rents an empty store on the village's edge, starts a children's singing school. The Christmas of 1864 approaches. There is no money to buy music, so the 31-year old Hanby composes some to supply the need. One song is "Up On The Housetop." He teaches it to his singing school.

At the invitation of the Quakers, Hanby goes to nearby Richmond, Indiana, on Christmas Day, to entertain the city's poor children. For them the song is first rendered in public. Richmond, too, can share the 1964 spotlight.

Like most new Christmas songs, will Hanby's now die with the season? No! Through ordeal of death and fire it will live to crash yet another difficult field - folk song. Here is one of time's great folk song stories.

In 1865 Hanby gets a big break. From cross-roads New Paris he is summoned to Chicago to work with George F. Root. Root is no nobody. His name is an American household word.

He is the greatest Union Civil War songwriter. All America knows his "The Battle Cry of Freedom" (the greatest war hit), "Just Before The Battle, Mother," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," "The Vacant Chair," "There's Music In The Air." His publishing firm, Root & Cady, of Chicago, is the nations most prodigious purveyor of war songs.

Root said "We were on the lookout for bright men," and Root attracted to his employ such stars as Henry Clay Work, second greatest union, Civil War songwriter ("Kingdom Coming" "Grafted Into The Army," "Babylon Is Fallen," "Wake Nicodemus," "Marching Through Georgia"); P. P. Bliss, second greatest of the gospel hymn songwriters ("Hold The Fort," "Almost Persuaded," "Let The Lower Lights Be Burning," "Wonderful Words of Life") and James R. Murray, later a citizen of Cincinnati ("Daisy Deane"). This was distinguished company.

Hanby now originates a children's music quarterly called "Our Song Birds," and he and Root collaborate on it. In the October 1866 issue the Christmas song is published for the first time — under the title "Santa Claus."

Now stark, double tragedy overtakes the song. Within five months, on the day before St. Patrick's Day, Hanby dies of tuberculosis in Chicago at age 33. Within four years the publisher, Root & Cady, is leveled by the great Chicago fire. Neither songwriter nor publisher is alive to plug the song. Despite these handicaps it lives as a folk song, relayed mostly by word of mouth, until in the next century, it becomes so popular that publishers take it from children's lips and return it to print. Not knowing the composer they credit it to "Anonymous." Dacia Custer Shoemaker, of Westerville, foremost authority on Hanby and a relative of General Custer of "last stand" fame, re-discovered Hanby's authorship and brought it to the world's attention. Publishers have put it under Hanby's name again.

Folk singing effected some interesting alterations. First, it changed the title from "Santa Claus" to "Up On The Housetop." Second, it reversed the order of the second and third verses. Third, it eliminated the last three of the original six printed verses. Fourth, it tampered with other details slightly as shown by paralleling the verses and chorus:-

*Up on the house, no delay, no
pause
Clatter the steeds of Santa Claus;
Down thro' the chimney with loads
of toys
Ho for the little ones, Christmas joys.*

*O! O! O! Who wouldn't go,
O! O! O! Who wouldn't go,
Up on the house-top, click! click!
click!
Down thro' the chimney with good
St. Nick*

*Look in the stockings of Little
Will,
Ha! is it not a "glorious bill?"
Hammer and gimlet and lots of tacks.
Whistle and whirligig, whip that cracks,*

*Snow-white stocking of little Nell,
Oh pretty Santa cram it well;
Leave her a dolly that laughs and
cries,
One that can open and shut its eyes.*

FOLK

*Up on the house-top reindeer
pause.
Out jumps good old Santa Claus.
Down thru the chimney with lots
of toys.
All for the little ones' Christmas
joys.*

*Ho, ho, ho! who wouldn't go!
Ho, ho, ho! who wouldn't go!
Up on the house-top, click! click!
click!
Down thru' the chimney with good
St. Nick.*

*Next comes the stockings of little
Will;
Oh, just see what a glorious fill
Here is a hammer and lots of tacks.
Also a ball and a whip that cracks.*

*First comes the stocking of little
Nell
Oh, dear Santa, fill it well;
Give her a doll that laughs and
cries-
One that will open and shut her eyes.*

Other folk versions provide other variants. In one, "Little Will" became "Little Bill." Incidentally, the real "Little Will" was the composer's much younger brother, William O. Hanby, who graduated from Otterbein College, studied medicine at the Cincinnati College of Medicine and at Starling Medical College in Columbus, practiced in Westerville, became secretary of the Central Ohio Medical Association, and died in Bucyrus, at the age of 32. One hundred years ago, Will, then an Otterbein College student, rode on horseback from Westerville to New Paris to visit brother Ben, and was present to add drama to the song's first public presentation in Richmond.

A glance at the other three verses which folk singing discarded shows that they have enough sparkle to be revived:-

Here are the stockings of Lazy Jim,
What will the good Saint do for him?
Lo he is filling them up with bran
There, he is adding a new ratan!

Pa, Ma, and Uncle, and Grandma too,
All I declare have something new;
Even the baby enjoys his part,
Shaking a rattle, now bless his heart.

Rover come here, are you all alone,
Haven't they tossed you an extra bone?
Here's one to gladden your honest
jaws
Now wag a "thankee" to Santa Claus.

There was a real live Rover, too — Hanby's own dog. Mrs. Shoemaker says that a friend of Hanby's who wrote under the pen name of "Paulina," wrote the two verses about Lazy Jim, and Pa-Ma. Few writers have so successfully hidden their identity back of a pseudonym. Many of Paulina's lyrics appear in old song books, and many big-name tunesellers have erected scales around her verses, including Root. She circled in the Root & Cady orbit.

There is disputed authority that Paulina was the wife of P. P. Bliss. If she was, there is irony in the fact that during the Christmas holidays ten years after the Christmas Song was published, Mrs. Bliss and her world-famous husband became

DR. MABEL E. GARDNER, '08 —

Dr. Mabel E. Gardner, '08, of Middletown, Ohio, observed fifty years as a medical doctor this past summer. She was featured in a full-page article appearing in the Middletown, Ohio, JOURNAL, Sunday, June 14. Many organizations, institutions, groups and individuals paid special tribute to her.

Following graduation from Otterbein in 1908, Dr. Gardner taught several years before enrolling in the Ohio Miami Medical College at Cincinnati. She received the doctor of medicine degree from this school which was later to be known as the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine. Licensed to practice medicine in 1914, after passing both the Ohio and Illinois state board examinations, Dr. Gardner was one of the first women doctors in the nation.

She is a charter member of the International Medical Women's Association which was founded in 1920, the same year women were given suffrage by the 19th amendment. In 1926, she became a fellow of the American College of Surgeons, the first woman in Ohio to be selected.

In 1926, Dr. Mabel Gardner became the first woman in Ohio to be made a fellow in the American College of Surgeons.

Although she devoted most of her hours to work, Dr. Gardner found time to pursue her hobbies of gardening at her residence, community activities and travel, studying abroad and visiting medical clinics throughout Europe.

Otterbein College conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters upon Dr. Gardner in 1945. She served thirty years on the Otterbein College Board of Trustees, first being elected in 1933 by the Alumni Association.

William O'Dwyer, mayor of the city of New York, appointed her to his committee for the commemoration of that city, January 1, 1948.

On the anniversary of Susan B. Anthony's birthday in 1948, Dr. Gardner joined Eleanor Roosevelt and other top women in their fields from all over America at a luncheon given by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs for the purpose of discussing the political, social and economic future of women.

In 1952, she was made a founding fellow of the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecologists.

A founding member of the American Medical Women's Association, Dr. Gardner was elected in June, 1947 to serve as its president.

In 1954, this organization bestowed on her its greatest honor, the Elizabeth Blackwell Award, given annually for outstanding service by a woman to medicine. Also in 1954, the Otterbein College Alumni Association gave her its highest tribute, the Distinguished Alumnus Award, recognizing "40 years of outstanding service to humanity through the ministry of healing."

Dr. Gardner served 15 years as assistant clinical instructor at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine and was instructor of nurses at Middletown Hospital where for many years she was chief of the obstetrical staff.

She has been both secretary and president of the Butler County, Ohio, Medical Association and president of the Middletown Hospital staff. She was a member of the Middletown Board of Health 35 years and for 15 years she was an elected member of the Civic Association Board of Governors. Dr. Gardner is a member of the First Evangelical United Brethren Church of Middletown.

In 1954, the American Medical Women's Association bestowed on Dr. Gardner its greatest honor, the Elizabeth Blackwell Award, given annually for outstanding service by a woman to medicine.

FIFTY YEARS A DISTINGUISHED PHYSICIAN

This year, the Girls' Club of Middletown which she has served as a director and trustee for almost 40 years, placed a silver serving tray in the club inscribed in her honor because "her unselfish devotion has made her close to the hearts of all of us."

The Middletown City Commission passed a resolution joining "with her friends and the entire community in acknowledging appreciation for the services which she has rendered . . . in 50 years of service to humanity . . . not only as a physician but also as a civic leader."

A fellow physician in Middletown, Dr. Ross A. Hill, '24, summarizes the esteem in which Dr. Gardner is held when he writes, "She has always applied herself diligently to the practice of medicine and she has brought honor to the medical profession, the community in which she lives, and herself. The true value of her services to mankind cannot even be estimated, but I consider it a great honor to have been associated with her in a small way in the practice of medicine."

"For as long as I can remember, medicine was my sole goal," Dr. Gardner recalls. "My parents were thoroughly sympathetic, helped all they could. The fact that I'm a woman doesn't change anything. In my family my ambitions were not looked on as weird or curious. Long before I came on the scene, my grandmother practiced a form of medicine among Illinois pioneers. She had no choice. There were no doctors in the territory, and whenever sickness struck, 'Aunt Katie' was asked to come and bring her homegrown herbs. My mother took up where Grandmother Katie left off."

Dr. Gardner's babies are prominently featured on her office in a display constantly changed through 50 years.

So her family was sympathetic. But what about the rest of the society 50 years ago?

"All young doctors face hardships and it was no different when I started out," she maintains. "There was a need for women doctors. Here in Middletown, once I was established, I did not undergo any undue trials. Maybe I look at things a bit differently. You know lots of people fail to recognize or take advantage of opportunities because it looks like so much hard work. There's nothing illogical about my work. After all, it's a woman's job to bring children into the world and I guess I've done my share, probably about 10,000 in all."

Every medical field now has its women physicians. "Prejudices which formerly existed against the 'female doctor' has been gradually disappearing since the turn of the century," says Dr. Gardner, "and any that might have remained were completely dissolved by the fine work of women physicians in wartime."

Each war, she declares, opened new doors for women, and each time they proved themselves.

"With her instincts as a mother, there is no reason why a woman cannot place herself on an equal basis with men in the science of surgery," she affirmed. "Surgery requires judgment, skill and training. A woman can have these qualifications because she is trained side by side with men. I enjoyed my work, however, it is doubly hard for women because surgery is a pioneer venture for them."

Asked what she considers medicine's greatest step forward in the past 50 years, Dr. Gardner cites scientific research identifying the causes of infectious diseases and leading to the discovery of antibiotics conquering them.

Cancer, she believes, presently is her profession's greatest challenge and she thinks there now is a promise of success in defeating it.

Peace Corps

This picture taken by Bishop J. Gordon Howard last January when visiting in the Dominican Republic, shows Robert Zech, '63, on the extreme right. It is a picture of a Peace Corps group in the city of San Francisco de Maonis, Dominican Republic.

Robert Zech is doing community development work. Two of the girls are nurses and one a community development worker. The young man at the left in the rear is Steve Honore, graduate of Capital University and head of student body there in 1960-61. He is the leader of the Peace Corps team.

has been writing life income agreements, she has never defaulted in a single payment.

Payments are made annually, semi-annually or more often if desired.

The donor may determine how the income is to be used after his demise. It is possible for him to create a memorial to honor the memory of a loved one. He may direct that the income be used for scholarship purposes, for general endowment, or for any other purpose.

During 1963 life income contracts were written in the amount of $14,500.00. During the present year, the contracts are in excess of $39,000.00. Several others are pending and should materialize before the end of the year.

The picture is taken outside of the Peace Corps headquarters house in San Francisco. The house is in the slums close to the people being served in community development. The house is small, but neat, clean and sanitary. It is sparingly furnished with no luxuries, only bare necessities.

Each year since 1938, the Jaycees have selected "Outstanding Young Men of America." Among past selections are such famous personalities as John F. Kennedy (1946); Nelson Rockefeller (1941); Dr. Tom Dooley (1956); and Henry Ford, II (1945).

SPOTLIGHT ON

Dr. Alva D. Cook, '12

The Ohio Academy of General Practice awarded the first life membership to Dr. Alva D. Cook, '12, during the past year. A former president and trustee of the Montgomery County, Ohio, Medical Society, Dr. Cook has been honored repeatedly in the past years for his life-long service to his community and the medical profession.

Doctor Cook was born in Washington County, Ohio, December 11, 1887. He received his B.S. degree from Otterbein College in 1912 and his M.D. from Western Reserve University in 1917. Following internship at Cleveland City Hospital and residency in pathology there, he served as a medical missionary for the United Brethren Church in China and the Philippines until 1927. Subsequently, he entered private practice in Dayton, Ohio, where he now resides.

He is a member of the American Academy of General Practice. Among his many honors was Montgomery County Medical Society "Doctor of the Year" award in 1956.

In addition to the practice of medicine he has found time to serve on the Dayton Board of Education, author several non-professional articles, and fulfill frequent public speaking engagements. His hobbies are rose growing, geology, history and farming.

Robert Wilson, executive secretary of OAGP, conducted the following personal interview with Dr. Cook:

"Dr. Cook, 47 years ago when you started practice, did you believe that medicine would be practiced as it is today?"

No, I honestly didn't think we would reach such a peak of medical practice as we do today.

During the 47 years what has been the biggest change in the field of general practice as you see it?

Well, the biggest change has been in the field of general practice itself. Today's young general practitioner prepares himself in regular established courses plus the post-graduate study. He doesn't study. He doesn't have a chance to become careless in his habits of practice.

What influenced you to go into general practice?

I always wanted to be a medical missionary."

Otterbein conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters upon Dr. Cook at the last commencement.

35th Anniversary

GEORGE GOHN, '26, of Port Washington, New York, marked his 35th anniversary of service with Bell Telephone Laboratories on July 8. He is a supervisor in the metallurgical engineering department at Murray Hill, New Jersey.

Since he joined the company in 1929, Gohn has specialized in studies of the physical properties of metals and application of metals to telephone and military equipment.

A former director of the American Society for Testing and Materials, Gohn received the 1960 ASTM Award of Merit and is the author of numerous technical articles published in ASTM "Proceedings" and other journals. He received the B.S. in Metallurgical Engineering degree from Columbia University in 1929.

Emergency Work

HELEN REDINGER, '52, was summoned to work in the correspondence unit of the White House, the week following the assassination of the late President Kennedy, and remained there until January 15. She also attended the reception given for the White House staff by President and Mrs. Johnson. Miss Redinger is regularly employed by the Department of Agriculture in Washington.

Insurance Executive

HAL G. TIPPETT, '55, Glens Falls, New York, has been named director of health insurance sales of The Paul Revere Life Insurance Company of Worcester, Massachusetts. He was formerly associated with the National Life Insurance Company of Canada as a regional manager supervising life insurance sales in northeastern United States.

On December 29, 1876, the train on which they were riding in a blinding, 40-mile-an-hour snow gale, broke through the bridge spanning the great river chasm at Ashtabula, plunged 75 feet and burst into flames, killing 80 of its 156 passengers.

Hanby's carol, being a strictly secular Santa Claus song, can be used by all regardless of faith. Root, in whose presence Hanby died in Chicago on March 16, 1867, said "He died almost at the commencement of his career."

In December, 1864, General Sherman telegraphed President Lincoln, "I beg to present you as a Christmas gift the City of Savannah." That same Christmas another Ohioan presented to posterity's little folks one of the all-time, all-American Christmas songs. It is still loved everywhere by children as they snap their fingers to its singing just as they have done through the years.
