DEDICATION..

"Our audiences always applaud a speaker when he is finished, but the amount of the applause sort of measures how well his speech has been received, a sort of thermometer so to speak." In your own words, President Clippinger, you have so aptly expressed our feelings and sentiments toward yourself . . need we say more? . . thirty years of devoted service . . progress . . achieving recognized success . . your record speaks for itself . . may your memories of us be as pleasant as our contacts with you . . as you leave . . not to be forgotten . . hear our applause and measure your record by it, a sort of thermometer so to speak . . for our applause is long and loud . . and it is to you that this, the 1939 SIBYL, is respectfully dedicated.

HELLO . .

'ROUND ABOUT

By DONNA LOVE

May I present to the readers of the SIBYL that well-loved and familiar presence which has been so much a part of the serene beauty of our lovely campus... our gracious First Lady...Mrs. Clippinger...Perhaps none of us quite appreciated all that she symbolized to us until her recent illness removed her from our sight, though not from our hearts...

During her reign at Otterbein she has been a beloved queen...presiding at formal teas and the president's table with the dignity so well-blending to her own inimitable charm which has enthroned her in the memories of each succeeding generation of students...and made her the ideal of many a co-ed's secret heart...shaping their lives unconsciously toward the pattern of her own winning personality...

Calm and poised...no situation seemed to shake the clear-headed ease with which she managed her social affairs...Her exquisite taste manifested itself in her carefully planned dinners and receptions...In her clear eyes we saw the beauty of her soul...while her friendly smile gladdened the heart of many a homesick boy or girl as she clasped his hand and spoke his name in her warm and cheery voice...For no matter how humble the Freshman, she raised him in her own dignity to a higher plane...And yet the most self-satisfied Senior found in her a high reaching goal still to be attained...

Her beautiful white hair...her tasteful gown...a hyacinth-blue lace for tea ...a gay crimson hat for the undying youth that lives in her spirit...her regal bearing...all represent to those of us who have come beneath her spell something of the innate meaning of Otterbein...Christian friendliness...serene dignity...and charming beauty of spirit...to her we pay our homage and give our everlasting friendship and love.

BEG HUMBLE PARDON!

Billy Bug Goes to College

By Lewis Carlock

Since spring came I have crawled from my cocoon and have been getting around on the campus. I didn't enjoy it much when I saw a boy trying to get up enough nerve to ask his heart's desire for a date, and then I went to the girl and saw her wishing he would ask her. She was disgusted and said, "He gets in my hair." I thought she might be talking about me, so I flew out of her hair and haven't been back since.

I seldom go to Prexy's office. My cousin went there once and got sucked up in the vacuum cleaner. He said he didn't get hungry while he was in the bag because there was plenty of cake crumbs to eat, but the prolonged darkness nearly ruined his eyesight.

I really go in for baseball though. I often fly down to the athletic field when they are playing, and try to catch a ride on the ball. I never get on the ball when the pitcher throws it like some of my dumb friends do. They often hit the bat before the ball does and spend eternity darkening the ball a trifle. I always buzz around in front of the batter and wait for the ball to bump me en route to the outfield. It hurts a little when the ball hits you, but it is worth the pain for the ride you get.

I'm sick now. I got in the fielder's eye and have caught the pneumonia. If you want to see me, you will find me in a bed in the girls' dormitory with a whole lot of other sick bugs. Good bye now.

BEG HUMBLE PARDON!

College

By Lewis Carlock

The reader may now prepare himself to read the first unauthenticated description of college, written by the author after years of diligent research and resistance.

A college consists of buildings donated by dead alumni (pronounced a-lum'-nooses). These edifices are connected by steam pipes under the ground and campuses above the ground. Campuses are covered with grass in the summer and tradition in the winter. The weather permitting, campuses (or campi) are beautiful in the spring time.

A college is a place where two kinds of people go, smart ones and dumb ones. You can distinguish between the two by observing them. The smart ones never walk on the sidewalk because they know that the shortest distance between two places is across the grass.

People go to college to prepare for the future. After you have attended a college you can come back to visit it often. Having an excuse for going someplace gives one a feeling of importance which is a sure sign of success in this world. How far would a Dictator get if he lacked this virtue? The community life offered by a college renders one easily adaptable to the life in the homes for the aged, where he may live in the far distant future. Some people get married as a result of going to college thus rendering their futures indefinite and uncertain, excepting when both parties are marrying for money (see footnote).

If you are not satisfied with the name your parents gave you, you can have a few initials attached to the tail end of your name by acquiring degrees (as not in thermometers). For other ways of changing names the girls may refer to the paragraph on marriage.

Some people go to college to get an education.

Footnote: When in doubt, flip a coin.

SHAVINGS

By O. O. Osterwise

"LOVE"

In the spring a young man's fancy turns toward the fairer sex and her thoughts turn to . . . spring hats. "They are bigger, bolder and the most gorgeous things," is the way they refer to them but as for me, I have no comment. But what's this have to do with love.

Love is a wonderful thing. You can't eat, you can't sleep, in fact you almost go crazy. Those two and four mile walks and the Alum Creek bridge might be disinteresting in the winter but in spring they turn into havens of heaven. To stand there at night, gazing at the millions of lights and with a lovely creature at your side whispering sweet words to the winds, is a joy only experience brings about. Oh for that sweet embrace, but darn it, those car lights put you in the limelight and you are thwarted right at the gates of heaven. The car passes by and once again you pay your fare to happiness with sweet words, but alas, footsteps approaching the bridge and once again you are brought back to reality. Then you stand some more, hoping that they will realize that they are trespassing but just because it isn't posted as such they stick around forming a perfect crowd. Why couldn't they be around when you feel like a "hand of bridge?" Suddenly I hear a shriek; she's looked at her watch and if we hurry we can make it to the dorm before the chapel bell peals out its unwanted warning. Off we go in a mad haste and just make it as the bell sounds so without further adieu she goes tripping lightly up the stairs to her room.

I trudge wearily away toward King Hall with a heavy head and a heavier heart. But, ah shucks, I guess I'll just have to keep on dreaming till the next time.

Wildly, like a startled fawn, her eyes tried to avoid his, but could not. His gaze seemed to be searching the inner soul of her.

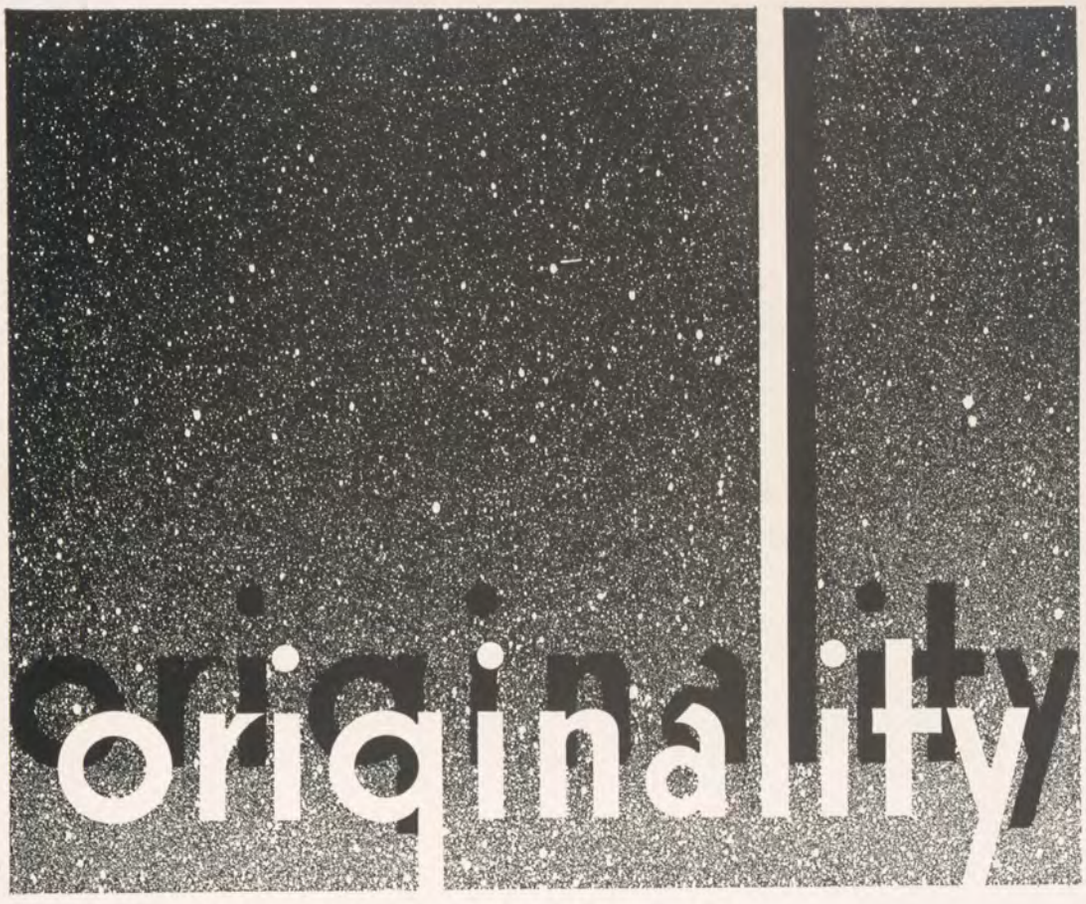
Would he never speak?

She squirmed in her seat when he pressed his hands to her temples, holding her head immovable. Her lips parted. She gasped. She could feel his hot breath against her cheek. Again and again, like a blast from a furnace, his breath seemed to scorch her tender skin.

His eyes lighted. He had seen something—something in her eyes.

He drew back, beaming. And, at last, he spoke:

"You have nothing more than a slight astigmatism." The tones of the occulist were soothing to her tortured nerves. "A few treatments, and a pair of especially fitted glasses will cure you entirely."



Originality is a quality of the imagination. It is the ability to take the usual elements of picture and story and present them to your student body in a new, different and interesting fashion. Our School Service organization has long been noted for its true originality in Year Book planning.

MACGOOSEY'S MUSIN'S

By MONROE COURTRIGHT

Don't let anyone ever tell you that putting out a year book isn't work—but it's fun. However, without other people's help it would be an impossibility. Thanks are in order for the old stand-bys, Adolphus Pringle and Gweneth Cousins, for the long hours of tedious toil which they gave in our behalf. To Helen Albright, June Courtright, and Charles Messmer for their efforts, flowers are also to be given. To Mrs. Schlag for lending us her star pupil Ruthanna Shuck, who cartooned the sports panels. To Professor Troop, who, as a Sibyl editor once himself, gave advice whenever he was asked for it, which was not often enough. To Mr. Green, our photographer, and Mrs. Green for always going out of their way to accommodate us. To Mr. Judson Rinebold of the Gray Printing Co. and Mr. William Gadd of the Canton Engraving Co. we are indebted for solving many technical problems. To Virginia Brown for the use of her skilled talent in making drawings and posters. To Dick Stabile and his orchestra go our thanks for making our prom a success. To the Junior class and especially the Sibyl staff for manifesting once again that spirit of cooperation which distinguishes our class from all others. And last, but not least, to the Faculty and the entire student body for submitting to assessments and picture-scheduling discomforts so agreeably.

And so, my friends, here is your SIBYL. You bought it—I hope it flatters you —if you like it, discuss it—if you don't—cuss it.

May we close our little effort with a final word from the ducks at Alum Creek—
