Otterbein College can be justly proud of the contribution Otterbein alumni are making in Sierra Leone, West Africa. This country celebrated its independence day on April 27.

Dr. John Karefa-Smart, '40, is foreign minister in the new government. Dr. Richard Caulker, '35, this summer becomes Sierra Leone's ambassador to the United States with residence in Washington, D.C. Dr. Sylvester Broderick, '24, has been active in educational affairs. John Akar, x'51, is head of the British Broadcasting Company and radio station in Freetown.

We salute Sierra Leone, West Africa, and the Otterbein alumni, too numerous to mention in this brief column by name, and hope Sierra Leone will prove to be an example among the other African nations.

"The Challenge Of Africa Today"

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS DELIVERED AT OTTERBEIN COLLEGE
ON MONDAY, JUNE 5, 1961, IN WESTERVILLE, OHIO

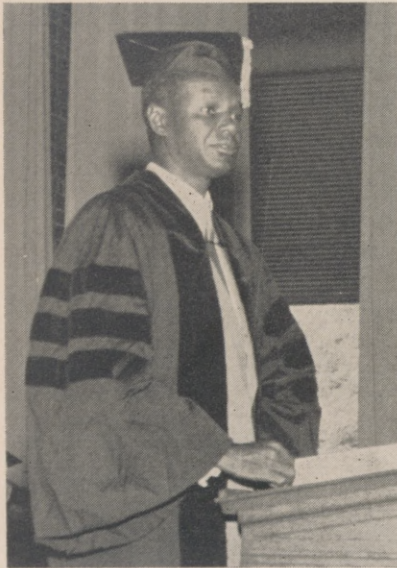

BY DR. JOHN KAREFA-SMART

The continent of Africa, or more precisely, that part of the continent of Africa which lies South of the Sahara desert, has always been an enigma and a challenge to the rest of the world. Unlike the American continents, whose existence was not even learned of until it was stumbled upon by sailors from Asia and from Europe, including Americo and Christopher Columbus, the African continent tantalized the successive civilizations of Europe and Asia by, as it were, showing a welcoming smile along the southern border of the Mediterranean, while at the same time erecting an impenetrable barrier—the great Sahara desert—to stop any further bold advances to the south.

When, beginning with the pre-Christian era, voyages of Hanno of Carthage and through those of the fifteenth century Portuguese sailors, inspired by Henry the sailor prince, Europeans discovered more and more of the coastline. Nature herself came to the defense, and malaria and yellow fever kept the trespassers at bay until less than a century ago. Some African nationalists have for this reason seriously proposed that a statue should be erected in honor of the mosquito, the agent through which these two diseases are transmitted.

So Africa came to be known as the unknown continent, as the dark continent. The fable of the sour grapes best describes the real challenge which lay behind these names. How much larger, and greater, and more diverse the empires of the Pharaohs, of Alexander of Macedonia, of the Caesars, and of the Holy Roman Emperors would have been if they had embraced the vast territories beyond the Sahara!

It is a sad commentary on human values that when the spirit of adventure for its own sake did not succeed, the motives of greed for wealth and power succeeded in two entirely different developments of Western European history, to battle successfully against the barriers of the African continent.

Slave Trade

The first development was the planting of the colonies in North America and the unsatisfied need for manpower which discovered the centuries-old slave trade in Africa, and then encouraged it to disastrous proportions in order to satisfy the need of the American plantations. When one realizes that the twelve million American Negroes in this country trace their origins to this development, and further that only a small fraction of those who were torn from their homes and families by the slave dealers survived the voyage by sailing ships, hazardous under the best circumstances, but infinitely murderous in the conditions under which the Africans were packed and transported as cargo, for that is what they were—human cargo—one can then begin to have some slight understanding of what this slave trade did to Africa.

Industrial Revolution

The second development in European history which led to further invasions into Africa, was the Industrial Revolution. When the productive power of the machine became established, the raw materials of the African continent suddenly became more profitable than "human cargo", and "liquid gold", the apt name given to palm oil, and other products of the African forest filled the ships instead. The lives of thousands of European merchants were sacrificed to the dread enemy, the mosquito, before the battle-tide finally turned in favor of advances in medical science which led to victory over the mosquito.

What was more natural than to divide the source of all this new European wealth among the great powers of Europe. So it came about that around a conference table in Berlin, just before the end of the last century, the pens of the statesmen of England, France, Spain, Portugal and Germany carved up Africa on the map before them. When it was convenient they followed a river, or a mountain range—but not once did they pay any attention to the human populations, and families were separated as tribes were divided by the stroke of the pen.

End of Colonialism

Africans lived under this state of affairs—colonial domination—until the enunciation of the principles of the Atlantic Charter, during the second world war, spelled out the end of Colonialism. The rest of the story is familiar to you. At the end of the war, among all the countries beyond the Sahara, only Ethiopia and Liberia were sovereign and independent. Today there are more than twenty sovereign states in the same area, and by the end of the next year, it is quite likely that the only countries on the whole continent that would not have thrown off the colonial yoke will be the Portuguese and Spanish colonies.

Continent of the Future

From being the Dark Continent, Africa is gradually coming to be known as the Continent of the Future. It is this transformation which constitutes the challenge of Africa today, in the same way as there is a challenge in every tomorrow.

Firstly, Africa is still very generally unknown. When I remind Americans to whom I speak that the whole of the United States of America can be fitted into the Sahara desert, and that all of Europe and India and China can then be put into the rest of the continent, they usually gasp in surprise.

But it is not only ignorance of the physical geography of Africa of which I speak, ignorance of the Revolution which is taking place in Africa is more important. Such ignorance is particularly surprising among Christians, because the contribution of the Christian Church to this revolution is unquestionable. There can be no revolution without men and without ideas. If it is noted that in a country like my own, Sierra Leone, although less than one third of the population are Christians, yet the Prime Minister and more than half of the Cabinet are Christians, you will agree with me that Christian missions have contributed their share of the men behind the Revolution. What about the ideas? Where is it more clearly spelled out than in the Christian Gospel that each man, and all men, are the sons of God, and as sons of God they can be, and are entitled to be, free in body, mind and spirit?

I have already referred to the merchants who died in establishing Empires in Africa. Christian missionaries died beside them—a good few from Otterbein College. The only difference is that they lived and died to set Africans free from ignorance, fear, superstition and sin.

Challenge to Christians

The most important challenge therefore of Africa to Christians today—whether they are in America or in Europe—is the challenge to channel and to build constructively on the Revolution which they have helped to produce.

The new, free nations of Africa are confronted from within by a basic under-development of their physical and human resources. The needs are very real and very urgent. Those of us who are in positions of leadership and who are Christians, know that the best way to begin to meet these needs, is to make new men, who accept that to lead is to serve. But, unfortunately, there are other would-be benefactors who have their own ideas of a new kind of ruthless men, who will adopt any means to gain their own ends, and for whom not service, but power is an attribute of leadership. It is our hope that our fellow-Christians in the churches in America will realize that this is the time to redouble all efforts to support and strengthen the church in Africa as it faces the challenge to provide men to match the revolution.

In the international field Africa has also recently assumed a new importance which constitutes a challenge. At the United Nations, the combined votes of the new African nations are now enough to be crucial in any decisions taken by that body. It is my hope that all African countries will make it quite clear that they are on the side of right and not of might, on the side of freedom and not of domination of any kind, on the side of respect of human dignity, and not of human debasement. It is for this reason that we must speak out frankly—even to our friends—when their actions belie their words, in these great fields of human rights.

Future of Africa

As I have already said, the future of Africa, because it is unknown, constitutes a challenge. Will the African countries decide that only the formation of a strong third power can effectively reduce the East-West struggle, and decide to become a United States of Africa? Must such a new third force also join the race for arms? Will the individual nations retain their sovereignty, and can they maintain a "positive-neutrality" towards the east and the west? These are questions to which nobody knows the answer; yet whatever the answer turns out to be, it will have a marked effect on the lives of all men, everywhere. What has all this got to do with the graduating class of 1961 at Otterbein College? The answer is—plenty.

Firstly, you young men and women are the bearers of a proud heritage. The founders of this institution, basing their actions on the Christian Gospel, took a positive stand on the side of right when they championed over one hundred years ago equal opportunities for college education for women as for men. And, only a few miles from Westerville, is the township of Africa, Ohio, one of the termini of the underground freedom railroad of the Civil War. It does not take much to imagine the kindly welcome and support that slaves seeking their freedom got from the faculty and students of Otterbein. Today the Freedom Riders may be in Alabama or Mississippi; and those who seek equal opportunities to experience a common human dignity may be in Angola, or in Johannesburg, but I trust that they will receive support and understanding from the modern sons and daughters of Otterbein.

Otterbein's Link with Africa

One of the results of the first missionaries of the former United Brethren Church to Africa was that an uncle of mine, Joseph Caulker, at the turn of the century, came to Otterbein. He lost his life in a tragic accident on this campus, but following his death there has been a constant two-way traffic between Otterbein and my country. Young American graduates from Otterbein became engaged in the missionary enterprise in Sierra Leone, and young Africans like myself came to Otterbein for academic training in leadership for serving the needs of our people.

The challenge of today demands that this exchange must continue. Although you may no longer come to us as leaders in the church, but rather as fraternal workers, we also need your help in all forms of technical assistance, whether in the new Peace Corps Program of President Kennedy, or in other programs of technical assistance of your government or of the United Nations and its specialized agencies. It takes men and women dedicated to the spiritual goals of a common humanity to be bearers of the knowledge which can bring technical advance and freedom from undernourishment and from disease, and do so with humility and love and not with condescending pride.

In one word, what the Revolution in Africa demands of you is involvement. We need you, and you cannot afford to be merely spectators. Whether the present revolution leads to progress for all mankind or to disaster for all mankind depends as much upon you as upon us. May the Almighty guide you to your place and your tasks in these challenging days.

VISITING SCIENTIST

Dr. H. E. Wilcox, distinguished professor of chemistry at Birmingham-Southern College, Birmingham, Alabama, was the "Visiting Scientist" on Otterbein's campus on April 27 and 28.

During his stay, Dr. Wilcox lectured to a full schedule of chemistry classes and held conferences with students, faculty members and administrative officers.

Otterbein Grad Is New Ambassador

Dr. Richard Edmund Kelfa-Caulker, '35 (center), newly appointed ambassador to this country from Sierra Leone, Africa, talks with President John F. Kennedy in the White House while presenting his credentials. At left is G. Mennen Williams, Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs. Dr. Caulker was graduated from Otterbein College in 1935. His daughter, Imodale, will be a junior at Otterbein in the fall.

STUDENTS TOUR EUROPE

Thirty-six Otterbein students and recent graduates joined with thirty students of North Central College, Naperville, Illinois, on a European tour this summer. Under the leadership of Arthur L. Schultz, Director of Public Relations and Admissions, the group left Idlewild Airport, New York City on June 14 by Sabena Jet for Manchester, England.

Besides England their itinerary includes The Netherlands, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, France and Belgium. A planned program was arranged for visiting places of historical and cultural significance, living in homes wherever possible, presenting programs in EUB churches and schools, studying problems and conditions in various countries, participating in international camps, and interviewing government leaders.

Interspersed between tours, programs and traveling, the group is allowed "free" days on which they may take optional tours.

On their last stop in Paris they will tour museums, be briefed on France and Algeria, and spend an evening at the opera.

FOUNDERS' DAY

The 114th anniversary of the founding of Otterbein College was observed April 26 with a special Founders' Day Convocation program. Dean William S. Guthrie, Executive Dean, Student Relations, The Ohio State University, delivered the Founders' Day address.

The honorary degrees of Doctor of Divinity were conferred upon The Reverend Daniel D. Corl, B.A., B.D., Superintendent, The Ohio Sandusky Conference of the EUB Church, Findlay, Ohio and The Reverend J. Castro Smith, B.A., Superintendent, Tennessee Conference of the EUB Church, Knoxville, Tennessee. The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Mr. Jerry G. Spears, Sr., B.A., Director, The Jerry Spears Company, Funeral Directors, Columbus, Ohio.

NEW SCHOLARSHIP FUND

If you were watching nationwide television a few weeks ago you saw John Franklin Smith, '10, talking about Otterbein on "About Faces". Professor Smith has been talking about Otterbein most of his life, making its goals his goals.

His friends, colleagues and students all over the country have banded together to do him honor by establishing the J. F. Smith Scholarship Fund.

Contributions to the Smith Scholarship Fund can be made through the Development Fund of Otterbein College. Let's make this a significant fund in honor of a truly distinguished educator.

Otterbein Elected TO CEEB

One of 350 American colleges and universities holding membership, Otterbein in October was officially voted into membership in the College Entrance Examination Board.

The board, a non-profit organization, conducts research and service activities in the field of college admissions. Its best known activity is its program of entrance examinations. It also sponsors an advanced placement program through which member schools give college credit for college-level courses taken in secondary schools.

PARENTS COMMITTEE

During the past school year, a Parents Committee was organized at Otterbein with Morris E. Allton, '36, father of Marilyn Allton, '61, as chairman.

The committee was in session twice during the year. At the initial meeting President Turner stressed the fact that the college administration and parents have one thing in common; namely, what is best for the Otterbein students. "It is our desire to bring parents more fully into the Otterbein family and make them a part of the team which is engaged in providing the best possible education for our students," said Dr. Turner in commenting on the purpose of the organization.

The first major activities of the committee will be (1) to assist in the freshman orientation program on the day new students arrive in the fall, and (2) to assist in planning a Parents Day to take the place of the Dads' Day observed over the past few years. Some of the special features of Dads' Day will be continued and new ones added. The committee to plan this day, which will be on October 14, consists of two parents, two administrative officers, two faculty members and two students.

The committee urged the continuation of the policy of sending TOWERS to all parents of students and recommended that one page be devoted to items of special interest to parents.

It also recommended that the T & C should be made available to parents on a paid-subscription basis.

Mr. Schultz, director of the alumni program, reported that alumni clubs will be encouraged to make parents an integral part of their club life and organization.

The chairman of the Parents Committee will automatically be a member of the Development Board.

The college welcomes this new committee and believes that a new avenue has been found whereby it can better serve its students.

Otterbein Authors - Can You Help?

One of the objectives of the "Otterbein Room" collection in the College Library is to bring together as complete a gathering as possible of writings past and present by graduates and faculty members of Otterbein. The "Otterbein Authors" shelf is as yet rather short, but it is a good start and the collection should grow rapidly.

You may be able to help. Best of all, if you happen to have copies of either your own or some other Otterbinian's books, that you can spare, send them to Dr. Robert Price, curator of the Otterbein Room, who will see that they are guided safely to their permanent place of honor. Or, if you know of such publications, send in the names of authors and titles so that they can be put in the record for possible future acquisitions.

We are printing below a list of the Otterbein-authored books now in the collection. Pamphlets, magazine articles, music and manuscripts, also wanted, are omitted here for lack of space.

ARCADY SORORITY RE-ACTIVATED

After a period of ten year's inactivity, Rho Kappa Delta Sorority, Arcady, was re-activated on May 7, 1961.

As a result of action taken by the original reorganization committee composed of Catherine Suter Frey, '49, and Dorothy Deane Schmidt, '50, a permanent re-activation committee was formed in order to organize the sorority. The permanent committee was composed of Arcady alumnae Catherine Suter Frey, '49; Edith Gallagher, '47; Miriam Ziegler Beams, '48; Donna Love Lord, '39; and active representative, Sheila Leonard. Officers for the newly-active chapter include president, Jo Ann Hoffman; vice-president, Judith Carter; secretary, Sandra Holby; and alumnae secretary, Ruth Freeman. Dr. Elizabeth O'Bear and Mrs. Fred Thayer serve as faculty advisers.

*May Day
of the Roaring Twenties*

May Day, 1961, at Otterbein College took its theme from the era of the May Day play, "Inherit the Wind", a drama based on the famous John Scopes trial of 1925. The program followed a judicial format inspired by the court room scenes of the play, as the queen and her court in traditional splendor reigned over the festivities of the day.

Miss Sue Milam, a junior from Nitro, West Virginia, was crowned 1961 May Queen in a ceremony held on Saturday morning, May 13, in the Westerville City Park bandshell. A psychology and sociology major, Miss Milam is a member of Epsilon Kappa Tau (Arbutus) sorority for which she serves as chaplain. She is also a cheerleader, a member of WAA, Delta Tau Chi and Church Choir, and has been selected to be a junior counselor for next year.

The queen's court included the retiring queen, Miss Marilyn Allton, Westerville; maid of honor, Miss Jean Erichsen, Greensburg; attendants, Miss Judy Jones, Bay Village, and Miss Cathie Hawkins, Warren; flower girl, Tracy Dodrill; and crown-bearer, Tim Kish.

The May Day festivities began with the May Day Breakfast sponsored by the YWCA. At 10:30 a.m. the May Day pageant, following the Roaring 20's theme, was presented in the Band Shell. The identity of the queen was not revealed until that time.

The morning program which featured the crowning of the queen, also included presentations of the Modern Dance Club, Quiz and Quill and singing groups; and concluded with the traditional winding of the May Pole.

A carillonic bell recital, track-meet, and sorority teas filled the afternoon hours, and the day's program ended with the homecoming play presented to the queen and her court in Cowan Hall in the evening.

Directing the day's activities were Miss Carol Johannesen, general chairman, and Miss Bernice Glor, program chairman.

On the Way to a New Record in Giving

ALUMNI

During the first six months of 1961, 1,817 alumni contributed and pledged a total of $69,637.46 towards our goals of 2,500 gifts and $95,000. It would appear that we should easily reach our goals; however, we must remember that personal solicitations in six major Ohio cities have been completed. If every one who contributed in 1960 will repeat his gift this year, we shall exceed our goals.

In the six Ohio cities (Cincinnati, Dayton, Columbus, Akron, Toledo, Cleveland) and suburbs, a total of 2,421 Otterbein alumni were solicited personally in joint campaigns with 17 other Ohio Colleges. In these efforts, 1,420 (58.2%) responded with gifts totaling $27,902.

Of the seventeen colleges in the cooperative effort, seven have more than 2,000 alumni in the six cities. They are as follows: Dayton 4,462, Ohio Wesleyan 4,015, Baldwin Wallace 3,540, Wittenberg 2,566, Otterbein 2,421, Capital 2,356 and Denison 2,222.

Of these seven larger colleges, Otterbein stood first in the percentage contributing and fourth in the amount contributed.

BEAT CAPITAL!

Early in the year Jim Toedtman, Capital '36, challenged his wife, Ella B. Smith Toedtman, Otterbein '36, to a contest involving financial class support of their alma maters. Ella B. promptly accepted. The contest was to close on Alumni Day.

When the fateful day arrived, these were the results:

	Capital	Otterbein
Number in class	77	135
Number of gifts	28	46
Percentage	36.36	34.07
Total	$804.00	$827.50
Average gift	$28.71	$17.98

Since Alumni Day, the Otterbein totals have been boosted to 35 gifts (45.4%) and $1,004.00 or an average gift of $28.68.

FOUNDATIONS

On the following pages is a record of the 1,381 corporations doing business in Ohio, which last year contributed over a million dollars to the 31 private colleges making up the Ohio Foundation of Independent Colleges.

Otterbein's share of this total amounted to $30,931.38. In the ten years since the Foundation was organized, corporations have contributed to Otterbein over a quarter million dollars.

These corporations deserve our vote of appreciation. Look over the list and, whenever possible, give them your business. If opportunity permits, express to officials of these companies your thanks for their support of the private colleges of Ohio.

CHURCH

Otterbein receives $50.00 annually from the E.U.B. Church. This is in addition to amounts received through special campaigns such as the United Crusade of 1955-59.

Members of the church contribute only 42¢ per year per member for the annual support of their seven colleges. This is surely inadequate support.

Otterbein has challenged the conferences in its area to raise an additional $1.00 per member per year to be used as follows: one half for operating purposes of the college and one half for financial aid for the students attending Otterbein from each of the conferences. The conferences have accepted the challenge and will make an effort in that direction this year.

Evelyn Bale Returns To Otterbein

Evelyn Bale

Alumni and other friends of Otterbein will be pleased to learn that Mrs. William G. Bale (Evelyn Edwards, '30) has returned to her alma mater in an administrative capacity. Her new position is that of Assistant to the Vice President in Charge of Development.

Mrs. Bale joined the Otterbein staff in 1942 as secretary to the president. In 1944, she became the assistant to the Centennial Director and played an important role in the planning of the Centennial observance, and in the promotion of the financial campaign which raised $640,000. She is best remembered for her co-authorship of the Centennial drama, Each in His Time.

Following the Centennial, she assisted in the organization of the Development Program which has proved so invaluable to the college over the past thirteen years.

From 1949-1952 she served in an administrative capacity at Ohio Northern University and from 1952 until the present, she was the Office Manager, Student Field Experience Office, College of Education, the Ohio State University.

With the launching of the ten-year campaign for $5,000,000 additional staff is required for the Development Office. With Mrs.

HONOR ROLL OF CONTRIBUTORS

TENTH YEAR ENDING MAY 31, 1961 TOTAL $1,001,022

THIRTY-TWO colleges working together in the Ohio Foundation of Independent Colleges share with friends the names of 1282 "corporate good citizens" whose gifts have made the Foundation's tenth anniversary a million dollar year. Now more and larger gifts are needed if the colleges are to serve adequately, without tax support, ever-growing enrollments. Alumni and other friends will help as they note and commend firms listed here, encourage still others to add their names.

ACHIEVING ITS FIRST MILLION DOLLAR YEAR, the Ohio Foundation is now half way toward its goal. Charts here show the need and the help given thus far by firms honored on these pages.

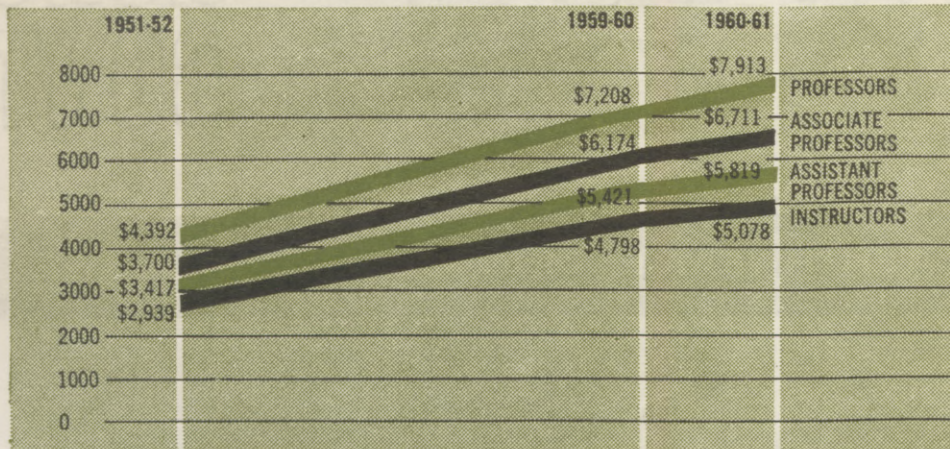

Enrollments have doubled in the 10 years Ohio's non-tax-supported colleges have been working together in the Foundation. Plans have been made for at least 50 percent more students in the next 10 years. Every student paying most of his own way in an independent college means a savings in business taxes estimated up to $1,000 per year, over compulsory cost to business if the student had needed to go instead to a public university.

Business contributions have been of greatest aid in making possible long-delayed increases in faculty salaries. With this assistance, averages for all ranks have gone up considerably, but they still suffer in comparison with the 1960 average of $6270 reported for U. S. railroad workers, to mention only one example. The continuing need, then, is for still more corporate gifts to advance college salaries to the point where the best of present teachers can be retained and many new ones of high qualifications obtained for those ever-increasing student bodies.

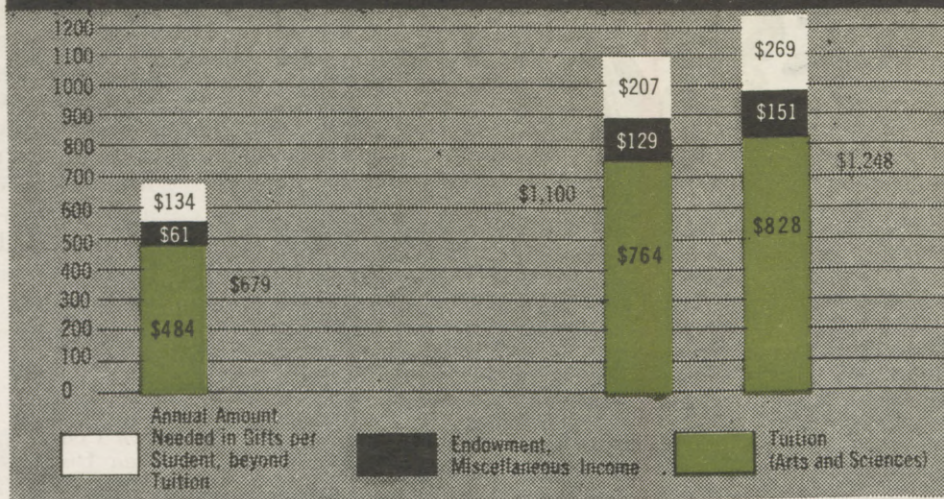

In contributions reported here, business firms now give about one-ninth of the amount OFIC colleges must receive in gifts each year, beyond tuition and other sources of income. Surely the new goal of two-ninths, instead of one, is a reasonable request for the business world which, in this better preparation of both its workers and its patrons, is the greatest beneficiary of the colleges.
