Bits of Travel

We were sailing on the great old ocean—sailing, sailing, sailing on the trackless sea. Our steamer seemed almost invested with life; we could feel the throbbing of the great engine as if it were the heart-beats of some living thing; so proud she seemed as her bow swiftly cut through the gleaming water, leaving only a long line of smoke behind; how massive she seemed when we realized that she was almost a little city in herself. What a feeling of responsibility this good ship must have, for she carries thousands across the sea each year!

Our first steamer experiences!—they are memorable ones. Such short pleasant days. Now we wonder what we did all day long—they slipped by before we knew it. In the morning we were rudely wakened by the bugler—we can hear that bugler yet. He could surpass any one ever heard in making excruciating noises. Half an hour after the rising summons, the same bugler called us to breakfast. Such temptations as were set before us! Pork chops, hot biscuits and buck-wheat cakes!—but we timid sailors regretfully denied ourselves and left those delicacies to the more experienced ones. After breakfast a brisk walk on deck, then we settled down in our lazy steamer chairs, snugly wrapped in our comfortable rugs with nothing to do but watch the continually changing sea and sky and gossip. There was the young bud, the little girl of whom all on the steamer were fond; there was the bride and groom; there was the full bloom rose, the gay widow who had completed her sojourn in Dakota and was going abroad hunting new worlds (and hearts) to conquer. There was the sissy boy and the large masculine looking woman and her tiny husband—who says we can't gossip on a steamer?

Great was the excitement if a whale were seen spouting, or a school of porpoises clumsily throwing their gleaming bodies out of the water—and before we knew it the bugle called us to lunch. Still more temptations set before us. After lunch everyone rushed to the bulletin board to see what progress the steamer had made in the previous twenty-four hours—this particularly interested the men, and soon they would adjourn to the smoke-room where the number was announced which had won the pool. In the afternoon there would be deck quoits or a shuffle-board tournament. Books were to be had from the library; we did not lack for occupation.

The crowning feature of the day was the dinner. What ravenous appetites we did develop up on deck doing nothing, and how we did enjoy those dinners! But great was the disappointment if ice cream was not on the bill-of-fare, for we almost felt at home when we could have good United States ice cream.

The most beautiful part of the day was in the evening, when the sky was a deep blue and the waters so dark, when the stars came out one by one, and the lady-moon modestly appeared from out the water; when the northern lights glimmered and waned so mysteriously—sailing on and on—only the water for miles and miles. Solemn thoughts came, and we marveled at the power which made it all.

As the day slipped by, and the morning came for us to land—our first impression of England! What could the matter be? Had there been a fire? What caused all this fog and smoke? We will not soon forget the feeling that came over us when we saw our first England train. It seemed so absurd and toylike that our first impression was to laugh. The wheels were very high, and the carriage seemed almost to be set on top of them, giving the impression of the car being on stilts; and the whistle, a shrill, high-pitched noise that nearly sent us into hysterics. Nevertheless the English trains run very smoothly and easily and make splendid time. As we traveled on the continent we were amused at the signals for starting the trains in different countries. In Switzerland two bells are rung, first one of high pitch, then a lower, the high one again, and the lower. In Austria a man walks the length of the train and rings a dinner-bell, and in Italy a horn is blown.

Dear, beautiful, dirty Italy, with her blue skies and filthy streets, her exquisite churches and her lazy people. The next morning we attended service at one of the numerous churches, for old Rome has so many that should you want to go to church every day for a year you might go to a different one each time, and still have some left over for the next year. We had some trouble in getting into the church on account of the crowd about the door, men and women standing through the long ceremonies. We however worked our way in, walked up the nave and sat down on the little rush-bottomed chairs. Presently a man with a tin cup in his hand came toward us and demanded fifteen centimes from each for our seats. That explained it; they would stand for hours instead of paying the fifteen centimes, for the people of Italy are poor and that amount means much to them.

The next thing which perplexed us was why the women all had handkerchiefs on their heads. We found out later that they are not permitted in the church with uncovered heads, so since they wear no hats, on entering a church they throw their handkerchiefs over their heads. Fancy a congregation in our country where the women all wear handkerchiefs instead of hats.

The queerest church we saw in Rome was the Church of the Cappuccini which is in connection with a Franciscan monastery near by. In the crypt of the church is a small plot of sacred ground from Jerusalem. All the monks wished to be buried there. The space was insufficient for the needed use, so upon the death of a brother the body longest buried was removed to make room for the next, the bones being thoroughly cleaned and taken apart. Five rooms are fantastically and grotesquely decorated with the bones of over seven hundred monks. For instance, the walls of one room are lined with neat piles of skulls, the ceiling ornamented by traceries of jaw-bones cut in cross sections, a chandelier hangs from the center, the chains being made from certain bones of the spinal column. And several of the best preserved monks, still clothed in their monastic habits, stand guard over it all. It is perplexing how these poor fellows are ever going to get together again on the Last Great Day, for here they are mixed with hundreds of others; and, too, we have reason to know that a few portions of them are in the United States of America. What patience they will need to have.

All summer we were amused to see how much people would look at our feet, especially in Germany. For some time we were puzzled, but a satisfactory solution was found when we were in Switzerland. It seems that the Continental people can tell nationality better by the shoes than anything else, and they were looking at our shoes to see whether we were English, Italian or French.

One thing occurred which might have been rather serious. We had staid over night at Neuchatel. Immediately after breakfast, which consisted of beans and coffee (of course), we went to the railway station. The train was already in and the carriages all so full that the four of us could not find seats in one. Two of us were obliged to sit in one, and the other two in another. We were leaving Neuchatel for Paris by the fast express,—an all-day journey and a tiresome one, for the scenery of France is monotonous and uninteresting. Six hours dragged slowly away, and it was one o'clock. Soon we would come to Dijon where we expected twenty minutes wait and where we also expected to get something to take the place of one noon-day meal [by far the greater consideration] for our breakfast was decidedly dainty and we were hungry as the proverbial bears.

The train pulled into Dijon station; as it stopped four heads appeared simultaneously at the carriage windows. "Do you think we better get out," asked one member of the party; "Of course," was the answer. The other two demurred. We two decided, however, that we were hungry enough to brave any danger. What wouldn't we give for something to eat!—and besides the train was scheduled for twenty minutes wait at Dijon, surely we would have plenty of time. Accordingly we started out to make a raid, determined to get something to eat by means fair or foul. Our trials and tribulations in making ourselves understood, and in exchanging Swiss for French money! But we bought eight precious sandwiches, and started to stroll back to the train leisurely, glad of a chance to stretch our weary limbs. As we suddenly came in sight of our train, imagine our dismay when we found that it was moving. Dot was hanging out of the window and screaming to us to hurry. We didn't need to be told; we picked up our skirts and ran at a speed that would do any track-team proud. Terrifying thoughts dashed through our muddled brains; we did not know our address for Paris, we could speak no French, and we had no money with us. We must make that train. That awful step, could we make it? A kind old Dutch gentleman stood at the door to pull us in. One desperate jump, and—yes we were in, even if the guard did slam the door on our feet.

After the first excitement was over the thought suddenly came to me that we three had the sandwiches, that poor Miss X was alone in the other compartment, and that there was absolutely no way of reaching her until the train would stop. By looking through the tiny window between the two compartments we could see her resignedly munching sweet chocolate and reading the guide book.

Five more hours dragged by, and we stopped at a station not far from Paris. Snatching the sandwiches, we made a hasty exit, and were over with the lonely member of our party in double quick time. It is needless to say that no sandwiches ever tasted so good or were so thoroughly enjoyed by us.

Oratorical Contest

The Oratorical Contest held February 13, in the college chapel was an event of considerable importance, and the success of its every feature is a source of gratification to the college. Enthusiasm was abundant. The number of contestants was greater than at any previous contest for several years, and the contest was not confined merely to the upperclassmen. A healthful spirit of emulation has stirred up some rising orators, and this fact points to a bright future for oratory in Otterbein. All honor is due those who entered the preliminary. Each one could not win, but each is far from being a loser in the end. The contest was marked by a lively interest from start to finish. Music was furnished by the glee clubs of the two ladies' societies, and the Lustspiel Overture also was rendered by Misses Adrienne Funk and Belle Elder.

The first oration, The Future of Our Nation, was by Roy L. Harkins. He said that the future of a nation is determined by its present conditions, its present by the past civilization. By separating American civilization into four great factors—government, creative spirit, education, morality and religion—the orator proposed to show that our country has a good foundation for the future, a foundation unsurpassed by any other country. From this he concluded that so long as the nation retains these characteristics it will continue to advance, and no mind can foretell the place it may attain.

Mr. Harkins spoke with an earnestness that only can come from a firm belief in the subject. The emotions of a speaker must come to his aid, or he seems to lack conviction.

Mr. Sherman W. Bilsing followed with The Greatest of Constructions. "Today there is a tendency among mankind to overestimate the material things of life and to crowd out the chief thing—the building of a noble life;" "to substitute for a truly victorious life a spurious success." The man who has attained true nobility and usefulness has observed four great principles: growth, fulness, service, and character. The necessity for growth is a law of all living beings, a condition for success. The truly great life is one of service, the end of which is the development of character. These lines of thought were elaborated and discussed clearly and forcibly. Mr. Bilsing showed a strong grasp of the subject matter, and delivered his oration with ease and composure.

The third contestant was H. F. Sayre, who took first place. In treating Our Social Problem he presented a broad view of the conditions of to day. He removed the hope for the betterment of society by means of a social revolution and traced the evils of the industrial world to the greed for gold and mutual distrust of labor and capital. He found the remedy in education and in the observance of the golden rule by individuals and corporations. Mr. Sayre proceeded straight to the mark in his investigation of the problem. His oration bears a peculiar directness that is at once convincing, and his delivery was easy.

The only lady contestant was Miss Blanche Bailey, of basketball fame. Her subject was The Use of Money in Politics. Miss Bailey possesses a smooth delivery, having a good, clear voice, and articulating especially well.

The value of this last cannot be emphasized too much, for half the success of an oration lies in its being well heard. Miss Bailey's presentation of the power of money to corrupt was striking. The remedy for the corrupted life of today she found in "men such as fear God, able men, men of truth." The advance of civic righteousness marks the onward sweep of Christian civilization. In her closing sentences the orator foretold the "Empire of Service" which will rise upon the principles of truth and righteousness. By her manner of emphasis she showed a good grasp of the thought she was presenting.

The last orator was Guy D. Swartzel. His was a unique treatment of China's Choice. The indifference of the Chinese is the result of the long trial given to Confucianism. Not Russia, with her autocracy, nor Germany, with her militarism, nor England, with her opium, can resurrect the latent life of China. The lot falls to America, with her freedom and justice, and her republican forms of government. The speaker possessed great earnestness in his delivery.

Judges	Thought and Composition				Delivery				Final Average
	L. H. Shane	J. P. Landis	Galbreth	Average	McKenzie	Hartfield	Rightmire	Average
Harkins ..	90	88	88	88½	70	80	80	76½	82½
Bilsing ..	94	92	87	91	83	60	75	72½	81 5-6
Miss Bailey	93	90	90	91	81	75	72	76	83½
Swartzel ..	96	87	90	91	80	70	85	78½	84½
Sayre	92	88	94	91½	88	90	87	88½	89 5-6

The contest as a whole was a success. The orators all performed creditably. Oratory true to nature, not manufactured for the occasion, is a study, and those who attain distinction in this branch of college work are to be envied as much as the man who scores the most touchdowns for the 'Varsity.

EDITORIAL

Your attention is called to the list of books added to the college library since the last list was published.
That the library is being made more useful with each addition is a source of gratification.

"Heard melodies are sweet, but those unheard Are sweeter"

The beauty of the cantata-rendering of February 6 goes without saying, but our sympathy goes out to many of the students who were debarred from hearing the chorus because of the smallness of the chapel.

May the new music hall go up soon!

It is sincerely regretted that Prof.
Evans' article in the January ÆGIS suffered so grievously from error.
The subject is well treated, and is one of interest to all. A blunder in page formation is the cause of the trouble. In reading simply transfer the first ten lines on page 8 to the top of the second column on page 7.

It is the general opinion that for Otterbein the Honor System would be superfluous and futile, owing to the spirit of honesty that characterizes the student body. The Student Senate, or Assembly, was considered with only the purpose of facilitating the intercourse between faculty and students in the exigencies which may arise from time to time. To give the student the right of a voice in affairs that pertains to his welfare in college was the intent of the promoters. But with the harmonious and co-operative spirit existing in Otterbein the idea has not been taken up with the expected readiness, and some of the other advantages of the Senate have been overlooked.

When it becomes necessary to stir up a little spirit during the football season, the first resort is the Mass Meeting. When a meeting is desired of the Oratorical Association or Debating Club, which include the student body as a whole, the loudest possible heralding is necessary in order to assemble a paltry few, barely enough to transact business. The rest know practically nothing of what is being done, and the work must be performed by the faithful ones. Any new project is announced in chapel service, sometimes encroaching too far on the time of the next recitation.

Now the query arises as to whether a better effect cannot be derived by holding regular meetings of the Assembly, which will also call for the students en masse. The interests of all these different organizations can there be considered, and the good ideas and useful information which now are lost to the majority of students will not be so wasted. The time consumed in the efforts of the officers of the different associations to assemble enough people for a business meeting will also be saved, and the honor connected with such office-holding will not be so over-shadowed by laborious and too-often unsuccessful agitation.

The Assembly is needed in Otterbein not so much to give form to an Honor System nor to bring closer relations between students and faculty, as to facilitate the work of these other student organizations.

Dr. William J. Dawson, the distinguished preacher, orator and author, of London, England, was heard on February 16 instead of the scheduled date. The subject was "Savonarola, Monk, Patriot, and Martyr." It was a rare privilege to hear a man whose books have so wide a circulation in this country and England as Dr. Dawson's.

Otterbein is succeeding in holding her own in basketball. The Varsity has won three of the four games already played, winning from Bliss College, Heidelberg University and Wittenberg University. The girls have made a clean record so far, winning from all teams played—Muskingum and Ohio State.

This is a good showing in this line of college sports, having lost but one game in the first half of the season. The members of the teams have high hopes of making a clean sweep of the games to come and promise the supporters of the sport a good article of ball in all of the games yet to be played. Captain Smith of the 'Varsity and Miss Bailey, captain of the girls' team, deserve much credit in building up the teams that have represented the University so creditably during the portion of the season just passed.

WITTENBERG VS. OTTERBEIN.

Otterbein displayed great basketball ability and team work in the game played with Wittenberg, Jan. 26. This game, played on the home floor, was a treat to a hundred and fifty loyal rooters who saw the game. From the beginning it was evident that O. U. would carry away honor of victory. The 'Varsity took the lead and ran the score up to 14 before the visitors got a goal. From this time on, Wittenberg succeeded in getting an occasional basket but owing to the good guarding of the O. U. players the score, from a Wittenberg standpoint, did not reach alarmingly high figures.

Kring and Sanders did most of the goal throwing for O. U. making 36 of the 61 points chalked to the credit of the local five, Weaver and Strahl coming next with five goals each, which brought the total score to the overwhelming enormity of 61.

Wittenberg played a good article of ball, but it was a case of "best team biggest score," and O. U. claims the victory on accuracy in throwing baskets and team work.

Lineup:

O. U. (61)	WITTENBERG (17)
Sanders.....	R. F..... Baskenville-Harford
Strahl.....	L. F..... D. Young
Weaver	C..... Stoner
Smith.....	R. G..... Swinehart
Kring.....	L. G..... B. Young
Score—First half 29-6; second half 32-11.
Goals—O. U., Sanders 9, Kring 9, Strahl 5, Weaver 5. Wittenberg—Baskenville 2, Stover 2, B. Young 3. Foul goals—Strahl 5; D. Young 3. Referee—Morret, Wittenberg. Umpire—Rosselot, Otterbein. Halves—20 and 15.
Final score—O. U. 61; Wittenberg 17.

HEIDLEBERG VS. OTTERBEIN.

The 'Varsity played their usual good game when Heidelberg went down in defeat by the score of 36 to 20. The game was an attraction on the home floor and a large crowd was in attendance. It was a game in which the teams were more evenly matched than that of the week before. Good team work by the 'Varsity won the game for O. U.

Though frequent fouling by Heidelberg detracted somewhat from the interest of the game, it was one enjoyed by the rooters who showed that the old time spirit is still latent in the supporters of the tan and cardinal teams.

All players on the team are to be commended for their good playing.

DENISON VS. OTTERBEIN.

The Otterbein 'Varsity basket ball team journeyed to Granville January 18 to contest for supremacy with the Denison five. From a spectator's standpoint, it was a game of almost unparalleled swiftness, and was intensely exciting. Otterbein was defeated, but Denison by no means had a walk-away.

The defeat was directly due to the wonderful work of Livingstone, who scored 28 points out of a total of 42. To see him throw the ball meant to see the score raised two points for Denison, and but for his phenomenal work, Otterbein would have returned victors.

Kring again displayed his basketball skill by throwing four field goals and playing a good game at guard. In breaking up team work it would be hard to find his equal in the state.

Probably the greatest feature of the game, outside the playing of Livingstone was the team work of the Otterbein boys. Smith and Kring would repeatedly carry the ball from one end of the floor to the other, but this team work was obliterated when Captain Smith was forced to leave the floor on account of an injury. Smith had been playing a good game, and the team was dealt a severe blow by his loss.

Weaver tried to do his best, but everyone knows just exactly the proposition he was up against. Livingstone is touted by the most basketball experts to be the best center in Ohio, and surely the big fellow has demonstrated this time and time again.

Otterbein forwards, Strahl and Sanders, held their men down well besides throwing several goals themselves. Voorhies, who took Captain Smith's place at guard, played well for the short time left.

The Otterbein boys did not feel discouraged over the result, as they played under a great disadvantage, for the ball could go out of bounds on all sides of the floor. The boys could not get use to this, and it was a hard matter for them to locate the basket on this account. The game was very clean, being free from fouls and rough playing.

OTTERBEIN GIRLS VS OHIO STATE.

Never has the Otterbein girls' basketball team achieved a greater triumph than the winning of the game of February 9 with Ohio State. Considerable doubt was held as to the outcome of the contest, but when once the accurate free throwing of Miss Worstell and the clever field work of Miss Hansford were observed, the rooters for the home team felt sure of success. The fast work of Otterbein's centers and the excellent playing of the guards, Miss Bailey and Miss Henry, are deserving of high praise. The team as a whole is to be praised, and will no doubt stand well in the rank of state teams. Lineup—

THE SECONDS.

At Worthington a fast basketball game was played between Otterbein seconds and Worthington high. Otterbein started things at the first blast of the whistle and registered 57 points during the game. Their team work was superb and of fast order.

Special mention is to be made of Captain Libecap's work at forward, 12 goals from field being credited to him. Voorhies and Cornetet also played strong games.

Too much credit cannot be given the Worthington boys for their consistent work.

FRESH.-JUN. 48 SEN.-SOPH. 17.

In a game which was fast and furious the Freshman-Junior combination turned the first of the interclass series to their advantage, Wednesday, February 13. The Seniors and Sophomores played hard and gave the winners a run for the money, but the game was lost by the score 48 to 17. Some old basket ball men were called upon to defend their classes in this scrub-contest, but their lack of practice was against them. Speed was had in plenty, but accurate passing of the ball is equally necessary to good team work, and cannot be kept without constant practice. Libecap did the best goal throwing for the Sophomores, and his hard work at times put the result of the game in doubt. Bailey, Cornetet, and Walters were fortunate in hitting the basket, and their previous practice on the second team gave them good team work. Good work was done by the guards of both sides. The first half closed with the score 21 to 10.

On the Track.

Captain Ayre and Manager Young are doing all in their power to develop a track team that will be even more a credit to the institution than last year's team, which besides some practice meets, defeated Denison and also Kenyon. Through the efforts of the track management an indoor track has been built in the basement of the gymnasium. Here, every afternoon of the week, can be found Capt. Ayre with his cohort of fleet feet and catapulters. Everything is going smoothly and from twenty to thirty men are out daily for practice.

Track athletics is a strong factor in advertising an institution and O. U. bids fair to have a strong aggregation for field work this spring. A little energy, a little sacrifice, a little genuine O. U. spirit and Otterbein will prove her ability in this line.

Much is due Capt. Ayre in building up the track team to its present strength. Capt. Ayre has devoted much time and energy to this purpose, and victory over two of Ohio's prominent universities were the fruits of last year. But there is another chapter to the story before our present captain finishes his term of service to the institution; the team for the coming season will have the assistance and be under the direction of our speedy long distance runner. Not alone in intercollegiate field meets has Capt. Ayre brought honor to Otterbein but he has represented the university in meets of the Amateur Athletic Union of America, winning first prize in the one-mile handicap at Cincinnati in 1906. In recognition of his ability the A. A. U. management recently sent Capt. Ayre an invitation to engage in this year's meet to be held at Chicago March 3d, 1907. This is an opportunity to advertise Otterbein and bring the institution more to the public view. Some excuse would naturally be attached to such an enterprise and it would be necessary to raise a fund sufficient to cover the incidental expenses. Why not be loyal, get together and raise an amount sufficient to put an O. U. representative in the national contest? "Divy up," donate, and let Capt. Ayre kick up the dust in the faces of his opponents.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

To be free is to know the truth.

The nominating committee have named the following officers for the ensuing year: president, J. H. Weaver; vice president, L. P. Cooper; recording secretary, J. F. Smith; corresponding secretary, L. E. Walters; treasurer, G. C. Hamilton. These names will be voted upon Thursday, February 21. Installation occurs April 7.

From present indications the Ohio State Y. M. C. A. presidents' convention will be held at Westerville about the middle of April. This will mean a great deal to the local association.

Thanks are due the missionary committee for pushing the work of securing new books for the missionary library, also to those who contributed the funds.

Seeking for Truth—Dr. F. E. Miller, January 24. Every one who has ever heard Dr. Miller knows that it was a rare opportunity to hear this address. The thoughts he presented were indeed beautiful, grand and sublime.

Doubts and Doubters—Rev. John A. Patterson, Columbus, Ohio, January 31.

This was one of the best lectures ever delivered before the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Patterson is an able speaker. He made an eloquent defense of the Bible, of Christianity, and appealed for a deeper spiritual life.

Bible Promises—W. E. Shear, February 7. Four classifications of promises:—Promises of a savior, to the sinner, to the backslider, and to God's own children, which last culminate in peace, victory and final glory.

Y. W. C. A.

The devotional meetings of Y. W. C. A. have been very spiritual this month. Miss Belle Elder led the meeting of January 29. The girls were asked to make definite decision for Christ. Many of the more timid members took part in the meeting.

Frances Barnett led the meeting of February 5. The subject, "Growth for Christ," was well handled.

February 12 was election of officers for the ensuing year. The following officers were elected: president, Mrs. Minnie Hall; vice president, Lula Bookwalter; recording secretary, Ada Gaut; corresponding secretary, Blanche Bailey; treasurer, Margaret Gaver.

The meeting next week is in charge of the Intercollegiate Committee.

Dr. E. F. Bohn, '02, of Norwood, Ohio, was married December 13 to Miss Nettie Runnels, of Newport, Ky., at the home of the groom's parents, the father of the groom officiating. Dr. Bohn is a graduate of the Ohio Dental College, Cincinnati. The married pair will be at home to their friends at Galion, Ohio, where the groom has opened dental parlors.

Miss Maude Hanawalt, '06, has resumed her work as piano instructor, having suffered from a severe attack of grip. In her absence Miss Edna Swisher, '06, assumed the care of the large class of youthful musicians.

Frank A. Edwards, '03, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Ohio Medical University, was compelled to lay aside all college duties during an experiment with grip lasting over two weeks. He is now jolly as ever.

Judge Miller's marriage to Anna A. Bright, who graduated in music with the class of '83, Otterbein University, took place in 1883."—State Journal.

Miss Bertha Monroe, '99, graduate of the school of art in Otterbein, has been pursuing art studies in Chicago, Ill. She has a flourishing art class at Pataskala, Ohio. Recently she paid her Westerville friends a short call.

"The marriage of Mr. Paul Postlewaite to Miss Jessie Iles will be solemnized on the evening of February 20, at the newly furnished home of the young couple, at 22 East Eleventh avenue. Rev. W. A. Smith, pastor of the Fifth Avenue United Brethren church will officiate.

"Mr. Postlewaite, who is at present in Oxford, Ohio, where he represents the Huffman-Conklin company of this city, met his fiancée at Otterbein university in Westerville, where both were students. Miss Iles was graduated in music at that college.

"On account of the recent death of the father of the bride-elect the marriage will be very quiet. Miss Iles's home is in Logan, Ohio."—Columbus Dispatch.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Mr. D. M. Barnett, former resident and student in college, visited his daughter, Mae, and friends last week.

In McClure's for October begins a noteworthy exposition of the work of Ben B. Lindsey, "The Just Judge," by Lincoln Steffens. Students will to a greater degree appreciate the coming of Judge Lindsey in April after perusing the two sections of this article.

In the January Atlantic Monthly General Morris H. Schaff begins a series of "Reminiscences of West Point Life." Those who have met the general on his recent visit to Otterbein will enjoy the article. It possesses a unique and entertaining style, reminding one of the author's personality in every sentence.

The question for debate chosen by the local debaters is: Resolved that the federal government should levy a progressive inheritance tax constitutionally admitted. It is not certain with what colleges the team will debate, but probably Heidelberg, Wittenberg or Ashland will be selected.

Mrs. D. J. Davis has been ill with lagrippe.

A large poster was received from Africa announcing the 27th annual conference of the United Brethren church in Sierra Leone, held January 14. At this occasion occurred also the corner stone laying of the Albert Academy building. Students are glad to see this reminder from our brother, E. M. Hursh, who is in charge of the academy.

Jim stood 'neath the big arc light,
His head was in a whirl;
His eyes and mouth were full of hair,
His arms were full of girl.

Miss Clara Leshner was compelled to leave school on account of poor health.

On Saturday evening, February 2, the Senior girls gave a reception to the student body in the parlors of the dormitory. This being the first event of importance since the opening of the hall, the entertainment was unique and thoroughly enjoyed by all. Decorations were in violet, the senior color and flower. The appearance of the seniors in cap and gown added to the dignity of the occasion.

Homer Lambert visited his father Saturday and Sunday, February 9 and 10.

Dr. Sanders entertained the young men of his Sunday School class at his home on Friday evening, February 15. The evening was surely one of pleasure to all those in attendance. The Misses Weinland, McFadden, Mary Baker and Hewitt assisted in serving.

The new entrance to the "gym" is a great improvement to the Association building.

Lewis Moore has moved into the Flook property on West Main street.

On the occasion of class basket ball games, Singer and "Jim" Weaver bet the price of rolling a peanut from the college to the postoffice with a toothpick; Garwood and Lambert bet the price of a wheelbarrow ride from the car barn to the college.

J. H. Kirkbride, who was in school last year, spent a few days in town the other day.

The following conversation was overheard at the Senior reception:

Matron—Why, Mr. Postlethwaite, I don't believe that I have seen you calling on any of my young ladies yet.

Sam—No, I guess you have not.

Matron—Well, now, I would be delighted to see you call frequently and on different young ladies.

Sam—Well that would be alright, but I have a sweet-heart over across the country.

Matron—Yes, but we must not be so narrow. It would be alright for you to have one here, too.

Sam—That's true. But I am sure that my wife and babies would object.

Miss Dessie F. Seaman, a summer school student of 1906, is now teaching in Liberty Center, Indiana. Miss Seaman expects to enter school next fall for the regular course.

Skating and coasting have furnished much sport for the students. As usual, some of the partakers in this royal sport have been ducked. Casualties to date are few, but noteworthy:—Custer, Sayre, and Jeanette Good have broken through the ice.

The Prudential Committee at a recent meeting deemed it proper to refer the plans and architect of the new conservatory of music and art to the donor of the funds, Mr. G. A. Lambert, of Anderson, Ind. The building will be erected this summer.

Mr. Clifford Murray, of Canal Dover, Ohio, recently spent a few hours with his sister, Jennie, who is a student in the department of music.

George Trimmer, of Circleville, O., was married on Saturday morning February 8, at Columbus. Mr. and Mrs. Trimmer are now on their wedding trip. Congratulations, George.

The Y. W. C. A. girls entertained the Y. M. C. A. boys, in the Association parlors, on Thursday evening, February 14, from eight to ten. The parlors were decorated with various contrivances of Cupid's art. The refreshments were served in two courses, each young man for the first drawing a valentine, and for the second manipulating a slot machine.

Two of Heidelberg's basket-ball men remained in town from Friday till Sunday following the O. U.—Heidelberg game. During their stay they visited the Philomathean open session and attended the reception in the "dorm."

Beaten at their own game, the Juniors have failed to appear in their yellow caps, deriding the dignity of the Seniors. That expected appearance of "Naughty-seven" in cap and gown was only a bluff, as the empty suit boxes revealed.

The Philophronean literary society will entertain its friends with a patriotic program on Friday evening, February 22. Special music will be a feature.

On Saturday night, February 9, after our girls had defeated the O. S. U. girls in a game of basketball, a band of over-joyous young gentlemen gave vent to their feelings by building a large bonfire in front of the dormitory.

If you think of it look at Worman's mustache the next time you meet him.

The Juniors would like to know if the Freshman expect to banquet them this year.

The McFadden property on North Grove street has been sold to Abram Cooper, whose house on College avenue was purchased by the college. The Cooper house will still be in the list of student homes, and besides right near the dormitory.

Dr. Scott was off his regular beat for one week, February 4 to 11. A severe attack of grip was the cause. This was the first time in 34 years that he was unable to attend his classes. A record hard to equal.

Grant E. Allen, who was in the Freshman class last year, is now employed by the Wrigley Engraving Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Anyone wishing information about what's doing at the dormitory will please call at "Dad's" private office on East Home street.

Many of the fellows are getting anxious for the baseball season to open. Coach Kalmbach expects to have the gym equipped with netting in a few days so that the boys can begin twirling.

Schear (while showing a picture of a young lady's room)—Well, I don't care; they stacked our room and—

The boys laughed.

The lecture given by Dr. Quayle has left some lasting impressions on students. It is not an uncommon thing to hear some of them crying—"Julius Caesar forever!" "Is Rome great?" "It was."

The students from Canton were recently grieved to learn of the death of one of Canton's most prominent lawyers, William A. Lynch, who was McKinley's opponent in several county campaigns.

On Sunday morning, February 9, Isaac Alcuzar, a graduate of the Jerusalem Rabbinical school and a son of a Rabbi, lectured in the college chapel on "The Story of My Conversion or From a Rabbinical Seat to the Foot of the Cross." Mr. Alcuzar is working his way through a medical school and expects to go out as a medical missionary.

A number of students attended the performance of "Twelfth Night," played at Columbus on Friday night, February 8, by an English company. The Elizabethan style of drama was brought out prominently.

—Desired—That dogs be kept out of chapel.

The trials of a teacher are great. Recently, after a long and emphatic explanation of a certain subject, Prof. Durrant was confronted by the following from Henry Davis:—"Now you might think that's right, but I don't."

Tony's fruit store presents an attractive appearance at the old Co-op stand.

Considerable inconvenience was caused by the unexpected failure in the supply of natural gas one day last week. The pressure was restored in a few hours, and study was again resumed. The occurrence emphasizes the superior advantages in the Central Heating Plant.

Worman (in a predicament)—Professor, what do you give as a reason for baldness?

Prof. Snively--Mr. Worman, I attribute that to the lack of hair. I have given the subject some thought for several years.

1st Senior—What will this institution do when our class is graduated?

2nd Senior—I suppose the only thing they can do is to get another one.

Dr. T. J. Sanders assisted in conducting the funeral of Mrs. Eloise Landon Stillman, whose death resulted from an automobile accident in Columbus. Mrs. Stillman, daughter of Mrs. C. P. Landon, of Westerville, and a sister of Hal. D. Landon, a well known newspaper man, was educated at Otterbein. She was formerly the wife of the late Congressman George L. Converse.

Dr. Sanders made a call on Governor Harris on Wednesday of last week.

College Chips, published by the students of Luther College, Decorah, Iowa, is a well edited and wisely printed publication. The resume of Count Tolstoy's life, printed in the January issue, is full of thought and seems to be the result of a very careful study of this peculiar man's life.

A WRONG IDEA.

There is a strong tendency throughout the country to make "college man" and "sport" synonymous terms. This is largely due to the fact that a college man is usually pictured with sporty clothes, a pipe or cigarette in his mouth, and a bulldog following him. Of course this picture represents only an extreme type and not what is highest and best in the college man. However, the high school lads wishing to appear "collegey" copy this extreme type, getting all the evil with none of the good. Then when these youths come to college they think that their baggy trousers, their collection of steins, and the large amount of the "weed" which they consume should entitle them to be seniors. This idea has such a firm hold upon some fellows who come to Alfred that even freshmen make bold to smoke in ladies' rooms in the college buildings. It is time for Alfred and all other colleges to rise up and vigorously protest against having the world think that the chief function of the colleges is to produce sports.—Alfred University Monthly.

Princeton lake, the gift of Andrew Carnegie, is now completed. This great excavation is three and a half miles long, and varies in width from 300 to 1,000 feet.

The new athletic field at Syracuse University is nearing completion. The length of the stadium from the entrance on Irving Avenue to the outer row of seats on the east side is 670 feet, and the width is 470 feet. It will enclose a quarter-mile track. The seating capacity of the stadium will be 20,000, and besides this, a promenade 20 feet wide will extend around the outer row of seats and will contain standing room for nearly as many more. On the east side of the stadium a tunnel leads to the gymnasium.

He who knows and knows he knows is a Senior—follow him.

He who knows and doesn't know that he knows is a Junior—trust him.

He who doesn't know and knows that he doesn't know is a Sophomore—honor him.

He who doesn't know and doesn't know that he doesn't know is a Freshman—pity him.—Ex.
