WESTERVILLE, OHIO, DECEMBER 16, 1912.

SECRETARY SANDLES IS APPLAUDED.

Address of Agriculturist Fairly Bristles With Epigrams.

Mr. A. P. Sandles, a former student of Otterbein, spoke to the student body last Wednesday morning at the regular chapel period. Mr. Sandles is the secretary of agriculture of Ohio and bids well for the same position in the national government.

Mr. Sandles is very decidedly optimistic. He told of the splendid condition of our country, and compared it with others. He stated that in India mothers put out the eyes of their children, that they may be more successful in begging. In Russia there are ten thousand communities which never hear a school bell.

One of the main reasons that Russia lost the Japanese-Russian war was because her men had had no schooling. In the knapsack of every Japanese soldier could be found a motto to this effect, "A duty to do, a task to perform, finish the job." Napoleon, in answer to the question whether he could stop the rebellion or not, said, "I am in the habit of accomplishing that which I undertake." He said that college men were very fortunate, and that those who had grit were already pulling the strings of success.

He next spoke of the poor condition of the schools in the rural districts, and begged for help in making them better. Mr. Sandles is especially interested in the conditions of agriculture and asserted that only thirty-two people in every hundred in Ohio lived on the farm. The churches and the schools of the rural districts are going to ruin on account of the movement of the population to the city. Mr. Sandles closed by saying, "If the college does not broaden your view of life, it does not amount to very much."

The address, which was alive with happy epigrams, met with the hearty applause of the students.

MUSIC MAKERS WIN PRAISE

Quartet Deserves the Title Applied to Themselves.

The usual full house was present to hear the Music Makers give their entertainment, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, and a list of readings. The quartet has appeared on the college platform before, but their numbers were new and of high standard, and were decidedly pleasing.

Each one of the company, besides filling his part excellently in the personnel of the quartet, had a specialty of his own, and acted that part with great satisfaction to the auditors.

The quartet played difficult selections on the harmonaphone with apparent ease. The readings and saxophone-piano solo were greeted with loud applause.

It was the opinion of everyone present that the quartet is justified in styling themselves the "Music Makers."

"Education consists of football, baseball, evening ball, and high ball."

To Hold Gospel Meetings.

Several men of the Young Men's Christian Association will be engaged in evangelistic meetings during the holidays.

One team, consisting of O. W. Breiner, C. W. Foltz, G. S. Nease, and F. A. Hanawalt, will assist C. V. Roop at Sycamore, O., where the latter is in the pastorate.

A second team, composed of Messrs. G. D. Spafford, R. E. Penick, T. H. Nelson, C. W. White and R. E. Baker, will conduct union meetings at Ostrander, O., where, a year ago, the first three men of the team held meetings which were distinguished with marked success.

Glee Club at Hilliards.

The Glee Club gave a concert at the high school, Hilliards, O., Saturday evening. The club was entertained at the Imes home with a chicken dinner prior to the concert.

The Glee Club is indebted to Mr. R. W. Smith, '12, for the successful arrangements of the engagement.

"Nothing ages like laziness."

PAGEANT PLEASURES.

Novel and Instructive Manner of Raising Funds for Association.

The Foreign Association Pageant, reproduced by the girls of the Young Women's Christian Association in the college chapel Friday evening, has met with the hearty approbation of the witnesses present.

Miss Hortense Potts, the president of the association, portrayed the "Spirit of Womanhood," in a charming manner.

Scenes, reproducing the home life and the workings of the association in China, India, South America, and Japan, were given.

Miss Ethel Garn, representing "The Association Spirit," closed the pageant with a pleasing epilogue.

The entertainment, given for the purpose of realizing funds for the summer conference budget, was participated in by a score or more of girls, who acted their parts well.

The association is to be congratulated upon the great success of the undertaking.

Art Reception.

The professors and students of the Art Department made their bow in Otterbein society last Monday evening.

The joint hostesses are to be heartily congratulated upon the delightful time afforded. The most artistic and tasty decorations were indulged. After several interesting contests, light refreshments were served.

Such delightful functions as this one proved to be, surely elevates Otterbein society standard.

Library Remembered.

Mrs. Melissa Ann Fisher, '58, whose death was noted in last week's Review, remembered her alma mater in a most fitting way, by leaving 230 volumes to the college library. Among the most valuable books are 32 bound volumes of "The Living Age."

General Morris Schaff has donated a volume of his "Sunset of the Confederacy."

Sophs Champs by Big Margin

JUNIORS DROP FINAL SCORE 55-18.

The contest is over; the warriors have laid away their armor, and the long exposed hatchet has been buried. The sophs earned their victories by superior playing at every stage of the game and especially the championship game had the juniors at their mercy. The latter team played hard and showed better form than in the senior game.

The champs have the best class team that ever held the championship and should be congratulated regardless of class spirit for their superb work which interested the school in general. The team shows splendid quality and the varsity for the 1913 season should contain the better part of this team. The material in general looks good, and it will be hard to pick the rest of the team. The work of Lash was without fault. He certainly ought to answer on varsity roll call. His injured knee has kept him from violent exercise since the 1910 inter-class season, in which, as captain of the champs he proved himself to be the stronghold of his team. "Boots" should have a good season.

Campbell to Center.

"Chuck" Campbell, Gammill, and Converse, all finished products of "Tink" Sanders, showed the crowd some real basketball. Campbell and Converse repeatedly snatched the ball from their opponent's hands and worked the ball to safe territory with their characteristic style, and then the scorer would "mark two for '1915." Gammill was not feeling good, and did not go in till after half of the first quarter had elapsed. Campbell went to center for Garver, and "Red" immediately caged two nice ones. His weak condition was a great handicap, and the juniors may be glad that "Red" didn't play the game as he did against the freshmen.

"Jack" Arnold was like a live wire, and Hott was helpless in the first half. He managed to get away for three goals during the second, which worried Jack very much. This fellow looks good and his consistent playing will make some one step for that guard position. Converse played his usual game at guard, also counting six goals against his forward's three. Sam should have no trouble in holding down a guard position on varsity, and he surely will prove a valuable man.

The champs might have had a larger score if more care had been given to better team work. Many times long shots were absolutely unnecessary, when a short pass would have counted a goal. The result of the class series gives the coach a good idea of what kind of material from which to pick.

JUNIORS-36; PREPS-15.

Upper Classmen Have no Difficulty in Defeating Academy Team.

The class of 1914 eliminated the spicy Preps from the inter-class championship last Thursday night. Both teams played very loosely and the unusual roughness made the game very fast but without evidence of team-work. Sommers was prominent for the Juniors, making several pretty baskets. Sechrist also played a hard game. Thomas, of the Preps amused the crowd, to a certain extent, with his comic style. He played a good game making the only five points in the first half and scoring six of the ten in the last period. A slight conflict in the first few minutes of play eliminated the Preps' strongest player and an opponent from the game.

SCRUBS LOSE TO W. H. S.

High School Lads are Fast and Display Good Team Work.

The Westerville High School team won from the O. U. Scrubbies in a preliminary to the championship game Monday night by a score of 24 to 14. The contest was very fast, and both teams fought every second of the game. The high school lads showed the best form, and displayed good team work while the Scrubs worked equally hard, but played loosely. Considering the amount of practice and coaching they have had, they played very well. Lightner was good on floor work, and Thomas had his distance from foul line to the basket measured with a thirteen inch ruler, for the midget caged the pill five out of six chances.

Team is Fast.

"Skeeter" also played a good game at guard. Herrick and Foltz divided baskets, each counting two. Sechrist and Watts worked together like clock work, and look to be another Gammill-Campbell combination. They are also Tink's products, and their floor work showed that he had given them some fine points of the game. Seneff starred at his position, playing an all-around game. Rank won mention and looks to be a comer. The whole team is light, but their alertness and head-work will give them a good season. As a preliminary game, the crowd was well satis-

PROSPECTS LOOK GOOD.

Inter-Class Series Reveals New Material to Coach Gardner.

The close of the class games has given one a chance to make a few predictions as to the outcome of our varsity team for the coming season, which opens with Kenyon at Westerville, January 11. Not until now has there been any chance of giving information regarding a first or second team. Of course, there are two or more players for every position, but there are a few who have shown the goods during the crucial moments. Below is just a few statistics about the players.

For forwards, the coach has a few fast men from which to pick. Captain Campbell is a forward, but can be shifted to center if necessity demands. Gammill, Lash and Sommers will run a race for the same position. Among the guards are to be found Converse, Bandeen, Arnold, Kline and Sechrist, and for center, Schnake, or Campbell. As close second team men are Sanders, Lightner, Hott, Snively, Daub, Weaver, and Thomas for forwards; Garver, Herrick, Foltz and Nelson, for center; Reese, Weimer, Funkhouser, Huber and Curts for guards.

This is only a partial list, and does not contain all the players, for there will be some new faces seen when varsity practice starts Tuesday night. There is no reason for an unsuccessful basketball season unless injuries eliminate the likely ones during the season. Too violent practice often kills the best man, and hard, but moderate practice should give Otterbein a successful season in basketball.

fied, for no unnecessary roughness was shown, and fouls were one-sided, Westerville suffering on eight occasions. The contest was somewhat interesting, and proved a good attraction. The Scrubs, however, do not compose the Otterbein Seconds, as many of the best players were saved for the final game.

Varsity "O" Initiation.

Tuesday night at 7:30, the members who were honored with membership in the Varsity "O" Association, will be initiated into the mysteries of that organization.

The ceremonies will take place in the association building.

Dribbles.

Lash worked well. Nine field goals is not bad for a cripple.

Gammill can't stand to be on the side lines. "Red," the soph captain, holds the record for greatest number of goals in the class series next to varsity Captain Campbell.

"Sam" Converse beats anything shown at guard this season. His short experience last year helped to give him a flying start for this season.

Sachrist caged one that astonished him as well as the crowd.

Long shots were too numerous. Team work makes the game scientific and more interesting.

Preparation of Studies.

One of Otterbein's recent graduates led chapel services a short time ago, and offered a few remarks by way of introduction. He said, "I want to say, students, that one of the surest ways to prepare for life's work is by conscientious, daily preparation of studies assigned by your instructors."

Those words are worthy of our careful consideration. Many times we are led to believe that but few students are diligently pursuing their studies in college. On the contrary, studies keep pursuing the scholars. Many wait until the last minute to prepare studies, and as a consequence, the lesson must be hurried over. Very little real studying is done. Lessons are merely "gotten out," and are not prepared. If a lengthy lesson is assigned, pupils grow irritable. They resent every attempt of a professor to manage his work.

If a professor is unable to meet his classes for some cause or other, the student thinks that it is so much gained for him. Is he correct? What is he in college for? Is he spending his father's hard-earned cash for the privilege of being freed from attending classes?

But few have learned the real meaning of a college course. Fewer still have acquired the happy art of knowing how to study. Hap-hazard, slipshod, happy-go-lucky preparation of lessons, will spell for the same kind of character in the business arena of after-college life. What one is and does in college determines what he will be outside of college. Lessons diligently pursued here will go far toward insuring preparation for the tasks one is bound to meet in the hard, hard world.

Secretary A. P. Sandles said at chapel Wednesday morning, "If your education is causing you to have less respect for the church and religion, you had better stop your training."

A few students at Otterbein ought to heed his advice, and be quick about it.

It is said that Cleombrotus cast himself into the sea after reading Plato's "Phaedo." Several members of that fourth-year Greek class will feel like following his example by the time they finish reading it.

An editor is certain to know his paper is being read when somebody wants to knock.

Taft as Professor.

President Hadley, of Yale, has announced the possibility of President Taft's acceptance of the Kent professorship of law at the university. This professorship was last held by Professor Phelps, at one time American minister to Great Britain, and pays $5000 a year. Mr. Taft is debating as to whether he will accept this offer, or pursue his original plans of practicing law after the expiration of his term as president.

Oberlin — Football O's were awarded to sixteen men at a recent meeting of the Athletic Association.

Frank Fisher was selected to lead the team to victory next year.

"Cuts."

Editor of Otterbein Review.

Otterbein is said to be a school with few rules. But it has some rules, which are very good, and at the same time, some seem to be a little radical. Few schools have such strict requirements regarding presence at chapel and classes. With all due regard to the fact that we are paying our money for that privilege, we should not be compelled to be present all the time, but be allowed a few "cuts" each semester. Some schools even allow a student one "cut" per week from chapel. This does not work any very great hardship on any person, many would find it very advantageous, if they could "cut" without injuring their grades.

PERSONALITY—ITS RANK AND VALUE.

Agnes Drury, '14.

Personality is the measure of a man. It is God's unit of measure, and the one essential factor which enters into the process of weighing souls. From the beginning of the world God's policy toward the race in this respect has never changed. When the last deposit is made, and the books balanced, the sum of a man's credit will be figured in terms of personality, and those who put their trust in fame and riches will find themselves aliens and paupers.

Now, the criteria of success which men have held, have varied from age to age. They have been elevated with succeeding generations, and their growth upward has been commensurate with the degree of civilization and enlightenment which any age or nation of men has attained. The ambition of the Spartan youth was fixed upon the developing of a powerful physique which could endure the rigors of war. For him success meant the homage which was given for the military service which he had heroically rendered. To attain this success he was willing to undergo any privation, and to bear intense suffering, if, by any means, he might inure himself to the hardships of war and gain the coveted glory.

The Roman ideal of success, both individual and national, was mastery in the sense of domination of others. It was this standard of success which made them consider him a hero who subjected his neighbor or made the barbarian to pass under the yoke. Self-mastery, to them, held a subordinate place, for success was measured by the degree to which they were able to dominate others.

Crude as may seem to have been the conceptions of these earlier peoples as to the factors which enter into true living, we shall be compelled to admit, that in the nineteenth century we have employed quite as mean a criterion. We may not yet say that we have passed that age in America which is characterized by an excessive commercialism, although we have discerned the signs of its decay. It happens that in the progress of men, great changes usually come about as the result of extreme practices. There is a natural recoiling, and men arouse themselves on the brink of the precipice of calamity,—stop the clock,—reverse the motion until the pendulum swings in the opposite direction. Such is coming to be the revolt from our excessive commercialism and its pulse is being felt the world over.

In the years which have just passed, America might have been described as that country where the dollar was the monarch of men's hearts. While in the mind of the clerical class a higher standard has been maintained, the unlimited energy of our American people seems to have been almost wholly exerted in the feverish pursuit of wealth. To become a multi-millionaire, or to approximate that station as nearly as possible was the acme of all honor.

But America of today is shrinking from such a characterization. A desire to serve the present age is breathed in the spirit of the brotherhoods and social service ventures. A new standard of true living and success is presenting itself. Men are designed for progress, and excellence of personality will be the ultimate standard of success and the final goal of existence. It has already claimed somewhat of its destined place.

In the educational world it has long been the chief factor in the efficiency of a teacher. That recommendation is the strongest, which, in addition to a statement of sufficient intellectual attainment, can declare the applicant to possess a strong and upright personality. Buildings and equipment without men, cannot make a college. Dr. Littlefield says that in that department of teaching which the Sunday school undertakes to do, 90% of what makes for success is personality.

But the teaching is not the only profession which emphasizes personality as a factor in efficiency. The commercial world is insistent upon the same quality. It is said that 80% of what makes for success in business is personality. A man of true integrity, with an engaging personality, is the person who wins recognition in the secular pursuits. Aside from the satisfaction of a

Music Committee Furnishes Association with Program.

A large crowd came out to the music session of the Young Men's Christian Association last Thursday evening.

The program consisted of a very good number by the orchestra, a beautifully rendered solo by D. A. Bandeen, and a cornet duet by Messrs. Breiner and Williams. The association quartet sang a number for the men, which was followed by a piano solo by Mr. Nease.

The next number received a good bit of praise, being a solo by Mr. Spafford, responded to by the quartet, which was stationed in the corridor. Mr. Plott then favored the audience with a baritone solo.

The members of the association are very much gratified with Mr. Spafford's work as chairman of the music committee of the Y. M. C. A., and will look forward for the next musicale with pleasure.

Mr. Guy Hartman will be in charge of Thursday's meeting, which will savor of the significance of Christmas.

Y. W. C. A.

Myrtle Winterhalter led the Y. W. C. A. on the subject of "Pure Gold." In her discussion she spoke of gold being referred to so often in the Bible as a reward for some worthy deed.

There are several factors that go to make up a life which is as pure gold—truth, honesty, sincerity, humanity. It seems strange, but the real truth is a hard thing to tell or live up to. We may tell a half truth, or act an untruth. Social untruth is so common. People who live honestly only because it is the best policy, are not honest. Honesty is tested by the fiery ordeal of temptation. Be sincere. Nature is sincere, and nature is honest. "Be true to yourself and then you can not be false to any man."

Humanity and true greatness go hand in hand. Be humble in your work. Others will find you out if you are true and pure as gold.

Tonight—"The House with No Windows." Leader, Clara Hendrix.

BEING A MAN.

Rudyard Kipling.

If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs and blaming it on you;
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too;
If you can wait and not be tired of waiting,
Or being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or being hated don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good, nor talk too wise;
If you can dream—and not make dreams your master;
If you can think—and not make thoughts your aim;
If you can meet with triumph and Disaster
And treat those two impostors just the same;
If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken
Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools,
Or watch the things you gave your life to, broken,
And stoop and build 'em up with worn-out tools;
If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with Kings—nor lose the common touch,
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you,
If all men count with you, but none too much;
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And—which is more—you'll be a man my son.

Reid an Ohioan.

Miami—Whitelaw Reid, American diplomat, and ambassador to Great Britain since 1905, who died Sunday, December 15, was a graduate of Miami University.

Immediately following his graduation, he entered the journalistic field, which was the stepping stone for his diplomatic work. Ambassador Reid was born at Cedarville, Greene County, Ohio, 75 years ago.

Look Here, Girls!

Dr. Esther Parker, woman's medical advisor at Cornell, said that the nervous strain attendant upon girl's basketball games was too severe, and for that reason the athletic council decreed that inter-collegiate contests for girls would not be permissible. Dr. Parker said that basketball is the most violent form of exercise for girls, next to rowing. Games between classes will be allowed.

Harvard—During the fall season of athletics at Harvard, 937 men participated. 197 were out for football; 153 for rowing; 149 wielded the racquet in tennis; and 117 took part in running matches. Other forms of athletics drew 316 more men.

Ohio State—For the eighth successive season, Ohio State University will face teams from Indiana and Illinois in debate. The Ohio State team will be picked this week from 12 contestants. The teams will debate the question, "Resolved: that the recall of state and local judges by popular vote is desirable." The debates will be held March 14.

Princeton—The Tiger track team will not meet the Ithacans the coming spring. For the past eight years Princeton has contested with Cornell, but it has always been a losing proposition financially, and for this reason Princeton dropped Cornell from her schedule.

Case—Tom Whelam, the only center in the state to score a touchdown in football during the past season, was elected captain of the Case eleven for 1913. Whelan is a junior, and has played on the Scientist's team for two years.

Ohio Northern—Dr. A. E. Smith, president of Ohio Northern College, participated in the dedicatory services of the West Park Methodist Episcopal church, Columbus, O., last Sunday.

PERSONALITY—ITS RANK AND VALUE.

sufficient income, he has honor and recognition for what he is as a man. Not only do the men measure the success of a life by the personality which it gives to the world, but it frowns upon any achievement that has not been backed by the promptings of a true and upright motive. It is evident that we are entering a period when personality has an extremely utilitarian value.

Personality is not a useful art alone. It is a fine art as well. It is an art, the cultivation of which, was earliest in the mind of man's creator. A man's first duty to himself is self-improvement,—the discovery and realization of his own true personality. In a very real sense personality is a thing, so to speak, to be acquired. Man is so constituted that he can stand over himself and dictate whether or not he will reject the lower and cultivate the higher impulses. The poet Daniel has said, "Unless above himself he can erect himself, how poor a thing is man." We are thus accountable for our use and disposition of this faculty of self-determination. That the field of conquest is almost unlimited can be inferred from the fact that in the Standard Dictionary there are seven columns of words compounded with "self." We are to be condemned in so far as we fail to exercise our power of moulding exemplary characters.

No better place could be conceived of for the forming of consistent personalities than in college. Under such environment one scarcely stands alone, for the promoters of example are ever about him. When a student has completed his college course his progress in the fulfillment of the design for man, and his usefulness to the world, will be measured by the degree to which he has developed all his native possibilities into a consistent personality. Is any price too much to pay for its attainment? Are we less zealous to obtain our limit of perfection than the Spartan youth to obtain his? Even though it may mean continuous discipline and subjugation of the lower impulses that arise, is the promise of the victory not worthy of the fight?

It has been seen that a true personality is the destined goal of man. It is perfectly proper to assume that the ambition of every college man and woman is to help in the uplift of society. It will then be seen that, whatever means is conducive to the development of a better personality in those about us, ought to be thus employed. Perhaps one of the greatest factors in developing this better man enters in when we recognize in every one the potentially perfect man which God meant that we should see. His own Son and representative, when He was on the earth, looked beyond the surface of men's lives; beyond their weak, perverted selves, and recognized the possibility in every soul. By a faith in men, with eye trained to detect the character of the gem concealed under the rough exterior, he instilled in men a desire to claim their better selves. It is said of Him that as He neared Capernaum, he saw a man seated at the receipt of customs. No one else would have called him a man, for he was of the detested class of publicans, but Christ saw in him the possibilities that every soul possesses. And, by His recognition of that fact, and careful stimulation of that better self in the man's own mind, he made an apostle of the most despised of men.

It is possible that, like our great example, having gained the true personality for ourselves, we may water the seeds of genius and truth in others until society about us shall have gained another height, and the personality that tells for efficiency and right shall have come nearer its perfection.

True Education.

We have a thousand men who can make money to one who can think and make other men think. We have a thousand followers to one genuine leader who incorporates in his own mind and heart a high point of view and the ability to present it in an attractive way. It is one thing for an undergraduate to come out from his institution expert in electrical science; it is quite another thing for him to truly discover the spirit of life itself, so that he is able to harmonize his expert ability with the broader and deeper life of the age in which he lives.—Cooper.
