EDITORIAL, Trouble started brewing around the editor's desk a few months ago, and here is the short-short of the story.

When one steps into another's job, no real problem may automatically present itself—at least, not for awhile. But when an editor attempts to retain the same style of work as his well-grounded predecessor, matters begin to fly quite askew.

The style is the overt result of a fairly solid background of thought and feeling. The style, without the background, falls apart. Then, when the new editor, in an attempt to pull it all together, goes through the think-feel process for himself, the resulting style, or expression, is bound to change into something quite different.

That is what happened to Towers. It hasn't reached the ideal we have in mind, not by a long pull, but we hope we've started in a good direction. Criticisms might help!

Analyzed briefly, we've divided the "purpose" of Towers into four areas: (1) to keep alumni in contact with each other, (2) to keep alumni in contact with the "spirit" of the school—emphasis on both traditional and solely current campus activity (3) to inform alumni of the financial status and needs and of progress in buildings and facilities, and (4) to encourage realization of responsibility as college graduates (involving (a.) alumni interest in general trends in education and in what Otterbein, as an educational institution, is, and/or should be, and (b.) an alumnus' analysis and acceptance of his responsibility in his social environment).

COVER PAGE, The last quick second gone, the final buzz, and victory catches up the team in one bright glow that flashes through the crowd.

Goal achieved!

Otterbein beat Cap!

No small fight, a two-point lead!

"Did you watch that, Son? Did you see the way those fellows clicked? Some team!"

But "Son" stares hard at a vision in the distance—of a future day, a future team, a future "high-point" man—and he hears . . . nothing . . . at lal . . . (See picture, lower right).

With a final score of 83 to 81 the game, played February 14 on Chief Rival Capital University's floor, really was some thrill. The Otters lagged behind the Fighting Lutherans a full eleven points at the end of the first half, but good team-work and whetted spirit finally brought them out ahead—for the second win over Cap this season. (The Otterbein cagers took the Lutherans 86 to 83 on the home floor January 12.)

Confession: the pictures weren't taken at the Cap-Otter basketball game, after all. But math prof (and dandy photographer) Dr. Frederic R. Bamforth and your editor had a good time retracting our thoughts and trying to catch a little of that "victorious end" spontaneity. Speed lights and a group of cooperative "models" helped.

The "exhilarated player" (!) is Stan Owens, a Columbus sophomore, high-point man for the game with a score of 23. Gail Bunch, South Euclid senior, is the "effervescent cheerleader," and the other "cover characters" are Marion Chase, '47, drama prof, and son, Kevin. You may take your pick for the latter role, but as we see it, Mr. Chase is the "darned proud alumnus" who "knew all the time we could beat Cap." Young son, notice, is clearly tagged as "future Otterbeinite."

Leaving the floor (below) is father-and-son act "Red" Forrest Moreland, a member of Otterbein's staff, and Wendell, eleven years old.

Incidentally, the current race for the Cap-Otter Trophy added spark to the basketball contest. Cap has the trophy this year, but Otterbein stands good chance of getting it back. The score is tied now, 4 to 4 (Cap, 4 for football win; Otterbein, 2 apiece for basketball wins). Two baseball games (worth two points apiece), and two tennis matches and a track meet (worth one point each) remain in the balance.

So cheer on your school, alumni—we'll get that trophy back yet!

Why is a college proud of a graduate like Kenneth Bunce?

All things considered, two thresholds of approach to the answer seem likely to appear.

From the first view-point, he is observed as a man of prestige — fairly well-known, respected. And whenever the "college-man" association is even breathed, a thin coat of this prestige rubs off on Otterbein's old shoulders.

A higher look-out position reveals that reason one, however, is only the snow on the top of Pike's Peak. What really matters is the kind of person he is—what he thinks, what he does. How well he is known becomes subordinate to a more basic issue: what he is contributing to the "growth of value" in a world that tends to stampede over "value," accomplishing short-term goals in most expedient ways.

"Value," in this context, connotes man's hope in the ideal, his search for attitudes and ways of life that heighten both his own personality and the human relationships in his society. According to this implication, the "growth of value" in society has become the life-effort of Kenneth Bunce; it is the operating principle of the agency for which he works.

Currently, Dr. Bunce, 1930 graduate and former dean of Otterbein, is one of only three employees of the United States Information Agency assigned for a year's study to the National War College in Washington, D. C. Here, at the country's highest school for government officials, civil and military, the student examines the sources of United States strength—economic, political, and social, material and spiritual—as well as those of foreign countries. The aim of this study is to arrive at a sound position from which to determine a correct national policy. When this stint is completed, Dr. Bunce expects to receive an overseas appointment—not, however, to Japan, which has been the site of his efforts for the past ten years.

When he left the Far East for Washington, Dr. Bunce was serving as director of the United States Information Agency (known abroad as USIS) program in Japan. His actual involvement with USIS, however, has only existed since 1952, and much of his notable work in Japan was accomplished as an employee of the Department of the Army and, earlier, as a U. S. Naval officer.

Dr. Bunce's interest in Japan is a natural one. His wife, Alice Shively Bunce, '33, was born in Kyoto, Japan, when her father, the Reverend Dr. B. F. Shively, was teaching religious education at Doshisha University. She lived in Japan, in fact, until she came to Otterbein.

A Ph.D. in history from Ohio State University and an M. A. degree in International Administration from the Naval School of Military Government at Columbia University provided a good background for Dr. Bunce's assignment to Tokyo (as Officer-in-Charge of the Religious Division of General Headquarters, Supreme Commander of the Allied Powers

Kenneth Bunce, United States Information Agency, is currently assigned to National War College, Washington, for a year of study.

—SCAP) in September of '45. His job there was to formulate a policy for disestablishing the State Shinto religion.

Until this time, every Japanese citizen was required by law to be a Shintoist, in spite of the fact that the vast majority of the population was Buddhist in belief. Shintoism was taught and stressed, not because of its religious implications, but because it rendered the concept that the emperor is descended from the gods, that the Japanese people are descended from collateral deities, and that Japan, in fact, had been divinely created.

In the end result, Shinto was placed in the same position as any of the religions, and the concept of the emperor's divinity was almost completely shattered.

"We tried to create a more modern-day view of the emperor and his position," said Dr. Bunce, "—that he is an exalted person, but as a human head, not a divinity who can do no wrong."

The end of Japan's Occupation in April, 1952, was the beginning of Dr. Bunce's present career with USIS.

The mission of USIS, said Dr. Bunce, is one of "submitting evidence to people of other countries that the objectives and policies of the United States are in harmony with and will advance their legitimate aspirations for freedom, progress, and peace."

"We believe that understanding moves along a two-way street," he was quoted in the Pacific Stars and Stripes newspaper in Japan. "While recognizing that it is the responsibility and privilege of every country to interpret itself to other nations, we constantly seek to increase American understanding of Japan."

WINTER HOMECOMING, At each queen-honoring occasion, the members of Her Majesty's court are distinctive in their appropriate festive attire. Never, however, has the Court been more uniquely dressed than at this year's Winter Homecoming, February 4.

The reference, of course, is to Maid of Honor Gail Bunch and First Attendant Jody Laub in their cheerleader togs and saddles and socks. The corsages may have looked a little out of place, and our supposed "sophisticated royalty" may have lost their dignity (for a coed-type charm), but anyway, who could really say it isn't proper? The cheerleaders do, in a very "active" way, represent the "Otterbein spirit," and at a basketball game, and with a court elected by Varsity "O," this seems pretty important.

Not to de-emphasize Winter Princess Lois Kauffman and Retiring Queen Bobbie Tompkins Andrews, who both looked very, very nice and quite like dignified royalty should!

Miss Kauffman, West Carrollton senior and a member of "Owls" sorority, was "discovered" and escorted to the throne by Curtis Tong of Newton Centre, Massachusetts, Varsity "O" president (See picture, left.) Miss Kauffman is a physical education major at Otterbein.

Maid of Honor to Her Majesty was Gail Bunch of "Talisman" sorority, South Euclid, and Josephine (Jody) Laub, also "Talisman," of Akron was First Attendant.

Mrs. Bobbie Tompkins Andrews, '55, of Dayton, a member of "Arbutus" sorority and last year's Winter Princess, presented the crown.

RELIGION IN LIFE WEEK, Alumnus George Parkinson, '35, of the First Presbyterian Church, Canton, was visiting minister for a Religion in Life Week at Otterbein February 5-9 that developed a change of pace from recent years.

With Dr. Parkinson's encouragement, the committee aimed toward making it a think-week, as well as inspirational, and to offer a broader scope and appeal. Events, in addition to Dr. Parkinson's chapel talks, included a brief dramatic portrayal of the theme (with use of music and interpretive dance), a breakfast presentation of a one-act play, a social hour of entertainment at the student union (idea: religious living includes fun), co-ed bull sessions in dorms with faculty members included, a student-faculty panel (religion in politics, business, etc.), and a concluding communion service. Small discussion groups were also held, and Dr. Parkinson was available for personal interviews.

Exceptional student support was probably due to a happy convergence of factors: Dr. Parkinson's approach and personable manner, the varied program, and the committee's enthusiasm.

ONE BRAVE SOUL, Francis H. Glazier took the "crucial plunge" last fall when, as an Otterbein freshman, he started on the seven year trek toward becoming an E. U. B. minister.

To begin theological study is not, in itself, an especially unique venture. Mr. Glazier, however, is a 42-year-old freshman, who has been in the auto mechanic business for the past 26 years.

Glazier's interest in the ministry probably springs from his active part in Sunday School work at North Linden E. U. B. Church, Columbus, since about 1940. Currently, he is superintendent of the Sunday School and the Council of Religious education there. When he graduates from Otterbein, Glazier plans to attend United Theological Seminary, Dayton.

The new student finds his days pretty busy, sometimes hectic, and filled with a good deal more than books and study. Besides his active church work he maintains ownership of his Columbus service station and works there from 4 to 9 p.m. every day.

At 5:30 a. m. "Preacher" (a nick-name attached by some of Glazier's customers) drags out of bed to study until time to rush to an eight o'clock class. He hurries from Otterbein to work in late afternoon (brief stop at home for change of clothes). From after work till midnight Glazier struggles with the books once more.

Actually, however, even though he's been away from school for 23 years, the freshman scholar doesn't find studying too difficult. Sufficient time, he says, is the one big problem.

Glazier started his education, though, with no false delusions about "easy-going" in the years ahead. He and his wife, Theda, backgrounded the decision to change his life vocation with eight months of very careful consideration. They're convinced that the effort is well worthwhile.

SO THEY SAY, Otterbein's music department is holding its head a notch higher these days, since the official inception of two national music honoraries on campus.

Delta Omicron, national professional music fraternity for women, was installed December 13, with Mary Lou Stine as president and Miss Frieda Myers, piano instructor, as sponsor.

A national honorary band fraternity, Kappa Kappa Psi, was also established on campus January 31. Ted Howell of Scarsdale, New York, is serving as president and Robert Westrich, Otterbein's band director, advises the group.

Membership on Mademoiselle Magazine's College Board is a considerable honor, and Otterbein is beaming proudly on Janice Ellenberger, Dayton junior English major, who "made the grade." Members are chosen according to the quality of a finished project (Jan's involved photography, write-ups, and layouts on the subject of an Otterbein coed's typical attire and where it might be purchased, etc.). As a member of the Board, Jan is entitled to submit two more projects to be judged. Final winners will receive appointments as summer Guest Editors on the Mademoiselle staff in New York . . . with pay!

An even dozen of Otterbein's juniors and seniors are appearing in this year's edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

FACULTY NOTES

Mills — Dr. Gilbert E. Mills, '20, chairman of the Division of Language and Literature, received the doctor of philosophy degree from Ohio State University December 16.

Dr. Mills' area of study was the romance languages, French in particular. His field of specialization was eighteenth century literature, and his doctoral thesis was entitled, "Voltaire's Philosophical Dictionary of 1764."

Dr. Mills has been a member of Otterbein's faculty since his graduation in 1920.

Engle — Dr. Jesse Engle, '14, has been absent from the classroom so far this semester, due to a heart and gall bladder attack on January 23. During his illness, other faculty members are assuming his teaching load, and it is hoped that he will be able to resume teaching before the end of the semester.

This is Dr. Engle's last semester as chairman of Otterbein's religion department (since 1923) before his official retirement this spring. Previous to his illness, Council of Christian Associations had made arrangements to have his portrait painted and the group is accepting contributions, to cover the cost, from any interested alumni.

Frank — A composition by Dr. Paul Frank has been selected by University of Redlands, California, to be played in March in an all-premiere concert in dedication of the University's new four-manual console organ.

The manuscript of organ music, entitled "Offertory," is one of a number of American compositions selected.

Howard — Dr. J. Gordon Howard has been named to membership in the National Council of the National Planning Association.

The Council, a private, non-profit, non-political association, is composed of a group of 1000 U. S. leaders in agriculture, business, labor, and the professions, who conduct research on economics and on questions of national policy.

Smith — Mrs. Faye Smith, business department, is participating in a research project of Delta Pi Epsilon (National Graduate Business Education Honorary) to determine whether certain things taught in typewriting classes are being used by former students on the job.

Each participant is to select a typewriting student of last year, now employed in business, and interview him toward this result.

HOW DOES SHE RATE? Say what you will about equality of rights between the sexes. Twentieth century America demands a good deal of extra fortitude, stamina, and razor-sharp intellect of the woman who would invade the yet largely male-controlled medical profession.

Otterbein, proudly, is not without successful daughters in this area, and Dr. Beverly J. Loesch, '43, is one worth noting.

Of the 262 medical examiners scattered throughout the state of Virginia, Dr. Loesch is the only woman to hold this position.

In addition to being medical examiner for her locality, the woman physician is vice president of the medical staff of the new Waynesboro Community Hospital (dedicated last June), a member of the courtesy staff at King's Daughters' Hospital in Staunton, Virginia, is active in various local and national organizations, including Waynesboro First Presbyterian Church, volunteers her services each month to the local Rotary Club's medical clinic for the aged, and serves twice a month at Kiwanis Club's Well-Baby Clinic.

Home-life with young son, Frederick, also demands important hours of Dr. Loesch's time—hours a little reluctantly matched, no doubt, to a doctor's merciless schedule. Except when emergency interrupts, five until eight p. m. each day and all of her too-short weekends are reserved for Freddy. Hiking is one of the favorite mother-son pastimes.

Dr. Loesch's husband, Marion F. Dick, x'43, whom she met in the chemistry laboratory at Otterbein, was a chemical engineer at the Du Pont plant in Waynesboro at the time of his death in 1954. The tragedy was a severe blow to Dr. Loesch, but she somehow managed to continue both her medical practice and the care of little Freddy, then just four years old.

One explanation of Dr. Loesch's excellence in her profession and her evident facility in handling such a bulk of activities might be supplied in her own words:

"If a woman can stick it out through medical school she can take anything anywhere else."

The calibre of a woman medical graduate is generally exceptionally high. Although Dr. Loesch feels that more women physicians are needed and should be trained, medical schools realize that every woman student is, in a sense, a "security risk." A high percentage of women M.D.'s marry and quit the profession shortly after the completion of their education. The schools, therefore, limit the quotas for women applicants rather closely.

Dr. Loesch was one of only four women students to graduate from Albany Medical College, Albany, New York, in 1946. At least three of the women are still practicing. The whereabouts of the fourth is not known.

At Fairview Park Hospital, Cleveland, where she interned in 1946-47, Dr. Loesch was the only woman serving on the staff. The same was true during her residency in medicine in Ann Arbor, Michigan, 1947-50.

It was during a call to the Chief Medical Examiner's office in Richmond for some information that Dr. Loesch discovered her distinction as medical examiner in Virginia. The gentleman at the other end of the line suggested that she check the local medical examiner to get her answer. Upon explaining that she was the said examiner, they both laughed heartily, and the Chief checked his records. She, he said, was the only woman medical examiner in Virginia, and she had taken him quite by surprise.

The Chief Examiner later pointed out that Dr. Loesch (woman or no) was certainly doing a satisfactory job.

Dr. Loesch is a native of Cleveland, Ohio, and a graduate of Parma High School, where she used to dream of one day entering the medical profession.

Today, the dream realized, Dr. Loesch finds contentment in her work, her son, and the people of Waynesboro. At first, she said, men were hesitant about accepting the services of a woman doctor, but gradually, she has developed an active practice, with men as well as women on her patient roster.

It's a busy life. The people of Waynesboro continue to be amazed at the tremendous energy of the woman doctor, but Dr. Loesch merely brushes their comments aside with a simple remark:

"I've always been used to being busy." Undoubtedly, she has.

Enjoyable hours are spent with son, Freddy.

FIRST OF ISSUES (By Dr. J. Gordon Howard), "Otterbein's number one problem is money!"

These are the words of Frank O'Hern, who for twenty-one months directed our Advancement Campaign and laid the groundwork for our long-range financial program.

Such words sound crass and materialistic in terms of a Christian college. How about academic achievement, we might ask, or spiritual life? Should not they have priority in our thinking?

Mr. O'Hern would say, and we believe we quote him accurately, that we cannot promote an academic program or create a spiritual emphasis unless we have money for certain essentials. A teacher may be the best in the world, but he will not stay long without money to pay the grocery bill. A student may have the most laudable spiritual ideas, but he will not remain long in college unless the school has money for day-by-day maintenance and upkeep, a competent faculty, an adequate library and laboratories and the other facilities of a first class educational institution.

Thousands of colleges have been established by American churches with prayer and high hopes, together with professors well prepared to teach and students ready to learn. But only a few such schools survived. Most of them died, not for lack of spirituality or scholarship, but for lack of cash.

A publication in our files lists 48 colleges founded in North America by Evangelical United Brethren people and their antecedents. Of these 48 schools only six four-year colleges and one junior college remain in the E.U.B. denomination, and one in the United Brethren (Old Constitution). The establishment of colleges across our land in earlier days was phenomenal. The mortality, on the other hand, has been pitiful, and the chief cause of death has been money, or rather the lack of it.

The need for money in higher education—a constant supply of it, a steady flow of it, a dependable source of it—is a hard, cold fact that colleges constantly, repeatedly, unavoidably face. There is no escape from it. The friends of a college who desire its continuation on a healthy basis must accept the plain fact that financial needs never cease; they go on and on.

The friends of Otterbein College for nearly 110 years have lived with one long ever-present financial crisis. On several occasions the college only by a miracle was saved from foreclosure because of debt.

Editorial (Dr. Howard) Naming of Clements Hall Ford Foundation Gifts Advancement Program

It was not until President Clippinger's administration began in 1909 and after the Diamond Jubilee in 1922 with its successful million dollar campaign that the friends of Otterbein could breathe easier with some assurance that the financial problem would not overnight crush the life out of the school they loved.

Since 1922, however, we hasten to add, the going has not been easy. Even with a successful Centennial campaign in 1947 when $630,000 was raised, there have been acute financial problems every day; there have been annual deficits many years; and there has been a nagging realization that always more money has been needed to pay salaries, maintain buildings, purchase equipment and add those touches which a good school is expected to have.

So the financial problem is still here. The sheriff will not be here tomorrow to hang up the "For Sale" sign, but the battle of the budget must be fought with courage and hard work, and generous hands are needed for victory. Frank O'Hern's words were never more true: "Otterbein's number one problem is money."

This is not a complaint. This is a statement of fact and the friends of Otterbein have been doing something about it. They have been responding to the Advancement Campaign and reports show that we are within reach of the goal of $1,080,000. Now the Development Fund, under the direction of Dr. Wade S. Miller, after a year's recess will renew its annual giving campaign and its emphasis on larger gifts from special donors. The handsome gift of $170,300 from the Ford Foundation to bolster faculty salaries gives us inspiration for greater efforts. The friends of Otterbein have been loyal and generous, and they will go on being the same. Because of such friends Otterbein can continue to be a Christian college—a college true to high academic ideals and sincere spiritual purpose.

Construction is begun on Clements Hall.

THE CHRISTENING, Clements Hall is the name that has been chosen to grace the rising walls of the 90-room women's dormitory under construction on Otterbein's campus.

The name was selected by the executive board of the college in honor of the late Dr. F. O. Clements, '96, and his wife, Mrs. Vida Shauck Clements, '01, of Westerville.

In describing the committee's reasons for choosing to honor Dr. and Mrs. Clements, President J. Gordon Howard stated that the Clements' support of Otterbein, in attitude as well as material gifts, and their constant faith in Otterbein's future has been an out-

A PLEASANT SURPRISE, Ford Foundation's immense gift of $170,300 threw a welcome ray of light on Otterbein's financial future—a slight encouragement to the hard-working profs!

"No event in the history of educational philanthropy has received—or deserved—more widespread publicity than the Ford Foundation grants," wrote Ernie Stewart and Jean Dinwoodey of the American Alumni Council.

And it must be admitted that Ford's gift of $210,000,000 to 615 regionally accredited privately supported liberal arts and science colleges and universities is rather phenomenal. In fact, it is thought to be the largest single appropriation in the history of philanthropy.

The idea of this grant is to strengthen American higher education "at its base—the quality of its teaching."

Otterbein's "share of the riches" was decided upon in direct accordance with the sum total of its 1954-55 teacher payroll expenditures. The money (50% to be received this June and the remainder in June of 1957) is to go into endowment, with the income used for increasing faculty salaries or for increasing the professional advancement of teachers who contribute their services. These endowment grants are to be held as income-producing endowment for a minimum of ten years, after which either capital or standing source of encouragement throughout the years.

Also notable, he mentioned, has been the Clements' interest in self-help plans. Dr. Clements, himself, managed to work his way through Otterbein. He and Mrs. Clements have always felt an acute interest in the student who needs help and is willing to work for it, and together, they have initiated a number of plans to help provide students with work.

The Clements have always watched Otterbein carefully, Dr. Howard said. They have noticed when Otterbein has needed a helping hand, and they have always given it, usually with little or no recognition or personal award.

Dr. Clements, an industrial chemist, during his lifetime served outstanding terms of duty with four large companies; Pennsylvania Railroad, Union Pacific Railroad, National Cash Register Company, and General Motors Corporation. He retired in 1939 as technical director of General Motors Research Laboratory. He, with Mrs. Clements' help, contributed more time than ever in his later years to the fostering of the education and advancement of young people. Mrs. Clements has carried on the interest in Otterbein which she always shared with her husband.

Dr. Clements was a member of Otterbein's Board of Trustees for 26 years, and Mrs. Clements has been serving as a trustee since 1945.

Completion of Clements Hall, first tangible result of Otterbein's six-million-dollar advancement program, is scheduled for the beginning of the school term next fall.

income may be used for any academic need.

The gift is a fine gesture. The American Alumni Council emphasized, however, that this action does not affect opportunities and needs of general gift support. In all areas (the grants only affect faculty salaries) the need is as great as ever.

Besides, payment of the grants will be spread over an eighteen-month period, ending June of 1957, and colleges will not be benefitting from the full annual income until June of 1958.

Furthermore, potential salary increases probably won't exceed 4%. Relate this to Henry Ford's statement: "Merely to restore professors' salaries to their 1939 purchasing power would require an average increase of a least 20% . . ."

Hailing the Ford grants as "one of the greatest educational developments of the century," Nils Y. Wessell, president of Tufts University, went on to say: "The traditional friends of our colleges and universities should be stimulated by what the Ford Foundation has done and increase their help to these institutions. Every college and university graduate must bear in mind that while industrial and business grants are of immeasurable help, colleges and universities will continue to move forward, will fulfill their functions completely, only when the graduates of these institutions continue to strengthen their link with Alma Mater and give both moral and financial support on a larger scale than heretofore."

ADVANCEMENT PROGRAM, (by Frank O'Hern)

Ed: Frank O'Hern, director of Otterbein's Advancement Program since its official start in 1954, left Otterbein College on December 16, the completion of his term of duty here. For the next few months Mr. O'Hern will be managing a financial campaign in Indianapolis for the American Red Cross.

In behalf of Otterbein and her alumni, Towers thanks Mr. O'Hern for his work in managing the initial stages of our $6,215,000 campaign, and wishes him a successful future.

When, on September 28, the Otterbein students and faculty marched from Cowan Hall to the site of the new Clements Dormitory to watch the skillfully maneuvered bulldozer start the excavation, some skeptics were heard to remark that a ground breaking ceremony did not necessarily mean actual construction.

Towers is happy to report in this issue (and submit the evidence) that real construction is moving forward on Clements Hall (see picture on opposite page). The excavations have been completed, the foundations have been laid and the walls are rising. The Advancement Program is becoming effective.

And judging from the number of sidewalk superintendents among the student body who daily inspect the progress of construction (except, of course, in snowy weather!) no doubt can exist that every last brick and nail called for in the specifications will be put in its proper place.

General Chairman, Irvin L. Clymer, '09, reports that subscriptions to the Advancement Program are now at the quarter-million dollar mark. He calls to the most serious attention of the alumni and friends of Otterbein that this participation, while sincerely appreciated, is less than half way to the $580,000 which is the alumni share to be raised of the $1,080,000 goal of the first phase of the Advancement Program.

The general chairman also reports that additional alumni organizations were set up during the fall: in Cleveland, Marion, New Philadelphia, Sandusky, Steubenville, Zanesville, Indianapolis, Denver, Southern California, and Florida. Results from these areas can swell the total considerably.

At a recent meeting of the Development Fund Board, which sponsors the Advancement Program, concern was evidenced over the number of alumni in the organized areas who have not as yet made contributions to the Advancement Program. A great many alumni, following contacts made by local committees, asked for time to survey their personal finances before making their subscriptions. These requests were reasonable enough, but the Board and Mr. Clymer urge that alumni make their decisions as soon as possible.

Dr. Wade S. Miller, director of the Annual Alumni Fund, calls attention to the fact that all subscribers to the Advancement Program are credited with a gift to the 1955 Annual Fund and that the usual appeal for the Development Fund will be resumed this year, 1956. Dr. Miller emphasized, however, that the Advancement Program called for capital gifts far in excess of the Annual Fund. The Advancement Program, he said, allowed three years for payment of gifts and many people had made cash subscriptions in 1955 with no further commitment. It is his hope and that of the Advancement Program committee that those single year donors will duplicate their gifts in 1956 and 1957.

Mr. Clymer reported that in response to an appeal made at the end of 1955 a considerable number of much needed substantial gifts were received from parents of students now in college to help carry on the work started. (The Honor Roll of all contributors to the Advancement Program appears in this issue.)

Betty Martin, pres. in S. Cal.

NICE GOING, The Walter Martins (and committee) of Los Angeles must have used shining rags on the college memory gems of alumni in Southern California. At any rate, something did the trick, and "fond remembering" of Alma Mater developed into active support.

The facts?

In the Los Angeles area Otterbein alumni organized, solicited, and reported back to the Advancement office within a six-weeks period!

Starting in late October, the committee solicited 120 people over an area approximately one-fourth the size of Ohio and completed the effort with a Victory Dinner on December 2.

Sparking this venture were Walter and Mary Elizabeth (Betty) Plummer Martin, '27, co-chairman of the area campaign, and an active committee consisting of Myra B. Brenizer Clemons, '16; Frances Barnett Firmin, '07; Robert and Elaine Ashcraft Holmes, '35; Don and Bernice Norris Howard, '25 and '27; Stanley Kurtz, x'49; Mabel F. Starkey Pedrick, '05; Francis M. and Elizabeth Saxour Pottenger, '25; Florence Loar Roehrig, '19; B. F. and Mary Grace Resler Shively, '05 and '06; David Wagner, x'50; Lucille Judy Reid, '25.

"It was one of the most thrilling O. C. meetings I've ever attended . . ." Betty Martin exclaimed in her letter. "We met many O. C. folk we hadn't known. All were keenly interested and stated that Otterbein was the 'high spot' of their lives."

HONOR ROLL OF CONTRIBUTORS TO ADVANCEMENT PROGRAM

A total of 1,416 alumni and ex-students made cash payments to the Advancement Program in 1955 and another 305 made pledges on which they have not yet begun to make payments. Pledges are for a three-year limit.

Names below are in two classes: (1) Those who made cash payments and (2) Those who made pledges on which payments have not begun. Names in regular type face are in class one and those in italics are in class two.

It will be observed that alumni have pledged $211,773.60 to the Advancement Program and have paid $111,116.17 leaving a balance due on pledges of $100,657.43.

Names in bold face are deceased.

VARSITY "O" AFFAIR, A corps of high school coaches and athletes "saw the sights" of Otterbein Winter Homecoming Day when they visited the campus under invitation of the Varsity "O" Alumni Association.

After Coach Bob Agler, '48, officially welcomed the prospective students at the Alumni Gymnasium, Otterbein Varsity "O" men conducted tours of the campus. Later in the afternoon, the group met in Cowan Hall for a showing of football movies and a talk by Morris Allton, '36, of Farm Bureau in Columbus. The visitors were also invited to dinner at Barlow Hall that evening.

The affair was planned by Dwight Ballenger, '39, chairman; Ed Roush, '47, president, and Coach Bob Agler.

30th ANNIVERSARY, Otterbein Sorosis of Dayton, Ohio, marked the thirtieth anniversary of its founding with a special program January 26 at the home of Mrs. Gwynne McConnaughy, '27.

Marie Comfort, '24, assisted by Mrs. Dale Phillippi (Esther Ann Harley, '21), presented an entertaining resume of some memorable events, entitled "After Thirty Years."

For the musical portion of the program, Mrs. D. T. Bennert (Olive Robertson, '02) and her daughter, Mrs. M. L. Wright (Irene Bennert, '29), entertained with a piano duet. Past presidents of the organization were given special recognition. At the close of the meeting the group joined in singing favorite serenade songs and the Love Song.

Mrs. Luna May Woodland, '01, in her home.

MRS. W.'s "MAGIC METHOD" (by Dr. Wade S. Miller), Do you want to live a long time? Nearly everyone does. Well, here is a formula that has been successful for one of Otterbein's graduates—develop a cheerful spirit, learn to express yourself in some creative work, and keep humble through sacrificial service.

For 85 years Mrs. M. R. Woodland (Luna May McCormick, '01) has led a busy and useful life and at nearly 86 she goes on painting and caring for her sister-in-law who is a mute.

Luna May was born an artist. As a child she took lessons in painting from a teacher near her home in Salesville, Ohio.

With her husband she came to Otterbein where she sewed for professors' wives to help pay the cost of her education. She majored in art under Mrs. Isabel Sevier Scott and graduated from Otterbein in 1901.

From Otterbein she and her husband went to Columbia University where she continued her art work.

Her husband became president of Sugar Grove Seminary in Pennsylvania and she was the art instructor.

Then Mr. Woodland was made the director of the State institution in Rahway, New Jersey, and she commuted to New York City where she taught in an art studio for 20 years, numbering among her pupils many very prominent persons.

Because of illness in her family she moved back to Salesville, bought the family farm, and successively took care of her father, mother, two sisters and husband, all of whom are now gone.

Eight years ago she sold the farm and moved into town where she carries on her creative work. And she believes that at 85 she is not too old to learn, for only last year she took a course in ceramics at Muskingum College.

Mrs. Woodland is a good booster for Otterbein, and the college, in turn, is proud of the accomplishments of another devoted graduate.

IN FULL SWING: The United Crusade

The Authorization

The General Conference of the Evangelical United Brethren Church in its quadrennial session at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, November 10-18, 1954 took the following action:

"Resolved that we recommend the approval and authorization of a church-wide four-year campaign, to begin as soon as the project can be readied for promotion during the coming quadrennium in the total amount of $5,150,000 to be allocated and appropriated as follows:

For Church Extension	$1,000,000
For Colleges	$3,100,000
Albright College	$500,000
Indiana Central College	$500,000
Lebanon Valley College	$500,000
North Central College	$500,000
Otterbein College	$500,000
Westmar College	$500,000
Shenandoah College	$100,000
For Theological Seminaries	$1,050,000
Evangelical Theological Seminary	$400,000
United Theological Seminary	$650,000

The Acceptance

The $5,150,000 goal is the largest financial objective ever undertaken by the Evangelical United Brethren Church. Despite that fact, the 39 conferences of the church readily accepted their goals and made allocations to each local church in the denomination.

In the nine conferences comprising the Otterbein area, with over 1,200 delegates (one-half ministers and one-half laymen), there were only two dissenting votes cast in opposition to the Crusade. This generous response is another evidence that the church believes in Christian higher education and is willing to support its own colleges and seminaries.

The Plan

Each of the 39 conferences has a Crusade Committee responsible for promoting the program. Local churches are allowed freedom in the methods they employ to raise their goals. Although it takes some months for conferences and churches to put their programs in operation, nearly $200,000 has already been raised and sent to the general church treasurer for distribution.

The 39 conferences are divided into seven college areas. The Otterbein area, which is the largest of the seven with the largest amount of money to raise, is leading all the areas in the amount contributed. Western Pennsylvania Conference in the Otterbein area leads the whole denomination in the amount raised.

The Challenge

The $500,000 for Otterbein from the church should be a challenge to all alumni and friends who are not members of the Evangelical United Brethren Church to do their best so that Otterbein's immediate objective of $1,080,000 may be raised.

Didache

Education is a companion which no misfortune can depress—no crime destroy—no enemy alienate—no despotism enslave. At home, a friend; abroad, an introduction; in solitude, a solace; and in society, an ornament. Without it, what is man?— splendid slave, a reasoning savage.

What Significance?

Since 1870 Otterbein's main building has been called the Administration Building. In 1954 all of the administrative offices were moved into Clippinger Administration Building (the former Carnegie Library), and the old Ad. Building was renamed "Academic Hall."

General feeling has since indicated that this is not quite suitable. In its full form, "Academic Hall" seems to lack special appeal. Shortened, as it tends to be, to "Ac. Hall," the name is liked by many even less.

The faculty has arrived with "The Towers" as favored choice. Some of the other suggestions, to date, have been "Old Main," "Davis Hall," "Ivy Towers," "Hanby Hall," and "Scott Hall."
