Helping Dreamers to Dream Keeps America Strong

*"We are the music-makers,
And we are the dreamers of dreams . . .
Yet we are the movers and shakers of the world forever, it seems."*

Arthur O'Shaughnessy, The Music-Makers

Throughout our history as a nation—indeed, throughout the history of all mankind—it has been the dreamers of better ways of doing things who have made our lives more worthwhile.

And yet the dreamer of today, if he is to contribute to the betterment of his fellow man, must be an educated dreamer. He must have assimilated the knowledge and undergone the training that enable him to dream beyond the present, beyond the knowledge we have now.

Can there possibly be a better reason for strengthening the sources of knowledge—colleges and universities?

It seems incredible that a society such as ours which has profited so vastly from an accumulation of knowledge—and from the fulfillment of dreams—should allow anything to threaten these wellsprings of our learning.

The crisis that confronts our colleges threatens to weaken seriously their ability to transmit the knowledge and to encourage the dreams that will keep America strong.

The crisis is composed of several elements: a salary scale that is driving away from teaching the kind of person best qualified to teach; overcrowded classrooms; and mounting college applications that will double in less than ten years.

Help the colleges and universities of your choice. Help them plan for stronger, better-paid faculties and for expansion. The returns will be greater than you think.

If you want to know more about what the college crisis means to you, and what you can do to help, write for a free booklet to: HIGHER EDUCATION, Box 36, Times Square Station, New York 36, N.Y.

Otterbein has a total of 6,690 alumni and ex-students. The problem of keeping up with this number is not easy.

Your alumni office maintains a master card file, and addressograph plate, a class file, and an activities folder for each alumnus. Your cooperation in sending promptly changes of address aids in the efficiency of the alumni office.

Francis S. Bailey, '43, has served with distinction as Alumni President during the past year. We welcome Richard M. Allaman, '33, as the new national Alumni Association President.

Inauguration Of Dr. Lynn W. Turner As 17th President

Representatives from 238 colleges and universities as well as nine representatives of learned societies, educational and church organizations participated in the inauguration, April 25th, of Dr. Lynn W. Turner as the seventeenth president of Otterbein College. This number represents one of the largest to attend an inauguration of a college president in this section of Ohio in recent years.

Following registration in the Centennial Library, a service of worship was held in the sanctuary of the First Evangelical United Brethren Church. Rev. James B. Recob, college chaplain, was the presiding clergyman, assisted by two former students of Dr. Turner, the Rev. Howard M. Jamieson and the Rev. John Magill.

The Inaugural Convocation was held in Cowan Hall with Bishop J. Gordon Howard, Bishop of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, with headquarters in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, presiding. Bishop Paul M. Herrick, also a Bishop of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, with headquarters in Dayton, Ohio, gave the invocation prayer and then the Otterbein College A Cappella Choir presented a special choral number under the direction of Professor Robert W. Hohn.

Dr. Herman B. Wells, President of Indiana University, was the featured speaker at the convocation. Using the subject, "Essentials of Excellence," Dr. Wells said:

"The first essential for excellence is a soundness in function. Students who have attended and are attending Otterbein are prepared to exercise with judgment the rights and responsibilities of a citizen of a free Christian society. The professions, business, industry, and other vocations demand the men of a broad liberal education.

"The second essential for excellence is adequacy in finances. Our expanding enrollments, increasing demands on the part of society for trained men and women, and the desire of youth for higher education are going to result in mounting costs.

"The third essential for excellence is freedom in responsibility. In the long run this is perhaps the most basic of the three essentials. A college or university must be permitted to follow its function in freedom and institutional independence."

Vance, '16, Dean and Registrar of Otterbein College; Vance E. Cribbs, '20, Chairman of the Otterbein College Board of Trustees, and Walter N. Roberts, '21, President, United Theological Seminary, Dayton, Ohio. The Doctor of Science degree was conferred on Francis S. Bundy, '31, Schnectady, New York, one of four General Electric scientists who succeeded in manufacturing diamonds in 1956.

Vance E. Cribbs, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, installed Dr. Turner as the seventeenth president of Otterbein. Other participants in the inaugural program included Professor Robert W. Hohn, '38, vocal soloist; Professor Lawrence S. Frank, organist; and Rev. G. Weir Hartman, Executive Director, Columbus Area Council of Churches, who pronounced the Benediction.

QUEST FOR QUIVIRA

(The inaugural address of President Lynn W. Turner, given at the Inaugural Convocation on Saturday, April 25, 1959.)

The burning sun hung motionless in the brazen sky and clouds of dust boiled up from the scorched plain. Thirty horsemen, sweating in steel breastplate and helmet, plodded wearily northward. For more than a year they had been wandering thus into lands never before seen by men of their kind. They were 950 leagues distant from the nearest outpost of civilization and more than five thousand miles away from their homes across the sea in Andalusia and Galicia and Estremadura. They had fought against hunger, thirst, and savage men; searing heat, numbing cold, and the terror of the unknown. They were searching for QUIVIRA.

THE SETTING

The time was early in July, 1541; the place, somewhere in western Kansas; the horsemen were Francisco de Coronado, Governor of New Galicia, and his blue-blooded Castilian companions. What had lured these proud conquistadores into the vast interior of the unknown American continent? What was Quivira? It was a legendary city paved with gold and diamonds, built perhaps by the Aztec princes who had fled from the conquering armies of Cortez, located perhaps on the fabled Straits of Anian by which Spanish commerce could sail from Cadiz directly to the Pacific; rich enough certainly to give Coronado and his friends unimpeachable social security for the remainder of their lives. Actually it had sprung, full blown from the brain of a wily Indian who had hoped to lure these mad treasure-seekers to their destruction by appealing to their credulous greed. For decades thereafter, even though Coronado failed to find it, the mysterious city of Quivira maintained an elusive existence on the maps of North America, appearing anywhere between the Gulf of Mexico and the Pacific coast. There it glittered on the northern horizon, just beyond the limits of

President Lynn W. Turner

Spanish settlement, like a mirage in the desert, always beckoning the dissatisfied and adventuresome to another search. Like Norumbega and Eldorado, the Fountain of Youth and the Northwest Passage, Zion in the Wilderness and New Harmony on the Wabash, new farms on the O-hi-o and gold in Californ-i-ay it became the symbol of America — the lure of the frontier — the endless quest for better things.

Today, the physical and spatial frontiers of the universe in which we live are expanding so rapidly that most of us are lost, merely in the effort to keep informed about them. Many a man is still alive who remembers when the Superintendent of the Census in 1891 declared that the western frontier of free land had disappeared, and thereby inspired Frederick Jackson Turner to his immortal re-interpretation of American history. Turner, who believed that the frontier environment had virtually molded American institutions, and that with its disappearance an epoch in American history had come to an end, nevertheless admitted that only a rash prophet would "assert that the expansive character of American life has now entirely ceased." He, in fact, predicted that "American energy will continually demand a wider field for its exercise." But even the great midwestern historian would, I suspect, be astonished to find how wide this field has become — that only a few years after his death, Americans are finding a new frontier in outer space. Within the last fifteen months we have sent artificial moons spinning around the earth, fired an artificial planet into orbit around the sun, and transmitted radio messages to a circling, man-made satellite. Few of us doubt that space vehicles, manned by human engineers, will be probing into the outer reaches of our particular galaxy before this year's graduating seniors face compulsory retirement.

ROLE OF EDUCATION

It seems appropriate on this occasion, and in these surroundings, to ask what part education, and more specifically Christian Higher Education, and even more pertinently, Otterbein College, will play in the search for this New Quivira in outer space. That we should help to produce our share of young pioneers in atomic physics, in rocket design, in electrical engineering, in space medicine, in the fuel laboratories, and in mathematical theory is a duty imposed upon us by the mere logic of our existence as an institution of learning. And this we will continue to do as we have done in the past — not of course by building cyclotrons and nuclear piles in McFadden Hall — but by sending to the graduate schools the well trained and dedicated young people who have always come out of the small, private colleges. Indeed it may well be that such a person will precede all the graduates of universities and technical institutes into space, for one of the seven American astronauts now training for the first ride in an orbiting capsule is a graduate of our sister institution, Muskingum College. We shall continue to produce competent teachers for the public schools of the space age. Our graduates will continue to carry into business, the arts, the professions, and into the pulpit the kind of leadership for which Otterbein alumni have become notable. But all this, sound and orthodox though it may be, is no more than the universities of the fifteenth century were doing when the savants at Salamanca rejected the practicability of Columbus' scheme to sail westward to the orient.

NEED AT OTTERBEIN

What we need to do at Otterbein — and when I say "we" I aspire to speak for all of the faculty and administrative officers, the entire board of trustees and the great majority of the alumni — is to develop such sensitivity to the demands of our age that we operate on its frontiers, not in its areas of arrested development. We can pioneer in freeing the minds of our students from the parochialism that still limits the horizons of too many of our citizens. Our cultural antennae should be receptive to the vibrant currents that flow today from every continent and corner of the world. Participation in the Washington semester plan and the year of study abroad already carries some of our students physically into the stream of international life. Perhaps the time is not too distant when an Otterbein European center in the homeland from which most of our ancestors sprang will link us solidly with our own past and with our possible future.

We can lead in the practice of a truly universal Christianity and the formulation of a cosmic theology. Too many of us, even in this atomic age, still worship the tribal god of the ancient Hebrews who is concerned only with his chosen people (substitute for Hebrews, here, 100 per cent white Americans) and whose precepts are a combination of Pharisaic blue laws and mob psychology. Not only must we finish the far from completed task of stretching our minds to comprehend a God of the entire human race, but we must begin now to understand a God of an immeasurably expanding universe — a God of the kind of nature unknown in Biblical times — a God of gamma rays and electrons, of atoms and galaxies, and who knows? — perhaps of Martians and flying saucer people. Schweitzer and Niehbur and Tillich have shown us that we stand on the edge of an unexplored continent both in the practice and the philosophy of religion, and out of Otterbein should come some of the conquests in this virgin territory.

Such dreams as these are bold ones and there is peril as well as wonder in them. It requires no expert historian in this audience to have noted ere now that I chose a monumental failure as the premise from which this chain of reasoning began. Coronado did not find Quivira, or if he did, he found only a miserable huddle of grass huts, not a great and wealthy city. So what profit was there in the search? Coronado returned bitterly disappointed after what appeared to him to have been nearly three years of fruitless wanderings in the desert, and disappeared from history. Yet his expedition had seen and described for the first time the American bison; it had discovered the Grand Canyon; from it escaped the ancestors of the wild horse herds which later ranged the plains; and it provided the basic geographical knowledge of the Southwest from which all future explorations and settlements of this vast region proceeded. The mere effort to penetrate the unknown, futile though it seemed, had actually resulted in a dozen benefits for mankind. In the long run, Coronado's failure may have been more useful to the progress of the world than Pizarro's spectacular success. Many a college which has failed completely in the struggle for institutional survival has yet left an indelible impress upon the history of our nation through the lives of men and women whom it has educated. The greatest tragedy that may befall a college is not the dislocation and conflict that accompany change, nor even the shock of mistaken reform, but the dull mediocrity of contentment. In education, as in religion, we must relinquish the temptation to fish in the safety of shore waters and dare to launch out into the deep.

I count myself fortunate to stand today upon a great tradition of pioneering in my church and in this college which is a child of that church. The man whose name this institution bears, Philip William Otterbein, left a position of prestige and security as a professor in Herborn, Germany, to come to America as a missionary at a time when much, even of eastern Pennsylvania was a raw frontier. The church which he subsequently helped to organize was the first American-born denomination. We are today celebrating Founders' Day for this college which represents the pioneer effort of Otterbein's church in the field of higher education. One hundred and twelve years ago tomorrow, on April 26, 1847, the newly constituted board of trustees for Otterbein University met in this village and laid the foundations upon which so many great souls have subsequently built. Otterbein was one of the earliest colleges in the country to educate men and women alike, and was actually the first co-educational institution to have a woman on its faculty. The Association Building, still serving on this campus, was the first in the United States to be built by students themselves for their own recreational and spiritual purposes. It has not been an unusual thing, in the history of higher education in America, for Otterbein College to lead and others to follow. It should be and usually is, equally accurate to say that Otterbein has been wise enough to follow when others have led well. I trust that it may never be said of her that she has become incapable, either of leading or following.

One reason that Coronado, despite the great courage of his effort, failed to find Quivira is that he seemed to have formulated only the vaguest idea of what he was trying to find.

SEARCH FOR TRUTH

If the word itself meant anything to the Spaniards, other than a place name, they failed to mention the fact. Yet it is obviously not Indian, but a word made up Spanish or Latin elements, whether spelled with an "e" as in one contemporary account, or an "i" as in most of the documents. I have always been fascinated by the unusual character of this word and the absence of any explanation of its derivation in any of the standard histories. Fortunately, I am not a philologist, so I dare to rush in with the zeal of an amateur where the scholars have refrained from treading. It is my inexperienced guess that the word represents the effort of a Spanish friar, with unconscious classicism, to render into Indo-European syllables the liquid Pawnee phrases for some spot in Kansas. It probably meant no more to Coronado than a place where there would be gold and jewels, but to me it carries the suggestion in "vera" of "true", and in "Quivera" of "the future". If there be any virtue in this interpretation it is an ironic one, for Coronado, who had set out to find treasure, fame, and honor, ended by discovering only the disillusionment of ultimate truth, and this he found, not in Quivira, but in searching for it. Let us learn from this that the discovery of tomorrow's truth depends largely upon today's zeal and yesterday's ambition. If we have spent our years in vain and restless efforts to be satisfied with lesser things, this discovery can only bring bitterness and frustration — a simple fact which goes far toward explaining the Beat Generation. But if from the beginning our purpose has been the discovery of truth, and our goal life itself, then the finding of Quivira will be a consummation and a benediction. For in the search, we will have penetrated to the uttermost frontiers and realized the meaning of our existence.

Commencement, 1959

A graduating class of 133 received their academic degrees from Otterbein on Monday, June 1. President Lynn W. Turner conferred the following degrees: Bachelor of Arts, 70; Bachelor of Science, 24; Bachelor of Science in Education, 38; and Bachelor of Music Education, 3. Two students earned two degrees.

Four graduated with honors: Vera Andreichuk, Martins Ferry, Ohio; Paul Koons, Mansfield, Ohio; Patricia Sliver, Germantown, Ohio; and Janet Risch, Logan, Ohio. Graduating with honors requires a cumulative point average of 3.7 or more.

Dr. John H. Furbay, x'25, director of air world education for Trans World Airlines, delivered the Commencement address, using as his theme, "The Shape of Things to Come." He told the graduating class that "We are in the middle of World War III. It is a war of ideas. Atomic bombs may never be set off, but this war for millions of minds is the largest selling job the world has ever known."

On the subject of selling the free world, Dr. Furbay told the graduates that although America has the solution to the world's four primary problems, it hasn't been selling them too effectively. He outlined the problems as being peace, enough food for everyone, self-government and human dignity. He called these the "Four Dreams of Man."

Dr. Furbay said the solution to the first problem—peace—is the United Nations, through which the world could have peace through law and order. The solution to the problem of hunger, he said, is America's Point Four Aid Program, in which more food is produced on less acreage.

On the third problem, self-government, Dr. Furbay pointed out that the world must realize colonialism is dead. He predicted there would be 40 or 50 new nations arising as a result of the desire for self-government.

As for the fourth problem, human dignity, he said America must iron out its own racial problems before it hopes to tackle the world racial question.

Dr. Furbay's job is to work with educational and business organizations in 26 countries served by T.W.A., and help interpret the role of aviation in the modern world, which has been united physically through global air routes.

Before the Processional

Torch and Mace now used at the front of all academic processions at Otterbein are held by the president and secretary of the Junior Class, Don Love, Dayton, Ohio, and Beverly Easterday, Ashland, Ohio. The torch symbolizes the light of learning and the mace symbolizes the vested authority of the college.

President of the Senior Class, Lewis Shaffer is pictured with his father, Col. Glen C. Shaffer, '32, chaplain in the United States Air Force. Col. Shaffer traveled by plane from London, England, in order to see his son graduate, and also receive the first distinguished graduate award of the United States Air Force ROTC at Otterbein.

HONORARY DEGREES

Four honorary degrees were conferred during the Commencement ceremonies.

The Reverend Harold Victor Lindquist, Pastor of the Glenwood Evangelical United Brethren Church, Erie, Pennsylvania, received the Doctor of Divinity degree. He was graduated from Otterbein in 1943 and received the Bachelor of Divinity degree from United Theological Seminary in 1946.

A member of the Erie Conference, Mr. Lindquist is Conference Secretary of Missions and has represented his conference as a trustee of Otterbein since 1947.

The Reverend G. Weir Hartman, Executive Director, Columbus Area Council of Churches, Columbus, Ohio, also received an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree. He is a graduate of North Central College, Evangelical Theological Seminary and Yale Divinity School; a member of the Ohio East Conference of the Evangelical United Brethren Church; Mr. Hartman was formerly executive secretary of the Erie, Pennsylvania Council of Churches before assuming the Columbus post in 1957.

The honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws were bestowed on Perle L. Whitehead, ss '15, and John H. Furbay, x'25.

Mr. Whitehead is Deputy Regional Executive, Region Four, Boy Scouts of America, comprising Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky. His home is in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mr. Whitehead organized the first rural Y.M.C.A. for boys in America. A scout executive for the past forty years, he pioneered in Scouting work with handicapped children, orphans and delinquents.

Commencement speaker, Dr. John H. Furbay, x'25, received his Ph.D. degree from Yale in 1931. He has been director of T.W.A.'s Air World Education since 1945.

Noted for his knowledge of world affairs and his speaking ability, Dr. Furbay travels an estimated 500,000 miles a year to meet his speaking commitments and keep up with the changing world.

He attempts, through his work, "to help create an awareness of the air age and its significance to the world."

ALUMNI CANE AWARDED

Charles E. Shafer, '89, Benton Harbor, Michigan, was present in person on Alumni Day, Saturday, May 30, to receive the traditional Otterbein Alumni Association cane awarded to the oldest living graduate.

Lewis Shaffer, president of the Class of 1959, representing the most recent graduates of Otterbein, made the presentation.

Professor Harold L. McMillan and Dr. Millard J. Miller — Honorary Alumni.

The Honorary Alumnus Award was bestowed on two long-time friends and supporters of Otterbein College on Alumni Day, Saturday, May 30.

Professor Emeritus Harold L. McMillan, who retired last year, was awarded the Honorary Alumnus Award because of his loyalty and leadership to Otterbein College. He was chairman of the Education Department and Division of Professional Studies at Otterbein from 1946-58.

A former principal in the Columbus public school system, McMillan was on the Superintendent of Schools' staff prior to his twelve-year professorship at Otterbein.

It is estimated that over 3,000 students came under his direction in the education department during the period he served on the Otterbein faculty.

The other award was given to Dr. Millard J. Miller, pastor of the First Evangelical United Brethren Church, Westerville, Ohio, since 1945.

During the past fourteen years, he has been the advisor, friend and counselor of a host of Otterbein students. He received the Honorary Alumnus Award because of his influence, interest and inspiration to the student body.

He is a graduate of Lebanon Valley College, and United Theological Seminary and is presently a member of Otterbein's Board of Trustees.

Alumni are invited to make nominations for both the Distinguished Alumnus Award and the Honorary Alumnus Award for 1960.

Please state fully the qualifications of your nominee and mail to the Alumni Office, Otterbein College, Westerville, Ohio, before September 15, 1959.

A New Life Income Plan

Otterbein now offers a life income plan with a refund feature. This plan was approved at recent meetings of the executive committee of the Development Board and the Board of Trustees.

It is a known fact that many people would like to give their money to Otterbein and receive a life income; however, they fear a prolonged illness, hospitalization, or rest home care and they may need part of their principal.

Under the new plan, Otterbein will refund up to 10% of the original investment in a single year and up to a total of 75% over a period of years. In other words, 75% of the investment is revocable and 25% is irrevocable. Here, of course, the contribution deduction is based on the irrevocable amount.

LIFE INCOME WITHOUT REFUND FEATURE

A life income contract is one in which a person makes a gift of money, property, or securities to Otterbein and the college agrees to invest the money with its regular endowment investments and pay to the donor four times a year during his lifetime the average rate of interest received on all college investments. The contract can be written so that at the donor's death the income will be paid to a second beneficiary.

A life income contract provides an immediate tax advantage.

For Example: Mr. A at age 55 gives Otterbein $10,000 and secures a life income contract. The donor immediately receives a charitable gift exemption of $5,407 or up to the 30% limit for charitable gifts in a single year. By spreading the gift for several years the whole exemption may be claimed.

Supposing the endowment earns 4.5%, the donor would receive $450 per year.

Actually Mr. A is out of pocket only $4,593 for he has received a tax advantage of $5,407. At the same time he continues to receive an income on $10,000. So his actual investment is $4,593 and his $450 returns on the $4,593 is 10%, not 4.5%.

LIFE INCOME WITH REFUND FEATURE

The same person, Mr. A, at age 55, decides to give Otterbein $10,000 but wants the privilege of withdrawing up to $7,500 if an emergency arises. His charitable gift exemption will be on $2,500 or $1,351.85. His out of pocket cash is $8,648.15; his income is $450, which is 5.2% instead of 4.5%.

It is observed that the life income contract without the refund feature provides a better return but one with the refund feature is safer if there is doubt about future needs.

Either President Lynn W. Turner or Vice President Wade S. Miller will be glad to provide further information about life income contracts.

Otterbein will continue to write annuity agreements which are without refund features but are especially attractive to older persons. In annuity agreements the rate of returns is based on the age of the annuitant.

Highlights Of Traditional May Day Activities

MAY DAY QUEEN Suzanne Viotor, Greenville, Ohio, as she begins the traditional processional to the throne.

"16th-century England" was the theme of the 1959 May Day Program at Otterbein on Saturday, May 9. An "Old English" atmosphere was the program setting which took place in the Westerville City Park bandshell before an overflow May Day morning crowd.

Miss Suzanne Viotor, junior co-ed from Greenville, Ohio, was chosen Queen by popular vote of the student body. A member of Sigma Alpha Tau (Owls) Sorority, she transferred to Otterbein this year from Miami University.

Miss Bonnie Paul, Johnstown, Pennsylvania, was the retiring queen. Maid of Honor was Miss Dorothy Sardinha, Centerburg, Ohio, Miss Mary Lou Hill, Hartville, Ohio, and Miss Mary Ann Anderson, Westerville, Ohio, were attendants.

Revolving around a group of strolling minstrels in an Old English setting, the May Day program featured Mervyn Matteson, Marion, Ohio, as Master of Ceremonies; Miss Suzanne Shelley, Westerville, Ohio, and Ralph Bender, New Philadelphia, Ohio, as court jesters; a country dance performed by the Modern Dance Club; parodies and poems by Quiz and Quill; a Madrigal staged by a radio ensemble; and acrobatics by the court jesters. The "royal" entertainment was terminated by the traditional May Pole Dance by the Freshman women.

Afternoon activities featured the Otterbein-Oberlin baseball game and sorority teas at 4:00 P.M.

A very entertaining play, "Ah, Wilderness," by Eugene O'Neill was presented in the evening at Cowan Hall. The play was under the direction of Professor Charles Dodrill.
