Quartet members named Artist-in-Residence

Three members of the Columbus Quartet, members of the Columbus Symphony, have become Artists-in-Residence at Otterbein College, chairman of the music department Dr. Roman Lavore has announced.

The musicians, violinist Dennis Cleveland, violist Mark Childs and cellist Karen Andrie will teach in their specialties on the Otterbein campus.

Originally the Atlanta String Quartet, the young ensemble has concertized throughout the U.S. and were artists-in-residence for two summers at the University of Montana. Following two highly successful seasons at the Atlanta Memorial Arts Center under Robert Shaw, the chamber players moved to Columbus to assume a residency with the Columbus Symphony.

Cleveland, a former member of the Houston Symphony and the Chamber Symphony of Philadelphia, has performed as soloist with the Indianapolis and National Orchestral Assoc. Orchestras. He had as mentors in chamber music Josef Gingold and the famed Lenox Quartet. At Otterbein, he will teach violin string methods, and conduct the Chamber Orchestra.

Childs, proficient with the violin and viola, gained a thorough background under Gingold and the Curtis String Quartet, and played viola d'amour with the American Society of Ancient Instruments. In addition to experimental repertoire with the University of Pennsylvania's Contemporary Players, he has solo appearances with the Pittsburgh and Atlanta Orchestras. At Otterbein he will direct the Symphony Orchestra.

Miss Andrie, currently a member of the Otterbein College music department staff, is a recipient of a Fulbright Grant for study in Paris with Andre Navarra and was awarded the Premiere Prix, Licence du Concert from l'Ecole Normal de Musique. Also tutored in chamber music by Gingold, and having performed with the Portland and Cazenovia String Quartets, she is a frequent recitalist in this country and abroad. She participated in Music in Maine Program and was soloist with the Eastman Rochester and Milano Orchestras in Italy. Miss Andrie teaches violin at Otterbein.

Colonel Socolofsky heads Heart Fund

For the third consecutive year, Lt. Col. Lowell E. Socolofsky, chairman of aerospace studies at Otterbein College, will coordinate the Franklin County Heart Association's fund drive in the Westerville community on Heart Sunday, Feb. 24.

Col. Socolofsky will direct the solicitation in the city's residential areas, the proceeds of which will be used to further research and public education concerning heart disease.

"I can see much value in this campaign and the work of the Heart Association," said Col. Socolofsky. "I think it is important for people to become aware of what can be done to fight this dread killer," he said.

Col. Socolofsky explained that the Heart Association provides movies, brochures, speakers and public classes which help people to recognize, understand and become qualified from a personal standpoint about heart disease.

The organization's work has special meaning to him, said Col. Socolofsky, because his father was a victim of heart disease.

Stan Hughes, an Otterbein senior from Columbus and commander of the college chapter of the Arnold Air Society service organization, will oversee the mobilization of 80-100 ROTC cadets, women from the Angel Flight service organization and other interested college students who will canvass the community in a four-hour period on Heart Sunday afternoon, said Col. Socolofsky.

The Westerville campaign, which is a portion of the entire Franklin County drive, is run differently from most heart fund campaigns, said Col. Socolofsky, largely because of the size of the available work force.

Unlike most campaigns, where about 20-30 volunteers solicit in an area for a period of six weeks to two months, the local drive is conducted in one afternoon because of the larger number of volunteers.

Col. Socolofsky also noted that the cadets in the college ROTC chapter gain valuable experience from working in the drive. It gives them an opportunity to realize the Air Force's deep interest in community service projects. By channeling the drive through the Arnold Air Society, said Col. Socolofsky, it gives the Society's commander an opportunity to organize and gain experience in directing, overseeing and accepting the responsibility to tackle problems. He develops a feel for the kinds of relationships he will later experience in the Air Force, said Col. Socolofsky.

The annual drive has shown increases in contributions in recent years, said Col. Socolofsky, who added that he hoped to continue the trend this year.

Air Society, Angel Flight win honors

The Arnold Air Society (AAS) of Otterbein College was honored last week-end at the Tri-Area Conclave held in Akron, Ohio. Arnold Air is a national Air Force ROTC honorary named for World War II ace H.H. "Hap" Arnold. Its members must be AFROTC cadets willing to work for the betterment of the Air Force and the community. Angel Flight (ANF) is the women's auxiliary branch of Arnold Air composed of campus co-eds devoted to the promotion and support of AAS.

Maj. John Hankanson, Otterbein's AAS/ANF adviser, was honored at the convention by being named most outstanding ANF adviser of his area. (This area includes most of Ohio's universities and colleges that have AFROTC detachments) It was the first time an Otterbein officer has been so honored.

Some say strength comes in numbers, but this isn't necessarily so. To prove the point Otterbein also walked away with the Most Outstanding Small Squadron of the area.

Band gives Winter Concert

Tonight, February 15, at 8:15 p.m., the Otterbein College Bands will present their Winter Concert at Cowan Hall. This concert will represent all facets of Otterbein Bands in a widely varied program.

The Wind Ensemble will lead off the program under the direction of Dr. Lyle Barkhymer, and Gary Tirey. This, the select group from the Concert Band, will perform Montevogrol's "Fanfare" arranged by Stan Kenton, "Suite Francaise" by Milhand, and others.

Next on the agenda will be the Jazz-Lab Band. This popular group presents such tunes as

Once again, it was another first. Sometimes the work involved in being a good Arnold Air Squadron or Angel Flight can be exhausting, but as exemplified last weekend, dedication can and does have its rewards.

AAS and Angel Flight members came from Michigan, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and all over Ohio to attend the three day convention at Akron's Holiday Inn.

"Variations on a Brazilian Theme", and "Here's That Rainy Day." Mr. Wes Orr will direct.

After intermission the 110 member Concert Band will perform a program including Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition" and Burt Bacharach's "Bond Street." Their ranks will then be augmented to regroup the Cardinal Marching Band complete with bass drums, twirlers, sword swallowers and a partridge in a pear tree. "Spring and Lover" will be directed by Assistant Director Donald Wolfe, with the remaining numbers under the baton of Gary Tirey. Admission is free.

All letters must be typed, double-spaced, and signed in ink with the author's name, address, and phone number included. No anonymous letters will be considered for publication. Alcohol proposal

To The Editor:

Enclosed is a copy of the proposal for alcoholic beverages on campus, which is now under consideration by the campus regulations committee. This proposal is the result of several months of research and consideration.

The essence of the proposal is that within the privacy of ones own room, or fraternity or sorority house, drinking is left to individual choice.

The committee will hold open hearings on the proposal on Wednesday, February 20, at 6:30 in Barlow Hall. Those wishing to express any opinion or comments on this proposal may do so at the hearing.

Don R. Goodwin, Chairman Campus Regulations Committee
In our society the choice to use or abstain from the use of alcohol is widely recognized, although use is circumscribed by laws relating to age, time, place and behavior. Blendon Township, in which Otterbein is located, is legally dry under local option. Otterbein, as a United Methodist related college, recognizes the merit in the United Methodist position that abstinence is one responsible form of Christian love and witness. The Otterbein community functions on the basis of mutual trust and responsibility, and the consumption of alcoholic beverages without discretion is potentially disruptive of this educational environment. Otterbein seeks to offer the maximum individual choice within the framework of its unique traditions, church and community relationships and educational goals. Therefore, at Otterbein:

- (1)The consumption of alcoholic beverages and/or the possession of an open container of an alcoholic beverage on campus grounds, in College buildings and in all public areas of residence halls (including corridors, lounges, date rooms, club rooms, restrooms) and in public areas of fraternities and sororities is prohibited.
- (2)Disruptive behavior while under the influence of alcohol is prohibited in all on-campus areas, public and private. Disruptive behavior includes fighting, unreasonable noise, abusive and insulting language, interference with accepted rights of others and damage to property. When destruction of or damage to property does result from such behavior, the student will be liable for that damage or destruction.

- (3)Students are legally responsible to civil authorities for violations of the alcohol laws of the State of Ohio and Westerville when committed on the Otterbein campus. Such violations are also considered violations of College regulations.

Violations of the Otterbein alcohol regulations may be adjudged by the Judicial Council as major or minor. Major violations substantially threaten the security of the college community and of the rights of the people within the community and/or violate the rules of the state and local communities in which the College is located. Minor violations disturb the peace and order of the college community but cause no substantial disruption of activities either in the college community or in the community surrounding it.

The penalties assessed for a major violation are:

- (1)first offense: disciplinary probation or suspension
 - (2)second offense: suspension for a minimum of one full term, or dismissal
 - (3)third offense: dismissal
- The penalties assessed for a minor violation are:

- (1)first offense: $10 fine and/or disciplinary alert (fine to be paid at the Student Personnel Office)
 - (2)second offense: disciplinary probation or suspension
 - (3)third offense: suspension for a minimum of one full term, or dismissal
 - (4)fourth offense: dismissal
- This policy is designed to provide individual choice where it does not conflict with the law and institutional goals. It also is designed to define areas of enforcement and to clarify violations and penalties.

Manpower

To the Editor:

Since the employment picture for college graduates has been of some concern for several years I felt the enclosed article might be of interest to Otterbein students. It is an editorial which appeared in the December 1973 issue of Physics Today which is the official publication of The American Institute of Physics.

At the winter meeting of the American Physical Society last week a representative of the National Science Foundation presented some budget figures for 1974. They showed an increase of up to 400% in spending for research and development in energy production. This strongly supports the contention that jobs for technically trained people are going to be more plentiful.

Although the above information refers specifically to technically trained people, the indications are that conditions in other areas are improving also. Job prospects for college graduates are improving.

D. C. Bulthaupt

Unemployment in physics has decreased significantly since the time it shot upward three years ago. This is the conclusion drawn from a preliminary sample of the results from the APS-AIP 1973 Register of Physicists and Related Scientists questionnaire sent out for the first time earlier this year to all physicists. Current unemployment is now estimated to be 2%, half the peak figure of 4% in 1971, and is continuing to fall towards the 1% figure of the middle 1960's. The preliminary findings for employment of physicists with PhD's look even better. Admittedly, the remaining 2% unemployment is not uniformly distributed, so that the situation is not as rosy as this for certain subfields and certain age groups. However, assuming the results of the complete survey bear out the conclusions of the sample, we are entitled to believe that on the whole the worst of the job crisis is over.

Even more plentiful job opportunities in the future seem assured by the figures on physics graduate enrollment contained in this year's report by AIP's Manpower Division. A sharp decline is found in the number of graduating PhD's. Compared to the peak figure of 1550 in 1970, the crop of PhD's this year numbered 1300 and is projected to fall to 950 by 1977.

Although the individual physicist competing in the job market has every right to take comfort in these two dramatic downward trends, the physics community as a whole must, in the interests of the country, begin to consider at what point these trends signify an overcorrection that will result in a serious shortage of trained physicists. We have learned from recent experience that it takes five years or so before the full impact due to a given shift in manpower policy shows up in the output of the graduate training pipeline.

One factor that points to the possibility of an impending manpower shortage is that the observed increase in employment does not yet include the new jobs for physicists expected to be generated by high-priority government programs just getting underway, such as the energy program. On the other hand, it may be that the decline in opportunities for physicists at the universities has still not reached bottom. These and numerous other, often conflicting, factors need to be continually analyzed to provide direction for national policy makers. In our editorial in January 1971, at the height of the unemployment crunch, we called attention to the urgent need to establish a unified, vigorous national science policy. Now, nearly three years later with the employment picture easing, the need for such a policy is no less urgent.

Hopefully, the results of the new APS-AIP physics register and other data generated by the AIP manpower program and various society committees will provide the nation with the accurate, up-to-date information needed to reach intelligent decisions that will enable the policy makers, once they shoulder the responsibility, to steer a middle course between too few jobs and too few physicists.

Housing questionnaire

To the Editor:

The Housing Task Force met February 8, 1974 to discuss a rough draft of a second questionnaire which will be distributed to all students during the month of March. This questionnaire will sample opinions concerning residence facilities, living patterns, rules governing residencies, knowledge of social regulations prior to arriving on campus and other areas.

Members of the Housing Task Force, Mr. Virgil Hinton, Canton; Dean Van Sant; Pam Pauley, Bill Smucker, Rev. Richard Pettit, Parma; Prof. Philip Barnhart; Mr. Edwin Roush, Westerville; and Dean Turley listened to and discussed reports given by Greg Vawter, Beth Kendig and George Scheff who were involved in the eight forums held during the week of January 27 and ending on February 4th. Over 145 students participated in these groups. The topics covered in each group were structural changes in facilities, programming in residence halls, complaints and suggestions for dormitories, visitation and alcohol in residence halls. The discussion

HALL IN THE FAMILY

The Avis car rental story

by Susan Hall

Is that you in the bathtub? No, it's Morton Brando. How ya doing? I'm okay. How are you? Better. Going out again tonight? Yeah, can't you tell? I borrowed this bath oil and it's stronger than I thought. The fumes are enough to knock you down.

I see what you mean. I hate musk. It always smells like wet diapers to me.

Thanks a lot. Oh. Sorry. Hey, I saw what he gave you for Valentine's Day. It's really neat.

Yeah. He's got good taste. Your modesty overwhelms me. What did you give him?

A sabre. A what? A sabre. You know. It's like a sword.

You're kidding. Is that what he wanted? Not exactly.

Oh. Yeah. Well, that's what I gave him. A sabre. I sent my No. 1 man an invitation to a coke-date.

Your No. 1? You mean, there's somebody else?

Oh, sure. Gee! When are you meeting him?

Oh, I'm not. He'll never accept the invitation.

Why not? Doesn't he like you? He doesn't know me.

That's no excuse to turn down a coke-date. Besides, he likes his coke with onion in it.

Onion? "You try harder." You've got Anyway, his wife would never approve.

Do I know this guy? You've seen him.

What's he look like? Oh, gorgeous. Blonde, blue-eyed, muscular. No mustache, but nobody's perfect.

Well, what's his name? Robert Redford.

Robert Redford? Are you kidding? You've got a case on Robert Redford?

Do you blame me? Well...But that's ridiculous.

You're too old to be in crush. Last term it was some jock and last spring it was some squire and before that it was some tailor or something -

Traylor. He had dimples in his shoulders.

Where does Robert Redford have dimples?

That's an interesting question.

Oh, come on. When are you going to grow up? I haven't been in crush with a movie star since "Star Trek" went off the air.

Besides, you have a guy. A real one! And he really treats you super special, too. You can't deny that.

I know. He treats you so good, he's got you spoiled!

No, he hasn't. I appreciate everything he does and everything he says. I treasure every single minute we're together.

Then what's this Robert Redford?

Haven't you ever heard the old saying "When you're No. 2..."

"You try harder." You've got to be kidding.

No. I just like him to think he's got a little competition. It makes him appreciate me.

But why Robert Redford? Why not somebody -

Around here? Because, dingbat, there ain't nobody else on this campus that I'd rather have than my man. That's all.

Oh. Hey, what time is it? Twenty till.

Oh, geez. He's coming in ten minutes and I haven't got my makeup on.

You haven't got your clothes on, either. Oh, well, he won't mind.

No, but the manager of the movie theatre probably won't like it.

What are you going to see? "The Exorcist"?

Are you kidding? Hell Night isn't scheduled till March 29 and, believe me, I have no desire whatsoever to move the date up by getting the sanity scared out of me tonight. No, we're going to see "The Sting."

"The Sting"? With Paul Newman and - Robert Redford.

How did you guess? I have ESP. Hey, have a good time.

We always do. Be home before dawn.

The sun comes up at 8:30. I'll be back by then. See ya.

Bye.

Otters near .500: look to OC tourney

Otterbein's Fighting Cardinals raised its record to 8-10 Saturday night with an 84-74 whipping of the Wooster Scots. Dave Bromley led the Otters with 23 points and Mike Hays chipped in with 20. Teamwise, the 'Bein shot a blistering 64% from the field (32-50); Bromley and Hays were each 9-11.

A week ago Tuesday, Otterbein came a long way back, but fell to Muskingum 61-60. The 'Bein trailed by 12 at half-time, and by as many as 16 in the second half before coming to life. A missed Bob Deckard shot at the buzzer was tipped in by Mike Hays, but time had expired.

Wednesday night, the Cards traveled to Mount Union; Saturday night, they travel to Urbana before finishing out the regular season Monday night at home against Baldwin Wallace.

Looking ahead to the Ohio Conference Tournaments, it seems to this "reporter" that the Otters will have to overcome two season-long problems in order to succeed: inconsistency, and the inability to win the big game. Lack of consistency is obvious to the fan when he sees that Otterbein defeated Wright State after losing to Ohio Wesleyan, a team that hadn't tasted victory all year. Three of the 'Beins losses have occurred at the hands of Wittenberg, Capital, and Muskingum, and all of these teams are in the Southern Division of the Ohio Conference. Unlike the last several years when Otterbein had great years and mediocre tournaments, hopefully the opposite can occur. The last 3 games of the year will reveal whether or not the Otters are peaking late in the year: if they are, then they could surprise some people in the O.C. Tournaments...time will tell.
