Conductor Norman Luboff and his 30-member choir will appear March 12, 8:15 p.m. in Cowan Hall.

Norman Luboff Choir appears in Artist Series

The Norman Luboff Choir will appear on campus Tues., Mar. 12, 8:15 p.m. for the first time since its 1966 sell-out performance.

Playing to sold out houses, the Norman Luboff Choir has become a favorite on campuses across the nation. Performing Bach chorales, folk songs, Beethoven hallelujahs and rock cantatas on the same program, the Luboff Choir presents all types of music with equal artistry, precision and understanding.

Using the off-season to compose and arrange music, Conductor Luboff is known for his work on the nation's top television shows and over 80 motion pictures.

Beginning as a pop recording group in Hollywood, the Luboff Choir began touring in 1963. "Actually", Conductor Luboff explains, "we prepare several programs, each with an equal variety of musical styles. In that way we avoid the night-after-night repetition which can so easily dull the edge of a touring group."

Besides being one of the nation's top touring attractions, the Norman Luboff Choir has cut over 50 top selling albums.

The Luboff Choir will appear on the Artist Series, March 12, 8:15 p.m. in Cowan Hall. After the concert, Mr. Luboff and a few singers will attend a reception in the Campus Center sponsored by CPB. Be sure to obtain your free ticket with your ID in the Cowan Hall Box Office, weekdays 1-4 p.m.

FORD GRANTS AWARDED

Three more Ford Foundation Venture Grant proposals have been approved at Otterbein College in the areas of early childhood education, residence hall planning and training of foreign corporate personnel.

The new projects bring the total of working studies which have been funded by the $150,000 Foundation grant to six. The award is being used as a reservoir to finance projects conceived by Otterbein faculty and staff members during the next three years.

Directed by Helen Clymer, principal of the college laboratory school, the project entitled "Children: Our Most Precious Resource", has received $5,000 to expand Otterbein's part-time nursery facility into a full-time day care center. The proposed center would be staffed by student-majors working toward qualification in early childhood education through existing curriculum.

According to Mrs. Clymer, the school will be used by several departments for instruction of college students in human development. It should not only prepare teachers for an ever-expanding field, but also provide a community service as well as a resource for academic research, noted Mrs. Clymer.

Another approved project, awarded $3,000, is a study of Otterbein residence hall facilities and life style patterns at Otterbein.

A Task Force on housing, composed of Otterbein trustees and special consultant Frederick Frank, dean of Student Affairs at Washington and Jefferson College, hopes to find ways to improve coeducational growth in college housing situations.

Any changes in present conditions, however, must be within the framework of existing facilities and not encourage behavior contrary to accepted norms, infringe on personal rights or create unreasonable security risks, said Dr. Roy H. Turley, dean of Academic Affairs and leader of the project.

The Task Force will survey opinions of several groups from which they will base their recommendations, including students, alumni and ministers of the Methodist Conference. Committee findings will be presented at the fall meeting of the Board of Trustees.

Granted $500, a third proposal will investigate the feasibility of training foreign corporate personnel at Otterbein College. John P. Hamilton, assistant professor of Spanish and the proposal's author, will use the spring term of this year to research present educational programs for foreign personnel who are transferred to the United States.

Robert Morse stars in Cowan feature

Robert Morse, winner of the Tony award for his performance in "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" will play Erwin Trowbridge, the unsophisticated and lucky writer of greeting card verses in the Otterbein College Theatre production, "Three Men On A Horse."

The production runs through Saturday, March 9. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m.

With Morse in the comedy is an all-student cast including Barb Kosciuk as Erwin's wife, Audrey, and Jerry Confer as her brother, Clarence.

Erwin's penchant for picking horses in the daily racing form leads to trouble when he meets Harry (Jon Morelli), Charlie (Tony Mangia), Patsy (Dick Miller) and their exotic-dancer friend, Mabel (Dee Hoty), who play the horses in pursuit of profit.

Audrey doesn't understand it all, and Erwin can't seem to explain it, and what results are some of the funniest scenes in American comedy. Others in the cast include Bill Brewer as the tailor, John Cain as Franklin, and Randy Cole as Moses. Pam Hill will play Gloria, Steve Black will be Al, and others are Beth Machlan as the maid and Tony DelValle as Mr. Carver.

Common Courses discussed

Betty S. McNair, associate dean of Clark College in Atlanta, Ga. visited the Otterbein College campus Friday to discuss the college Common Course department with department chairman Dr. William Hamilton and members of the college faculty.

Mrs. McNair, also a member of the American Assoc. for Innovation in Higher Education, was invited to Otterbein to observe the program, which she said Clark College was interested in adopting in some form.

"This Common Course program fits our needs better than any other similar program we have observed," Mrs. McNair stated. "We like the thematic approach, and your unity of disciplines. We may be getting too far away from this in higher education."

The Clark College Dean explained that at the institution they are seeking to establish a general education department. "We strongly discourage the selection of a major emphasis of study during the freshman year," she explained. "Therefore, we are looking for a departmental arrangement which would help encourage communicative skills and offer generalized education for the beginning college student."

Mrs. McNair explained that she first learned of the innovative Otterbein play from OC graduate Dr. Bob Myers, now teaching at the Georgia school. Clark College, founded in 1869, is an institution emphasizing the training of black leadership, and has a multi-racial faculty. Clark is United-Methodist church related, and has approximately 1,250 students in a number of academic disciplines.

REWARD

A reward of $20 is offered for information leading to the return of the drawing which was removed last weekend from the exhibition of works by George Raica in the Campus Center. Contact Jack Dickey, Earl Hassenpflug or campus security.

The exhibition program has been curtailed during the past two years by a series of thefts. Continuance of the program is threatened by the actions of a few who probably see no relationship between their pranks and the inevitable consequences to the exhibition program.

Is anybody there?

To the editor: Well, Otterbein? What do you see when you look into the mirror? Today I felt like ending it all. Wouldn't want to do that. Today no one would look into my eyes. Otterbein is people. WASHINGTON — President Nixon has told aides he will fight impeachment with all the power he can bring to bear.

He made a public promise that he would cooperate with the House Judiciary Committee, which is conducting the impeachment inquiry. But privately, he has made it perfectly clear that he will oppose and obstruct the probe.

He sees no reason to court the committee members, he has told associates, because those who oppose him will vote against him no matter how conciliatory he is.

A few Republican partisans on the committee are trying to help the President impede the inquiry. The senior Republican, Michigan Rep. Edward Hutchinson, allegedly asked a young GOP staff member, Sam Garrison, to obstruct the impeachment proceedings.

This, at least, is what Garrison has told other members of the staff. Hutchinson, however, has denied it.

Meanwhile, many committee members feel they have been shut off from the impeachment investigation. They fear the evidence will be spoon-fed to them.

who will be there. They do not have to say anything, no practiced responses needed. No experience necessary. Could someone come down to me? Perhaps I expected much more than was there. What to do? I look at people too intensely, they wonder. I probably have not tried hard enough, or maybe I have tried too hard. Please, pity yourselves. I have been programmed and learned to come into myself. It is you who do not want me. Thanks all the same. Hey, if there is a lump in your throat, don't swallow it. You may need it. Have a nice life.

Student involvement urged

To the Editor: The students of Otterbein College have the opportunity to participate in their college's government in a much more meaningful way than many other college students. Students are urged to run in the upcoming Senate, committee, department, and trustee elections.

Sixty students will be elected to the Senate. One student will be elected as trustee. Three students in each department will be elected department representatives. Numerous student positions are open on various committees. All legislation must pass a committee before acted on by the Senate.

Our nation has experienced a year of political investigations into various actions by people in government. Many people believe that the national government was allowed to become isolated from society, because citizens were not sufficiently interested in their government. At Otterbein, each person is given the chance to have an effective voice in the operations of the school. It is the closest we will get to direct involvement in government. If students do not actively posed such a move. Even their limited cooperation hinges on the issue of confidentiality.

So the first battle, before the committee starts serious impeachment proceedings, will be over who gets access to the information. And there is a controversy over how the information will be verified.

HALL IN THE FAMILY

The way we weren't

by Susan Hall

Did you ever have one of those nights when you just can't relax and go to sleep? Lie on your back and your legs start to feel like you're in traction. Lie on your stomach and the pillow tries to smother you. Streetlights shine in your weary eyes, someone down the hall is screaming, and your blanket feels weighted down with English books.

The other night as I tossed and turned I tried to think of something restful. My room-mate was moaning in her sleep—something about "organic" and the devil. Oh, I wish this term were over! I wish it were spring! I wish I could get away from here. Away from English papers and Campus Center food and the weather. Someplace where there isn't any trouble...

"Somewhere over the rainbow," which no one can see through the air pollution. You know, they really ought to update that movie. Heavens, "The Wizard of Oz" is almost as old as my mother (you're welcome, Mom).

Let's see. Well, obviously the Wizard can be replaced by the President who floated into Oz on a great gust of hot air. I will play Dorothy, a loud-mouthed college newspaper columnist who is also blown to Oz on a gust of hot air.

I land in Oz and am met by the Waltons singing Elton John's

"Yellow Brick Road." I don't really want to leave Oz but everyone there insists that I go home. So they introduce me to Robert Morse and his famous race horse Brass Monkey, who was put out to stud and then couldn't pass the physical. And we start off dancing down the Great White Way on our way to visit the President.

The first person we meet is a talking dolphin named Mr. Phred who is on his way to tell the king the sky is falling. The king has just been kidnapped, however, and is being held in a hijacked airliner somewhere above Port Columbus International Airport with Bette Midler and Dirty Harry.

We pass Robert Redford who does me the great honor of picking my pocket, which is neat because I'm not wearing anything with pockets. Then Paul Newman and Barbara Striesand attack us with submachine guns because Robert Redford never tried to pick their pockets.

We have to run! Through the Forest of No Return into the Forest Lawn Cemetery where the ghost of Bruce Lee has risen from the grave and is giving Kung Fu lessons to Elvis Presley. We stop to watch for a few minutes, then suddenly all havoc breaks loose! The clock strikes twelve! "One o'clock, two o'clock, three o'clock, rock! Four o'clock, five o'clock, six o'clock, rock! Seven o'clock, eight o'clock, nine o'clock, rock! Ten o'clock, eleven o'clock, twelve o'clock, rock! We're going to rock around the clock tonight!" The Jazz Lab Band appears out of nowhere and begins playing "Valentino's Tango" as Marlon Brando and the entire cast of "Incident at Wounded Knee" roller-skated across the airport, down the runway, and then they take off into the lonely-looking sky, while Richard Bach and William P. Blatty plot to blow up Hollywood, screaming, "They commercialized our best seller! They perverted our masterpieces of art and soul! They destroyed all the meaning we put into our work! And what's worse, it's making them a fortune!!!"

"I can't stand it," I shriek. "Oh, Auntie Em, Auntie Em! Robert Morse is working for da Mob! Mr. Phred is growing a mustache and taking Mark Spitz" place on the milk commercials! Brass Monkey is going to the Masters and Johnson Clinic so he can star in the Walt Disney production of "Deep Oat"! I can't stand it! Get me out of here!"

Then David Toma disguised as George C. Scott playing the Good Witch of the North comes and whispers in my ear, "Here, eat this tape and then repeat to yourself "There's no place like Otterbein. There's no place like Otterbein. "Got that?"

Wind Ensemble and Jazz-Lab Band plan Spring tour

The Otterbein College Wind Ensemble and Jazz-Lab Band, under the direction of Gary Tirey, begin their annual spring tour on March 16, returning to the Otterbein College campus on March 23.

Highlights of the spring tour will include presentations by the Wind Ensemble such as the "Irish Rhapsody" a medley of Victor Herbert tunes, arranged by Otterbein graduate John Lloyd. They will also play current Broadway show tunes, including numbers from "Pippin", and feature student soloists Steve Corey and Ruth Wise.

The Jazz Lab Band, which

Tirey explains is "not a rock group, not just a big band style ensemble, not just a dixie combo, and not strictly experimental, but a combination of all these styles and sounds," will offer selections including "Here's That Rainy Day" and current popular big sounds such as "Country Road" and the Sprach "Zarathustra".

On tour, the bands will visit Pittsburgh, New York, and other areas of the mid-East, offering their final tour concert in Cambridge, O. In addition to concerts scheduled in these cities, the band members will be provided free time for sightseeing and tours.

Prestige offers medieval music

This Friday night, Les Menestriers will come to Battelle Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. to present an evening of Medieval and Renaissance secular song and dance music. This final Prestige concert of the season who recreate the ancient tradition of the wandering minstrel through voice and varied early instruments. The ensemble combines authenticity of scholarship with spontaneity and vitality. Their program will make use of combinations of voice, lute, viols, vielle, rebec, krummhorn, rankett and recorders, and will consist of four sets of pieces:

- Trouvere Songs and Instrumental Dances of the Thirteenth Century
- Music of the Court of Burgundy, Fifteenth Century
- Elizabethan Music of John Dowland
- Music of the Court of France, Sixteenth Century

Tickets may be obtained at 4139 North High Street, Mrs. F.S. Koehl, 1805 Coventry Road, or Mrs. Robert S. Platt, 2006 Coventry Road.

"Right," I say. I eat the tape. "It is a far, far better thing I do than I have ever done. It is a far, far better rest I go to than I have ever known. There's no place like Otterbein. There's no place like Otterbein. There's no place like—"

"Ungoush!" screamed my poor roommate, leaping out of bed. "Watch this, Mr. Roper!" Then she, having just seen "The Exorcist" flew across the room, kung fu-ed the slats right out of my bed, and beat me insensible with a bible.

After that I slept very well.

Internationally renowned singers Frances Yeend and John Crain will sing the Verdi "Requiem" at Otterbein College in Cowan Hall on April 6, 8:15 p.m.

Miss Yeend, internationally recognized diva, is a leading artist of the Metropolitan Opera and other companies. The lyric soprano has been acclaimed for her roles as the Tessitura of Turandot, and as Violetta and Aida. Debuting with the Metropolitan Opera as Chrysothemis in "Electra", she has also sung with the Vienna State Opera, and has performed at Covent Garden, with the New York City Opera and in innumerable other roles.

Tenor Jon Crain has had starring roles with America's leading opera companies, and is noted as a recitalist and soloist with major symphony orchestras. Among his distinguished performances have been those with the New York City Opera, the San Francisco Opera, Philadelphia Grand Opera, Pittsburgh Opera, and the Mexico City Opera. In New York, he is well known to audiences of the American Opera Society and the Little Opera Society.

Other singers to appear at Otterbein in the "Requiem" include Miss Gale Bartholic Limansky and Richard Chamberlain, bass-baritone soloist and a member of the Otterbein music department faculty.

Privilege

(CPS/ZNS)—Members of the general public may have trouble getting gas these days, but apparently oil company officials do not.

Take the case of Bernard Markwell, vice president of Gulf Oil company. Markwell recently drove into a Gulf service station in Concord, NH, only to see a sign which said "no gas".

The Gulf vice president saw the owner inside, knocked on the window and told him to come out. When told by the station owner that he was out of gas, Markwell replied, "Like hell you are."

Markwell said he produced papers proving who he was, and a few minutes later he left the station—with a full tank of gas.

Grant deadline extended

(CPS)—The deadline for 1974 federal Basic Educational Opportunity Grants (BEOG) has been extended from Feb. 1 to April 1, according to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

The deadline was extended to accommodate potentially eligible students who may not have been aware of the available assistance, said Caspar Weinberger, secretary of HEW.

For next year, an increase of $825 million has been requested for funding the grants. Average grants are expected to be about $800.

Individual awards for the 1973-74 year averaged from $260 to $450.

The grants are for the full academic year. The amount depends upon the financial need of the student and his family.

Information and application forms for BEOG are available from the Education Office, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, 'D' Street SW, Washington, DC 20202, attn: BEOG office, Rm. 5717.

COLUMBUS MAN SETS UP UFO BUREAU

(CPS)—A Columbus, Ohio man says he plans to establish a UFO Research Center for the central Ohio area.

George Eberhart, who believes that flying saucers come from a different plane of existence that coexists with the earth in another demension, says the number of sightings, and hoaxes, in the Ohio area mandate an agency to separate fact from fancy.

Eberhart plans to use statistical methods to determine similarites between UFO sightings and get a profile of what UFOs are really like.

"A statistical study is the only way we are going to find out anything," he said. "It is the only way we can make science perk up its ears and listen. UFOs aren't going to be landing on the roof of the Smithsonian.

March is here, but the students aren't. As Friday and the warm weather arrived, many students headed home. . . or at least off campus. those who stayed took advantage of the record high temperatures to play tennis, ride bikes and generally take it easy, although a few still found time to study. With warm winds in the 70's Sunday afternoon, a typewriter could be heard clicking away in Clements Hall while others took their books outside with them.

Otterbein's answer to the Maytag repairman sat as a lonely figure in an empty pool hall for nearly three hours before his first customer appeared. Construction crews finished for the weekend and headed home, hoping that they might finish the new field house by the spring of '78.

Saturday morning brought the arrival of the 'moms'. They saw demonstrations on self defense, Japanese flower arranging, and crafts. Later in the evening they were entertained by Opus Zero and treated to a cheese and cracker smorgasboard in the C.C.

INTERCULTURAL

(CPS)—Members of 382 chapters of Phi Delta Kappa, an international professional education fraternity have ratified a constitutional amendment to allow women to join the organization.

Stan Elam, editor of the Phi Delta Kappan, said the change was prompted by the feminist movement in education.

"Women are seriously discriminated against in education," he said. "There are very few women superintendents and few women principals."

Phi Delta Kappa accepts women

Elam said the amendment was a step toward ending discrimination. But it was a step not easily taken.

The Harvard chapter first recommended the change in 1969 at the organization's biennial council meeting. "Harvard has a lot of prestige, but there is also a lot of jealousy," Elam said. Not everyone wanted to follow their lead.

The amendment was proposed again at the 1971 council and was rejected.

Some chapters, including Cornell's and Harvard's, began to initiate women anyway, Elam said. Because such action was unconstitutional, these chapters were ousted. One Columbia University woman sued the organization for discrimination, Elam said.

Then, last October, the proposal passed the council by the necessary two-thirds majority. Only ratification by the chapters remained.

When the ballots were counted, the amendment passed with 75% of the chapters approving. The vote was 288 to 94.

Although the amendment was slow in coming, at least some chapters were quick to react. The Ohio State University chapter initiated its first group of women the same day the totals were announced.

Nixon Probe

criminally to search for my sources.

They suspected Yeoman Charles Radford, for example, of leaking White House secrets to me. Without warning, they strapped him into a lie detector and subjected him to cross examination.

They gave him four lie detector tests before they finished with him. Instead of finding he had slipped documents to me, however, they discovered he had sneaked White House documents to the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Other suspected sources were also put through lie detector tests. But now, ironically, lie detectors are being used against the White House. Two Watergate witnesses, ex-Attorney General Richard Kleindienst and Gordon Strachan, another former White House aide, also were asked to repeat their statements, with a lie detector.

Now the special prosecutors are trying to persuade two of President Nixon's closest associates, his personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, and his appointments secretary, Stephen Bull, to submit to lie detector tests.

For the White House suddenly has become more wary of lie detectors. And the President is being as secretive as ever.

The Three Musketeers: President Nixon's constant, closest adviser these days is press secretary Ron Ziegler. No one spends more time with the President than Ziegler. They begin with morning coffee together. Throughout the day, Ziegler is in and out of the oval office. When the President visits his seaside estates, Ziegler invariably is at his side.

Two other people have easy, regular access to the President. One is his chief of staff, Gen. Alexander Haig. The other is his bosom friend, Bebe Rebozo.

The three musketeers — Ziegler, Haig and Rebozo — are all for Nixon. He has made them his inner circle more for their loyalty than their ability. Not one of them, for example, understands politics. This troubles Republican leaders who have complained privately that the President should be listening to experienced politicians.

My own White House sources say the President doesn't seek political advice from the three musketeers, although he uses them as sounding boards. He looks upon himself as the best politician around and relies on himself for making the big political decisions.

My sources say Nixon sees politics in everything. He looks at Watergate, for example, as a political rather than a moral issue. He believes the drive for his impeachment is led almost entirely by his sworn political foes. Their real motive, he thinks, is to reverse his 1972 landslide victory.

Congress and Oil: Congress, meanwhile, has to face its own moral problems. For years, Congress has been voting special tax privileges for the oil industry. The oil companies solemnly assured doubters that the granting of such advantages was the patriotic thing to do. The oilmen were positively lyrical over how vital oil was to national security.

This argument conceivably might have justified a tax break for the discovery and development of domestic oil. But the oilmen considered it equally patriotic to drill for oil in faraway places.

Congress, therefore, granted them U. S. tax breaks to drill for foreign oil. They were permitted to take an oil depletion allowance for the oil pumped out of foreign wells. They also could deduct from their U. S. taxes the royalties they paid to foreign potentates.

Through these gimmicks, the American taxpayers indirectly paid for the development of most of the vast Arab oil reserves. The American taxpayers also put up most of the money, in the form of tax credits, that was paid to the Arabian oil sheikhs.

Today, the American taxpayers are still granting tax credits for the taxes and royalties that U. S. companies pay to the Arab oil producers. Yet the Arabs won't sell the oil, which the American taxpayers indirectly are paying for, to the United States.

If this makes you indignant, you can write the House Ways and Means Committee and urge the members to cut out tax benefits on foreign oil profits.

Governance

participate in the governance system, a few administrators will then be able to run the college the way they desire.

If you are truly interested and concerned in the happenings at Otterbein, that effect every member of the college community, run for election. A student is eligible to run for four offices: trustee (sophomores and juniors), division I and II committees (election to a division I committee disqualifies candidacy for a division II committee), and the Senate.

FEDERAL COURT INVALIDATES SOUTH DAKOTA DORM RULE

Editor's note: This ruling of a Federal Court coupled with the new age of majority act could result in drastic changes in college dormitory residence requirements. Students wishing to express opinions concerning housing regulations at Otterbein should communicate their concerns to their elected representatives in the college governance system or to members of the Housing Task Force which is in the process of studying the housing situation at Otterbein. All concerned individuals are also invited to express opinions on the housing problem in Letters to the Editor.

(CPS)—In a potentially far-reaching decision a South Dakota Federal Court ruled in January that the University of South Dakota at Vermillion cannot compel students to live in dormitories on campus. A.L. Schnell, director of housing, said the US District Court's decision overturning the housing regulations was based on an individual's right to privacy—and consequently the right to live wherever he or she pleases—as protected by the 14th Amendment. The Court also ruled that the school's policy was unfair because local students were permitted to live at home while out-of-town

Student busted for busting

(CPS)—A University of Colorado student was arrested for vandalism after he successfully opened a residence hall door with his foot.

The incident occurred one recent Saturday night after a hard night of partying. The student was bringing his date back to her dormitory, but the process was complicated by the fact that she was so drunk that he had to carry her over his shoulder. The front entrance was locked, and after no one answered his knocks, the student kicked the door. It shattered.

Following his arrest, the student said that he had been simply trying to open the door, not break it. His date made no comment.

students were required to live in dorms.

The judge dismissed the university's contention that living in dorms was part of an "educationally enriching experience" and ruled that requirements relating to the retirement of dormitory financing bonds were not sufficient grounds for the regulations.

The suit was brought by two women students who moved off campus in the fall and challenged the school's policy of requiring freshmen and sophomores to live on campus. Schnell said the university plans to appeal the decision which, as yet, affects only the Vermillion

A similar decision was handed down in November in the 78th Texas District Court preventing Midwestern University of Wichita Falls from enforcing housing regulations requiring students under 21 to live in university housing

Sav-A-Flush

(CPS)—Students at Indiana University in Bloomington have apparently taken to heart the call for energy conservation in ingenious ways.

After removing 3,600 fluorescent lights from the university library—a lighting cut of 20%—students turned to water conservation in the university union.

Under a new plan to be implemented, the fifty public urinals in the union will be synchronized to flush only when the lights are turned on. Ordinarily the urinals automatically flush once every five minutes, whether they're used or not.

The new plan should save 7,000 gallons of water a day, according to proponents.

WAA basketball

The women's intercollegiate basketball team completed their season with victories over Wright State and Denison. On Sat. Feb. 23, the women travelled to Wright State and ripped them with a 51-39 victory. High scorer was Jayne Ann Augspurger with 9 points. Linda Dailey and Bonnie Everhart both tossed in 8 points for the victory.

The Otterbein women then travelled to Denison Tues. Feb. 26 to beat them by a score of 39-34. Bonnie Everhart was high scorer with 14 points. Dianne Johnson also tossed in 8 points for the winning team.

Billiards

The W.A.A. sponsored an Eight ball tournament Wed. Feb. 27 in the campus center. Fourteen women displayed their talent at the pool table for the tournament. Nancy Everhart decided Theresa Braddock for the Championship game, while Dianne Johnson made a comeback to win the consolation championship.
