42nd Street — The musical comedy is heavenly with its thrilling dancing, spectacular staging and gorgeous costumes. Under the supervision of Broadway pros, a top-notch student cast makes the clichéd 1930s characters seem fresh.

The Last Five Years — The area premiere of Jason Robert Brown's off-Broadway hit is admirable. Jessica Wright and Chip Becker's performances, backed by a vibrant six-member orchestra, make the 90-minute one-act pass like only a few electrifying minutes. Red Herring Theatre Ensemble. (M.G.)

Theatre Roulette — The seventh edition of the annual short-play festival flirts with romantic relationships, but its primary focus is obsession. Of the 10 plays offered in three evenings, most explore characters whose obsessions take them to extremes. Most intriguing: The Rebuttal, Jennifer Feather's artful meditation on the failures of a love affair. MadLab Theatre. (M.G.)
