Musical Festival: Although very good (a little too long, though), the morning musical program for May Day didn't quite replace the traditional dance pageant which will be hard to surpass.

Remembered: It was gratifying to note that two of the classes didn't forget their women members for next year's Student Council.

Lack of Courtesy: The 2-act play, "On Whitman Avenue," was very well received both evenings last week. It was ashame that Director J. F. Smith failed to recognize his cast's splendid performance either night following the show by failing to congratulate the two seasoned actors and the 15 neophytes.

They Dared: The Westerville high school Senior dramatics class recently produced a two-evening, 2-act musical comedy, "Oh! Susanna," something which our college has refrained from attempting. Could it be our emphasis on departmentalization? The high school received marvelous cooperation among its industrial arts, dramatics, and music groups.
