A schedule for remaining dramatics presentations was announced this week by Prof. Marion Chase of the dramatic department. Three one-act plays, making use of freshman talent only and directed by members of Cap and Dagger, will be presented December 6. Janet Slaybaugh, freshman, is writing a play entitled, "Lo, the Stars" which will be directed by Lloyd Lewis.

Sally Bodge will direct "Suppressed Desires" by George Cook and Susan Glaspell, and "Cox and Box" by F. C. Burnanb will be directed by John Hammon and John Matthews.

"Craig's Wife," a drama in three acts by George Kelley will be given as the May Day production on May 2 and 3, and "Blithe Spirit," a farce by Noel Coward will be given May 29 and 31 for Commencement.

Chapel Schedule Includes Amherst Pastor, Pep Rally

Dr. Wade E. Miller, director of public relations, will address the Monday morning chapel audience about "The Coming of the Westminster Choir."

Freshmen will hear Dr. Robert Price, professor of English, speak

'Two Blind Mice' Cast Already in Rehearsal

The cast for the All-Student Production, "Two Blind Mice," by Samuel Spewack, has been selected and is already in rehearsal under the direction of Phyllis Shultz, Senior. The three-act comedy will be presented February 29, under the sponsorship of Cap and Dagger.

Leading members of the cast are as follows: Karen Norwood, Barbara Finkle; Tommy Thurston, Lewis Gray; Mrs. Letitia Turnbull, Nancy Carter; Miss Crystal Hower, Mary Lou Poorman.

Other cast members are: Robert Fulton, Anita Shannon, Duane Frayer, Ralph Wileman, Llewellyn Bell, Joseph Shumway, Lloyd Lewis, Kenneth Hanes, Robert McMullen, Charles Funk, William Lehman, Jack White, and Dean Saddler.

"Two Blind Mice" in Final Rehearsals; Gray, Poorman, Carter in Lead Roles

Cap & Dagger, college dramatics society, will present its fifth annual All-Student Production, Friday, February 29. The play, directed by Phyllis Shultz, is Samuel Spewack's "Two Blind Mice."

Lewis Gray has the leading role in the production. Supporting roles are played by Mary Poorman, Nancy Carter, and Barbara Finkle.

"Two Blind Mice" is the story of two elderly women who continue to maintain a government office which has been abolished. Lewis Gray is the Washington correspondent who is trying to break up the romance between his ex-wife Bobbie Finkle and her suitor, Bob McMullen.

Under the guise of trying to reinstate the office in the Department of Interior, he seeks to achieve the break-up.

Design and construction of the set is being done by the stagecraft class under the direction of Stage Manager Rudy Fedorchak, Technical Director Tom Hammond and departmental assistant in Speech, Ken Hanes.

Dick Rosensteel is Business Manager for the production while Ken Kohn serves as chairman of the publicity committee.

Council Helps Guide High School Visitors

Members of the Student Council served today as guides for students attending the All-State High School Orchestra Festival here. At the regular Council meeting last night, President Don Steck appointed representatives to help handle the large number of high school students expected to participate in the festival.

The Council also sponsored a juke box dance at the Student Union from 6 to 7 p. m. to help acquaint the high school people with Otterbein and Otterbein students.

It was reported at last night's meeting that $76.60 was collected in the Council-sponsored March of Dimes campaign. This is above the goal of ten cents per person.

It was also reported that Dr. Lyle Michael will be the faculty chairman of the March of Dimes
