Notes

Each delegate will be supplied with a card upon which are suggested a number of topics for extemporaneous discussion. Some of these will be discussed by Minute Men at the dinner-table, and between times, and at openings in the Programme.

The spare time of the delegates will be occupied by visiting the classrooms and seeing the teachers and hearing the students, and in visiting the various buildings under the guidance of those who are thoroughly familiar with them.

It is hoped that the delegates will become thoroughly conversant with the internal workings of the college, that they will visit all the buildings, examine them carefully, and, when they return to their various homes, that they will give intelligent expression to the many thousand patrons and friends of Otterbein and thereby quickly achieve our fondest hope: A Greater Otterbein in fact as well as in name.
