Ground Zero
photography by Joel Meyerowitz
“When I made my way home to New York several days later (after 9/11), the first thing I did was go downtown. Standing in the crowds at the perimeter five blocks north of the zone, I raised my camera simply to see what could be seen and was reminded by a police officer that I was standing in a crime scene and no photographs were allowed, so I left. Yet, within a few blocks the echo of that reminder turned into consciousness and I saw what I had to do. To me, no photographs meant no history. I decided at that moment that I would find my way in and make an archive for the City of New York.”

On Sept. 14, the ribbon was cut on the new Leslie H. and Ethyl Rose Miller Gallery, located at 33 Collegeview Rd., which now houses the College’s Department of Art.

Open House Features Ribbon Cutting of New Miller Gallery

Department of Art Has New Home

The Otterbein College Department of Art has officially moved into its new home at 33 Collegeview Rd. in Westerville. An open house was held on Sept. 14 to introduce the new facilities to the public and present The Leslie H. and Ethyl Rose Miller Gallery.

Approximately 115 art majors now use 19,500 square feet of the building. Renovations cost $1.1 million for the Department of Art, and additional space in the building is still under renovation which will be used by the Department of Communication beginning in fall 2007.

In addition to the art majors, education majors are taking art methods courses in the new building, and many non-art students also are enrolled in art history and studio courses offered by the department. The Leslie H. and Ethyl Rose Miller Gallery, located in the building, will feature exhibitions throughout the year for the entire campus to experience, including Inside the Forbidden City, an exhibition of Ground Zero by photographer Joel Meyerowitz (see page 12).

The Miller Gallery provides a superb exhibition space for nationally and regionally known professional artists. In addition, senior art majors present two-person exhibitions in the gallery throughout the spring term. A sophisticated lighting grid and large windows will help light the exhibitions.

In addition to the new gallery, the building features numerous specialized classrooms and studios.

The printmaking studio is designed for intaglio and relief printmaking process. The studio includes two intaglio presses including a new press with a large bed of 30 x 50 inches. A separate work room allows for the etching of copper and zinc plates.
The art history classroom has the standard technology including slide projectors, VCR, DVD, Internet and projection capabilities.

The expansive drawing studio has flexible spaces for large scale drawings. The drawing course sequence offers fundamental observational drawing, figure drawing and contemporary drawing options.

Visual Communications I and Package Design will be taught in studio 126. The facility includes individual drawing stations for composing hand typography, a large flat surface that doubles as a construction and assembly area for packaging concepts and a conference table to discuss creative strategies and critique concepts.

Studio 122 will provide space for teaching 2-D design. This facility includes movable work stations, critique area and storage for student projects.

Macintosh computer graphics labs, located in adjoining rooms A103 and A104, primarily serve the areas of computer art, photography and visual communications. Each smart technology equipped lab has Internet access and includes a computerized digital projection instructor station, 16 individual computer stations, drawing tablets and two computer stations dedicated to scanning and printing. Both labs include wide format inkjet printers allowing students to create large pieces of art work. These spacious labs also include track lighting along critique walls.

The photography area offers course work in traditional film-based processes, 19th century non-silver processes and digital photography. The new large darkroom facility includes two separate film processing rooms and an alternative process lab that can also be used for advanced studio or independent study hours by individual students. This lab is equipped with one enlarger station, UV light source vacuum table for old processes and a large stainless steel sink. The spacious main darkroom includes eight individual enlarging stations and a long stainless steel photographic print developing sink in the center of the lab, allowing students efficient access from either side.

The lecture component of photography course work is taught primarily in the critique/clean space, located directly across from the darkroom facility. This multi-function space is equipped with folding chairs, work tables, large projection screen and two track-lighted critique walls. In addition, three Macintosh computers outfitted with inkjet printers and film scanners will be used by students in the beginning digital, advanced color and black and white photography classes, and will also serve those students engaged in independent study or advanced studio hours in photography.

A 3-D studio enables art education laboratory activities and classes in three dimensional design and sculpture.

The ceramics studio offers a wide variety of opportunities in the field of ceramic art. The glaze and clay kitchen features a professional series solder mixer as well as the materials and equipment to create a wide variety of clays and glazes. Electric and down-draft gas kilns, as well as a natural gas raku kiln, give students the opportunity to explore a range of kiln-firing environments and techniques.

The open, spacious classroom studio provides sufficient space to create sculptural and vessel-form ceramic pieces using both hand-building and wheel-thrown techniques.

A painting studio is subdivided into 15 semi-private work spaces. A unique feature is that each student has his or her individual studio for the entire term; this feature, while common in graduate schools, is unusual at the undergraduate level.

Art education courses are offered for both education majors who will become classroom teachers and for art majors who plan to teach art in an experimental laboratory. Students can develop their own art making skills as they put together teaching samples they will use in student teaching.

This experimental laboratory is designed for work in three dimensions, which is work that exists 'in the round' or stands on its own and can be seen from several points of view. Here students will be able to explore forming art in sculpture materials like wood, wire, and plaster. In the spring term sculpture students will cast work in resin, rubber and glass.

In all, the new space promises to promote creative and exciting work by Otterbein students.

New Residence Hall Designed for Sophomores

Otterbein College has added a new home for students to campus this fall. Known as The Suites, the new residence hall is located in the heart of the campus north of the Campus Center and east of Memorial Stadium.

The new residence hall is a $9.7 million, three-story, suite-style building that houses 174 students. The residence hall features kitchen facilities, a computer lab and a laundry room. The entire building is air-conditioned. Students have semi-private bathrooms, with a maximum of four students to a bathroom. There are also 12 single rooms in the building with private bathrooms. The building features a modern floor plan for the needs of today’s students.

According to Vice President for Student Affairs Bob Gatti, “This is the first residence hall specifically designed for sophomore students. It gives us the opportunity to focus on the sophomore experience and provides an outstanding option for second year students,” he said, adding, “The addition of 174 beds gets the college closer to our strategic goal for housing at least 60 percent of our students on campus.”

The Suites, the new residence hall opened this fall, features semi-private bathrooms, with a maximum of four students to a bathroom.
Otterbein’s student Phonathon callers began work Sept. 17 in a room completely renovated to accommodate a modern call center.

The room, which is in the basement of the Campus Center, features 10 calling stations.

“The great thing about the space is that it is a permanent home for the program” said Annie Boehm, assistant director of the Annual Fund. “Before, we had to set up shop in a meeting room in Roush Hall, putting up all the equipment, and three hours later we’d be tearing it down.”

The new space ties in with the overall atmosphere of the Campus Center. The room features a large table for meetings or homework; students feel welcome even when they are not calling for the Annual Fund. “It’s great to finally have a place the student callers can settle into and be productive,” Boehm said.

Good News about Your IRA

Congress passed the Pension Protection Act in August that will allow, for the first time, donors to roll over funds in their IRAs directly to charity. The law expires December 31, 2007, so this is a great time to take advantage of this temporary measure, passed to encourage charitable giving. Some basic rules to qualify:

- The donor must be age 70 1/2 or older at the time of the gift.
- Rollovers of up to $100,000 per year are allowed, without tax penalty, and any gift amount will count toward your mandatory distribution for the year.
- The rollover cannot be used to purchase charitable gift annuities, be placed in an income generating trust, or otherwise generate income for you, the donor. It must be available to the charity immediately.
- Gifts to foundations or donor-advised funds are not allowed. As with any gift to Otterbein College, you may designate your IRA gift for a specific purpose.
- Any amount rolled over to charity will NOT be added to your income for the year, so your tax bracket for social security payments will not be affected, and you do not have to worry about itemizing deductions. A rollover to charity will count toward your mandatory annual distribution as well.
- The custodian of your account can supply you with the necessary paperwork. For more information, contact Carolyn Williams in Planned Giving toll-free at 888-614-2600 or 614-823-1400.

As always, thank you for supporting your alma mater.

Every Donation Helps!

For your convenience we have included an Annual Fund reply envelope in this issue of Towers. Please use this envelope to mail in your Annual Fund gift and/or pledge payment. The Annual Fund provides necessary dollars to help Otterbein:

- renovate buildings
- finance student activities
- buy and upgrade technology
- provide faculty development opportunities
- purchase library books
- provide student scholarships

To learn more about the Annual Fund visit our website at www.otterbein.edu/giving/annual_fund.asp or call Jennifer Westbrook ’01, director of Annual Giving, at (614) 823-1948 or jwestbrook@otterbein.edu for additional information or to learn how you can help.
Once Again, Otterbein Highly Ranked

In the U.S. News and World Report’s 2007 Guide to America’s Best Colleges, Otterbein College is ranked seventh among the Midwest’s 107 Comprehensive Colleges.

This year, Otterbein ranked first in its assessment by peer colleges among the 15 Ohio colleges in its category and second in the Midwest.

In addition, Otterbein had the second highest average graduation rate among Ohio colleges in its category and eighth in the Midwest. Its student to faculty ratio was the lowest in Ohio, reflecting Otterbein’s reputation for providing personal attention to its students.

According to the guide, Comprehensive Colleges are “institutions that focus on undergraduate education and offer a range of degree programs in the liberal arts, which account for fewer than half of their bachelor’s degrees, and in professional fields such as business, nursing and education.”

Otterbein competed with 107 colleges from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa and Missouri for this honor. The rankings are based on 15 measures of “academic excellence,” which fall into seven categories, with peer assessment being the most important. Other categories include retention rates, faculty resources, student selectivity, financial resources, graduation rate performances and alumni giving rates. For a more detailed report, visit www.usnews.com.

Volleyballers Net Team Academic Award

Otterbein’s Women’s Volleyball Team, for the sixth straight year, earned the Game Plan/AVCA Team Academic Award for the 2005-06 academic year.

The award, initiated in 1993 by the American Volleyball Coaches Association (AVCA), honors college and high school teams that display excellence in the classroom by maintaining at least a 3.30 cumulative team grade-point average on a 4.0 scale.

The Otterbein team, under eighth-year head coach Sharon Sexton, achieved a 3.659 average for the year, including a 3.637 while in season last fall. Thirteen women played volleyball for Otterbein in 2005-06. Forty-four teams from NCAA Division III made the list.

“The Game Plan/AVCA Team Academic Award is what being a student-athlete is all about. The AVCA is privileged to once again be able to award these schools for their excellence in the classroom,” AVCA Executive Director Kathy DeBoer said. “We congratulate the student-athletes, coaches and school personnel for achieving this honor and upholding the delicate balance between academics and athletics.”

Golfers on a Roll in the Classroom

The Otterbein College men’s and women’s golf programs have been ranked in the top 25 across all NCAA divisions by Golf Digest in its “Academic First” rankings, which appear in Golf Digest’s September 2006 issue.

The men’s golf program was ranked 14th while the women’s program checked in at 22. Golf Digest rated 772 men’s and 500 women’s college golf programs across the country based upon academics, player growth, scoring average, climate and coaches and facilities.

“It’s a great compliment to Otterbein College to have both our men’s and women’s golf programs recognized for their academic achievement,” said Thomas Stein, Otterbein vice president for enrollment. “We strive as an institution to blend athletics and extra-curricular activities into the academic program.”

The academics section received a 58 percent weight and was based on the figures from U.S. News and World Report’s Guide to America’s Best Colleges. The team-adjusted scoring average weighted 14 percent and included the last four seasons. In that time, the Cardinal men’s and women’s teams each won four Ohio Athletic Conference championships.

For more information about the ranking and to see the survey, visit www.golfdigest.com/collegeguide.
A Look Back and a Look Ahead: 2005-2006 Report

Message from the President

Each fall, I look back at our accomplishments and look ahead to our future. Recently I have been reflecting on the “health” of Otterbein as we move through the 2006-07 academic year, and I’ve concluded that our “health” is very good to excellent. Let me cite five reasons:

1. OUR LOCATION
   A few years ago I happened upon a history of the College written in the 1870’s that stated “Otterbein is located in Westerville, 12 miles from the known sins of Columbus.” Those “sins” may or may not have arrived, but Columbus came knocking two or more decades ago. No one could have predicted that 159 years after our founding, central Ohio would become an education destination for students. While the competition for students will increase, I am confident that we will meet the challenges by capitalizing on new program opportunities to meet our goals for incremental, qualitative growth in both full and part time undergraduate and graduate student enrollments.

2. OUR HISTORY OF FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY
   Otterbein has operated with balanced budgets for 55 consecutive years while at the same time adding academic and co-curricular programs, funding additional faculty and staff positions and renovating and constructing new facilities across the campus. This commitment to financial responsibility will be tested over the next few years as we work to meet the funding challenges of several new projects, most important of which is a much needed, long anticipated multimillion dollar addition and renovation to the science facility.

3. AN ONGOING COMMITMENT TO STRATEGIC PLANNING
   Our last official strategic plan was entitled Vision 2005. It has served us well and this is the year to lay the groundwork for developing a new multi-year strategic plan involving all constituencies of the College. As we look to new opportunities, I encourage us to: (1) continue our commitment to diversity across the College in the broadest definition of that term and (2) increase our focus on global learning across the curriculum. A required quarter abroad experience for all students may be impractical, but there are variations on that theme that can work for Otterbein. Personal interaction with those from other cultures hastens understanding and acceptance, and understanding and acceptance of others is something our world needs greatly. Let us begin with our students.

4. A STRONG ACADEMIC PROGRAM GROUNDED IN THE LIBERAL ARTS
   The strength of our academic program continues to be validated including recent reviews by the North Central Association, the Ohio Board of Regents, the University Senate of the United Methodist Church, discipline specific accrediting teams and national surveys. The most recent acknowledgment of the excellence was our number one ranking in Ohio and number two ranking overall of 107 comparable colleges in the peer assessment/academic excellence category of the US News and World Report annual survey. The excellence of the academic program is the first mark of a substantive educational institution and our dedication to that is unwavering.

5. THE QUALITY AND COMMITMENT OF MEMBERS OF THE OTTERBEIN COMMUNITY (TRUSTEES, ALUMNI, FACULTY, STAFF AND FRIENDS) TO OUR MISSION
   While we do not and should not march lockstep agreeing on all issues, there is no doubt in my mind that we all share a common foundational goal—to provide the best possible environment for substantive teaching and learning to occur. During the coming year we need to find more opportunities for both formal and informal conversations about the future of the College. I personally look forward to those conversations and welcome your thoughts on the appropriate formats.

Thanks for all you do to make Otterbein a great place. Your continuing support is vital to our future success.

Cordially,
C. Brent DeVore

Academic Year in Review

The academic year of 2005-2006 was a year of progress, change and growth. New facilities were purchased and erected; new staff came on board while others retired; and accolades about the College poured in by the dozens. Professors taught; students learned; and many graduated to follow their passions and make their mark. Included is a synopsis of events and news items that were shared in the Tan and Cardinal, @Otterbein (the on campus e-newsletter), reported in the news media, and highlighted in Towers magazine.

Institutional Mission
The mission of Otterbein College is to educate the whole person in a context that fosters the development of humane values. Otterbein College is a private, church-related, four-year coeducational college that sponsors traditional and continuing education programs of liberal arts and professional education at Baccalaureate and Master’s levels. Our commitment is to the liberal arts as the broad base of all learning.
Otterbein College is memorializing the tragedy of Sept. 11, 2001, with its 2006-07 Signature Series.

As part of the Series, Otterbein is honored to bring renowned photographer Joel Meyerowitz and his exhibition of art from Ground Zero to its Westerville campus in January. For nearly nine months after Sept. 11, 2001, Meyerowitz, the only photographer permitted unimpeded access after the event, documented the site that became known as Ground Zero and now presents his work as a stunning exhibition of the momentous and moving tragedy in recent American history, Inside the Forbidden City.

The exhibition will run Jan. 2-Feb. 16, 2007, in the Leslie H. and Ethyl Rose Miller Gallery of the Otterbein College Art and Communication Building, 33 Collegeview Rd., Westerville. The gallery will be open 8 a.m.-4 p.m. M-F, and 1 p.m. - 4 p.m. on the weekends. Admission is free. In addition, Meyerowitz will hold a public lecture about his work at 8 p.m. on Jan. 24, 2007, in The Fritsche Theatre at Cowan Hall, 30 S. Grove St., Westerville. A reception and gallery walk will follow in the Miller Gallery. For information, contact 614-823-1792.

Joel Meyerowitz is an award-winning photographer whose work has appeared in over 350 exhibitions in museums and galleries around the world. He was born in New York in 1938. He began photographing in 1962.

As an early advocate of color photography (mid-60s), Meyerowitz was instrumental in changing the attitude toward the use of color photography from one of resistance to nearly universal acceptance. His first book, Cape Light, is considered a classic work of color photography and has sold more than 100,000 copies during its 25-year life. He is the author of 14 other books, including Bystander: The History of Street Photography and Tuscany: Inside the Light.

Within a few days of the 9/11 attacks on the World Trade Center in New York, Meyerowitz began to create an archive of the destruction and recovery at Ground Zero and the immediate neighborhood. The World Trade Center Archive now numbers more than 8,000 images and will be available for research, exhibition, and publication at museums in New York and Washington, DC.

Being the only photographer who was granted unimpeded access to Ground Zero after Sept. 13, 2001, The Ohio State University graduate Meyerowitz reflects meditatively on the work and workers there, systematically documenting the painful rescue, recovery, demolition and excavation.

His color photos, presented in a 30 inch x 40 inch format, succinctly convey the magnitude of the destruction and loss and the heroic nature of the response. The exhibit serves as a stunning reminder to audiences of the true dimensions of the attack and the response – to visually relate the catastrophic destruction of the 9/11 attacks and the physical and human dimensions of the recovery effort.

Meyerowitz was invited to represent the United States at the 8th Venice Biennale for Architecture with his photographs from the World Trade Center.

Meyerowitz is a Guggenheim fellow and a recipient of both the NEA and NEH awards. His work is in the collection of the Museum of Modern Art, Metropolitan Museum of Art and many others.

In Meyerowitz’s own words: “In the moments after the collapse of the Twin Towers I was overcome by a deep impulse to help, to save, to soothe, but, being far away, there was nothing I could do. When I made my way home to New York several days later the first thing I did was go downtown. Standing in the crowds at the perimeter five blocks north of the zone, I raised my camera simply to see what could be seen and was reminded by a police officer that I was standing in a crime scene and no photographs were allowed, so I left. Yet, within a few blocks the echo of that reminder turned into consciousness and I saw what I had to do. To me, no photographs meant no history. I decided at that moment that I would find my way in and make an archive for the City of New York.

“It is a privilege to work at Ground Zero. Everyone who works there has been transformed by the spirituality of the place. The camaraderie among the workers in the zone reminds me of the stories we’ve heard about the World Wars, where men and women are thrown together by a common cause, share tragedies and victories, and are forever bound to one another by their effort. My task is to make a photographic record of the aftermath: the awesome spectacle of destruction; the reverence for the dead; the steadfast, painstaking effort of recovery; the life of those whose act of salvation has embedded itself deeply into the consciousness of all of us in America and around the world.”

The Signature Series will also feature a presentation of the musical piece On the Transmigration of Souls by John Adams at 8 p.m. on Feb. 6, 2007, in The Fritsche Theatre at Cowan Hall, 30 S. Grove St., Westerville.

On the Transmigration of Souls, for orchestra, chorus, children’s choir and pre-recorded tape is a composition by composer John Adams commissioned by The New York Philharmonic and Lincoln Center’s Great Performers and an anonymous New York family shortly after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. It is notable for containing texts from the countless missing person signs that became such a heart-wrenching symbol of the events, which are both narrated and sung. Adams received the 2003 Pulitzer Prize in music for the piece.

John Adams describes his work, written for the New York Philharmonic in commemoration of those who died in the tragedy of Sept. 11 as “a musical space for reflection and remembrance, of meditation on an unanswerable question. …On the Transmigration of Souls is a memorial to a great city.”

Discussions regarding the photography and music will be integrated into the classrooms throughout the year. The Signature Series was created to bring national and international talent to Otterbein to share their experiences with Otterbein students, faculty and staff and the general public. The last Series featured a visit to campus by critically acclaimed independent film director Gus Van Sant, who directed Finding Forrester and Good Will Hunting among many others.

Otterbein Theatre: 1906-2006

Otterbein College’s 100-year-old Department of Theatre and Dance began as the Otterbein College Department of Public Speaking as approved by the Board of Trustees in the fall of 1906. That spring the Class of 1907 produced the first fully staged play at Otterbein, Shakespeare’s As You Like It. Seven years later the first theatre classes, Dramatic Technique and Dramatic Presentation, were added to the course catalogue.

Dr. John Franklin Smith ’1910 took charge of the department in the fall of 1927. Over the course of the next 23 years he directed 83 plays. Plays were staged in several locations across Westerville, including the Alum Creek Park band shell, the Otterbein Alumni Gymnasium and the Westerville High School auditorium. In 1951 Cowan Hall was built and Moliere’s The Miser became the first production staged there.

In 1958, Dr. Charles Dodrill was hired to supervise the theatre side of the Speech and Theatre Department. Over the course of the next 33 years he molded the department into a world-class theatre training program. In 1962, Dr. Dodrill established the guest artist program. This program has included such well-known talent as Hans Conreid, Ed Begley, Brock Peters, Kim Hunter, Arnold Moss and Pat Hingle. The first Children’s Theatre production was also in 1962, an adaptation of The Emperor’s New Clothes.

Another innovation, now in its 40th year, was the addition of a Summer Theatre series in 1967. In 1973, the senior internship program was created to give students first-hand experience in the professional world of theatre.

Today, under the direction of Dr. John Stefano, the Department of Theatre and Dance continues to innovate and equip students with the skills to succeed in the competitive world of acting and design.

Once a year, senior students have the opportunity to audition for a place with the Otterbein College Senior Showcase. They travel to New York City to audition for more than 150 casting directors and agents, including those from ABC, Johnson-Liff Casting, and Fox TV. Following the audition, the students have the opportunity to schedule personal interviews and follow-up auditions with the various agencies or to submit their headshots and résumés for future consideration.

Because of this venue for seniors to showcase their talents, many have obtained work with agencies, companies and tours such as The National Shakespeare Company, The Denver Theatre Center, the national tours of Cats, Oliver and Cabaret, and with the soap opera, Guiding Light.

Otterbein’s Department of Theatre and Dance has graduated such noted actors as Broadway favorite Dee Hoty ’74 and the late movie actor David Graf ’72. Recently, Mandy Bruno ’04 was nominated for a Daytime Emmy Award for her role in Guiding Light, Billoah Greene ’01 received top billing in the independent film Preaching to the Choir and Sam Jaeger ’99 appeared in the gripping opening scene of Lucky Number Slevin.

Oops...
In the last issue of Towers, in the artwork displayed from the Class of 1956’s Otterbein Reverberations exhibit at Alumni Weekend, we erroneously attributed the wooden nativity figures to “Irving” Bence. John Wells ’48 was the creator of the carved nativity figures. Irvin Bence ’56 is also a woodworker and carver, and the cross shown at right, which hangs in the United Methodist Church of the Master, is an example of his work. Sorry for the mixup!
As a holder of 20 patents for Texas Instruments products and methods, you might say Bruce Flinchbaugh ’75 knows his gadgets. In the past 25 years, he has distinguished himself in the field of higher technology, particularly in digital video and image processing.

He graduated with honors in 1975 from Otterbein College and received a bachelor’s degree in mathematics. During the summer of 1974, he worked for Argonne National Laboratory in the suburbs of Chicago. This experience gave him the support to continue on and receive his OSU-CSE Ph.D. in 1980.

Bruce is now a TI (Texas Instruments) Fellow, and manages the Video and Image Processing Branch of the DSP R&D Center at Texas Instruments in Dallas. As a research manager, some of his responsibilities include video and image processing projects for TI businesses with programmable digital signal processor (DSP) products for digital cameras, cellular phones and other digital imaging and video systems.

Since joining TI in 1982, Bruce and his research teams have enabled TI products for diverse digital signal processing applications. His early contributions were methods for the automatic interpretation of three-dimensional seismic data for oil exploration. This led to the development of a TI geophysical workstation and a method that split the concrete complexity of geophysical data processing in production.

“It’s good to work with very smart people…I learn something new everyday,” he said.

After the Berlin Wall fell in 1989, Bruce began directing his research toward automatic target recognition technology projects for defense applications concerning problems in independent video surveillance for security purposes.

In the early 1990s, his team prepared the development of a real-time autonomous video-monitoring prototype that could track people and map out their positions. By the mid-90s, this system had come to be recognized and earned TI a sole-source award for autonomous video surveillance research. In 1998, his area office developed a stand alone network camera prototype of the system, with software employed entirely on a single Digital Signal Processor (DSP), which contributed to the structure of the TI business unit for digital camera processors that are in production today.

Bruce has published or presented in over 50 technical forums including journals, industry trade magazines and conferences. Currently, he represents TI on an external advisory board at OSU, and on the Industrial Liaison Committee of the International Association for Pattern Recognition. More than a dozen of TI employees have been recruited and mentored by Bruce. This includes the supervision of MIT (Massachusetts Institute of Technology) and the University of Illinois master’s thesis projects at TI, as well as over 25 other graduate students working as TI R&D summer interns over the past 24 years. He has progressively been promoted within the TI company for many years now, climbing the ladder of success by working hard and functioning well with others.

Bruce said that his liberal arts background from Otterbein has really helped him keep a broad perspective on things at work. It is especially helpful, he said, because most of the people that he works with were engineer majors at state schools. Also, his study abroad to England while he was at Otterbein helped him establish more of a worldly perspective.

Bruce was an active member in Lambda Gamma Epsilon, also known as Kings fraternity. In his free time, Bruce liked to play the guitar and write songs. He was also in the traveling campus group called Simbance that went to church camps and other student groups to sing and perform. He said he had some of his best times in college playing his guitar and hanging out with his fraternity brothers.

Many have recognized Bruce for his achievements throughout the years. Some awards and honors include: Distinguished Alumnus, The Ohio State University College of Engineering, 2003; TI Fellow, Texas Instruments, 2002; Distinguished Member of Technical Staff, Texas Instruments, 1998; ACM Recognition of Service Award, 1993; Senior Member of Technical Staff, Texas Instruments, 1986; University Fellow, The Ohio State University, 1975; Otterbein Scholar, Otterbein College, 1971.

Since this will be his 25th year working with TI, it’s a good thing that Bruce enjoys what he does. He said, “I always followed my nose,” and it has led him to find something that truly interests him and never gets old. With the constant changes in technology he said he is glad that he is able to touch so many lives with the products that he and his company produce.

Alumnus Has Insight on Common Book

I was interested to read in the Summer 2006 Towers that the 2006–2007 Common Book is The Inextinguishable Symphony by Martin Goldsmith.

I have owned this book for several years, ever since I heard Martin Goldsmith talking about his parents’ experiences in Nazi Germany. I am certain that the Otterbein students will find it an inspiring story.

Of particular interest to me was the story on pages 44-45 concerning violinist Ernst Drucker. During many of my seasons with the Chautauqua Opera, Mr. Drucker was the concertmaster of the opera orchestra and a member of the Chautauqua Symphony. As a member of the Metropolitan Opera orchestra in New York City, Mr. Drucker had a vast experience playing operatic scores, and was an invaluable leader in the pit. He played the many violin solos beautifully and we all counted ourselves lucky to work with him.

The Drucker family lived in a house quite near the opera rehearsal building, and I can remember hearing his young son, Eugene, hard at work practicing the violin. Eugene became one of the youngest violinists in the Student Symphony. He is now the principal violinist with the famous Emerson String Quartet, which has appeared on TV and made many CD recordings.

Just wanted to pass this information along...

John Lloyd ’60 (Chautauqua Opera, 1956-67)

It was an Otterbein Love Story...

James Coppock Brown ’48, son of Thomas B. Brown ’18 and Cleo Coppock Brown ’19, started at Otterbein in 1940, but in 1942 enlisted in the U.S. Air Force. He served for three years in the South Pacific before returning to Otterbein. While playing bridge at meal time in Cochran Hall he met Mary Jo Wood ’48, daughter of Genevieve Mullin Wood ’23 and Stanton B. Wood ’17. It was love at first sight! And for two years they studied, went to Pi Beta Sigma and Sigma Alpha Tau activities, held hands, walked for miles, and kissed in the dark doorways of Cochran Hall. Jim’s frat even performed a sweetheart serenade, directed by Bob (Bing) Crosby, on the fire escape of Cochran when they became engaged.

They had a big wedding and honeymoon and in a couple of years moved to Jim’s family farm in western PA, when his dad retired. Jim worked as a chemist but also farmed the 125-acre farm in the evenings and on weekends. They had four sons. Jim died Sept. 1, 2006. Jim loved his family, the land, playing golf, and his wife very much.

With a passion for broadcast reporting, Karen Kasler ’89 has been busy making her mark in the news world since she graduated from Otterbein. A native of Lancaster, Ohio, Karen is now a reporter for the Statehouse News Bureau and Ohio’s public radio and television stations.

In 1990, Karen joined the staff of WCBE-FM in Columbus. As news director, she channeled WCBE’s coverage to a variety of events. Some events that were covered include the local impact of the Gulf War, the financial problems of the Columbus Public Schools and the trouble-ridden Ameriflora exhibition in 1992. She also filed for National Public Radio (NPR) and National Native News during her time at WCBE.

In 1994, Karen was selected as a Fellow in the Kiplinger Master’s Program for Mid-Career Journalists at The Ohio State University. After receiving her master’s degree, she moved to Cleveland and became the afternoon drive anchor and assignment editor for WTAM-AM.

“There were some dark days for me in the beginning…but because I love being a broadcaster, I was able to hang in there ’til I got the breaks I needed,” she said.

Karen frequently reported for ABC Radio News and also co-produced a nationally distributed documentary on the one-year anniversary of Sept. 11, 2001, featuring her interview with Homeland Security Secretary Tom Ridge from the West Wing of the White House.

In March 2004, Karen joined the Statehouse News Bureau. She’s reported for NPR, Marketplace and the Great Lakes Radio Consortium, and is a frequent guest on ONN’s Capitol Square, WVIZ’s Ideas and WOSU-TV’s Columbus on the Record. Karen recently became a mom with the birth of her son, Jack, late last year. Karen and her family live on Columbus’ northeast side.

Karen has been honored by the Cleveland Press Club/Society of Professional Journalists, the Ohio Educational Telecommunications Commission, and holds a National Headliner Award. She’s won several awards from the Ohio AP, and is a four-time winner of the AP’s Best Broadcast Writing award.

While at Otterbein, Karen was involved mostly with the student radio station, WOBN. She was the WOBN news director in 1988, wrote for the Tan & Cardinal and hosted a show on WOCC called Theatre in Westerville.

She has won awards such as: Best Use of Sound – 2006, The Ohio Associated Press Broadcasters, Use of Sound, Second Place – 2005, and the Ohio Associated Press Broadcasters.

This year, Karen was the “Less-Than-Grand Marshal” for the 23rd Annual Doo Dah Parade, which took place on July 4. The Doo Dah Parade is, she explained, “a celebration of the right to controversial and politically incorrect free speech and a desecration of the standard old ‘parade’ at the same time.” The parade sometimes features such entries as the Marching Fidels (people dress like Fidel Castro), Beer Belly Brigade, Ghandi on Roller Skates, and plenty of kazoos and bad taste political satire.

About her profession, Karen says it is important above all to strive to be a good writer. She says that one can practice their performance if not confident in front of a camera, but if you can’t write then it is difficult to present information to your audience.

“I read a lot, and write every day. And I take note of writing that I think is great, and try to learn from those writers.”

Karen said that the two things that have gotten her to this, her dream job, are hard work and networking, which go hand in hand. By networking and meeting as many people as possible, come more opportunities that can land a job and/or good contacts in the future.

“Once I discovered radio, there was nothing else I wanted to do,” she stated. “There are plenty of great jobs outside of broadcasting, most of which pay more and have better hours. But of course they don’t have the thrill of performing.”

Summer ended for eight senior nursing students, along with three faculty members, with a mission trip to Alaska. They began their journey in Anchorage, visiting the Alaskan Heritage Center, before heading to Glenallen in the interior of Alaska. The trip was made possible by a gift from the Class of 2006.

Six students remained at the Cross Roads Medical Center, a mission-based clinic in Glenallen that serves about 3,000 residents in an area roughly the size of Ohio. Cross Roads provides services for a clinic, urgent care, emergency room and overnight hospital. It also offers outpatient services including hospice and oncology care, home care visits and a community educational program. Students routinely saw 20 clinic patients daily in addition to patients seen in the urgent and emergency room visits.

Two students traveled from Glenallen to Valdez, a fishing town in Prince William Sound. There, they worked with the public health nurse in an outpatient clinic providing public health services to the school, hospital and clinic employees. Some days more than 100 school employees were examined by nursing students, and approximately 30 patients were seen during the five-day period.

Senior nursing student Sara Brehm gives a TB test to a member of the Valdez community. She enjoyed her experience, noting “They were so warm, and eager to share stories of the people who live in town. We got to talking about how different the culture is, especially from a public health standpoint. I just could not have asked for the people to be more warm and caring towards me. I feel like I really made a difference!”

We’d like to express our heartfelt appreciation to the Class of 2006 for their support of the medical mission programs, specifically to our Summer 2006 trip to Alaska. A team of eight undergraduate nursing students and three faculty members had the opportunity to help provide healthcare to the native American/Alaskan communities serviced by Crossroads Medical Center in Glenallen and the healthcare system in Valdez. Students worked at the primary care clinics, the hospital, accompanied community healthcare providers into the homes and administered required immunizations in the schools. It was a wonderful experience for everyone involved.

As you know, the Nursing Department of Otterbein College is committed to service learning through the medical mission immersion experience. Through your support, we were able to donate these services to the Alaskan communities. Thank you for your financial support. We look forward to hearing from each of you as you embark on your nursing careers.

Sincerely,

Barbara Schaffner, Chair
Marjorie Vogt, Associate Professor
The 10-day trip provided five days for immersion in the Glenallen and Valdez clinics. The objectives of the trip were to enhance understanding of culture and its impact on health care practice, to provide an opportunity for students to deliver culturally competent health care, and to promote an understanding of remote health care as a comparison with similar services in Ohio.

These kinds of opportunities help provide nursing students with life-long learning, methods of incorporating diversity into health care delivery, and the development of a sense of service within a professional career.

Other trips scheduled this year include the Nightingale trip to England in December and a medical mission immersion experience to Nuevo Progresso, Mexico in January 2007. The Nursing faculty hope to organize a return trip to Red Bird Mission located in the hills of Appalachia in Kentucky in the summer of 2007. A return trip to Alaska is being considered for summer 2007.

Recent Grant Awards to Otterbein College

The National Science Foundation awarded $57,641 to Chemistry Professor Dr. Dean Johnston for his project Visual-Spatial Learning. This project features web-based materials to help students and faculty visualize and teach 3-dimensional molecular symmetry. The software will display and animate symmetry elements and operations in ways that cannot be achieved with physical models. Otterbein will collaborate with seven other institutions of higher learning that also will implement the web-based materials in their coursework and assess results.

John Kengla of the Center for Community Engagement was awarded $35,500 by The Columbus Foundation, through the Neva J. Collins, and J. Ray and Lilian W. Waller funds, for the Ubuntu Mentoring Program. This multi-tiered mentoring initiative will help to develop urban middle school students’ capacity to improve their academic potential. Throughout the 2006-2007 academic year, Otterbein and Linden-McKinley High School students will mentor students participating in 8th Grade College Clubs, 6th Grade Apprentice College Clubs and a mentoring course.

The Revaluation of the Mussels of the Little Miami River System project received $15,746 from the Ohio Department of Natural Resources and $2500 from Little Miami Incorporated. Through these awards, Dr. Michael Hoggarth of the Department of Life Sciences will study the mussel fauna of the Little Miami River system in areas that represent the most diverse species of mussels in terms of species richness and number of individuals.

The Ohio Foundation of Independent Colleges awarded $10,000 to Education Professor Dr. Patti Albaugh for Building the Momentum: Expanding Smartboard Mentor Groups and Refining the Research. This project will strategically deploy electronic Smartboard technology across campus and within diverse departments. Smartboard Mentor Groups will train and support faculty new to the technology, and help to development and implement classroom lessons in multiple courses of study. Dual research analysis will assess the experience of implementing the technology for the first time and study the impact of sustained use of Smartboard technology.

Increasing their support, the Ohio Campus Compact awarded $10,000 for the Center for Community Engagement’s program Otterbein Club Fellows 2006: A Service Learning Initiative, under the direction of Director Melissa Gilbert. This continuing initiative, a collaborative among Otterbein College, Columbus Public Schools (CPS), Project GRAD, I Know I Can and Westerville City Schools, will enable 10 Otterbein students to be involved in a variety of service programs with a focus on urban youth mentoring. Six Otterbein students will serve as college club coordinators in three urban CPS middle schools. Four Otterbein students who are community service scholars (TEAM members), will participate in youth mentoring service programs in both CPS and Westerville City schools. Fellows will serve as capacity-builders for each site: recruiting volunteers, designing program activities, and mentoring elementary and young middle school students contemplating a future in higher education.

The Presser Foundation has awarded $4,200 to Music Professor Dr. Craig Johnson and Otterbein’s Department of Music. This award provides funding for scholarships for students majoring in music and is awarded based on artistic potential.

The Nationwide Foundation has given $4,000 for The George H. Dunlap Scholarship. This scholarship was established by Nationwide in honor of Mr. Dunlap H’91, who served as chairman of Nationwide Insurance and was President of the Otterbein Board of Trustees for 15 years. Scholarships are awarded to students majoring in Business Administration and/or Social Sciences.

Dr. Karen Robinson of the Department of Education received $3,500 from The Institute for Library & Information Literacy Education for Learning More about Our Constitution: An Information Literacy Collaboration between Pre-Service Teachers and Fourth and Fifth Graders. This project will enable Otterbein College students enrolled in the Middle Childhood Teacher Education Program to become more aware of information literacy efforts in the K-12 arena, and to experience first-hand the value of collaboration between teachers and school library media specialists.

The Legacy Fund of the Columbus Foundation awarded English Professor Dr. Susan Ashworth $500 for the GLBT Awareness Workshop. This project will develop workshops for Otterbein faculty to help address issues and obstacles that GLBT students face on campus, nurture respect and dialogue across borders of sexual difference in the classroom, and respond more effectively to sexually prejudicial comments in the classroom.

Alumni Online Directory is Live!

A new way to connect with old friends...

Otterbein’s new Alumni Online Directory is now fully functional and at your fingertips! The Directory is a great way for you to:

• update your personal information
• search for and connect with old friends
• connect with other Otterbein alumni in your area (or around the world for that matter), and
• share information about your life.

And it’s a great way to stay connected with your alma mater.

To access the Directory, go to www.otterbein.edu/alumni and click on “online directory.” Log on by entering your username and password, printed on your mailing address on this Towers magazine.

If you have questions, or need assistance, please contact the Office of Alumni Relations at 1-888-614-2600 or 614-823-1650, or by email at alumniinfo@otterbein.edu.

Alumni E-Newsletter Gets New Name

The Otterbein College Alumni e-Newsletter has a new name, thanks to Nancy Everett Hafer ’75. She submitted the winning entry to the newsletter naming contest. Her entry, Cardinal Connection, was chosen by the Alumni Council members and debuted in the September edition of the newsletter. Cardinal Connection is e-mailed bimonthly to all alumni. It provides timely information about the College, photos from recent alumni events, information on upcoming events and links to other Otterbein publications.

Alumni who do not currently receive the Cardinal Connection are encouraged to update their e-mail addresses on the online directory or call the Office of Alumni Relations at 614-823-1650, 1-888-614-2600 or at ldraper@otterbein.edu. Archived editions of Cardinal Connection as well as Towers can be accessed on the “Publications” page of the alumni website at www.otterbein.edu/alumni.
Theatre Alumni Kick Off Centennial Year....

Theatre alumni kicked off their celebratory centennial year with a number of get-togethers over Labor Day weekend. Clockwise from top left: Dee Hoyt ’74, Beth Sharp ’77, Shelley Russell ’73, and Becky Holford ’73 at a party hosted by Pam Hill ’75. Alumni gather in front of Cowan; the group had a tour of the renovated Cowan and saw a concert rehearsal of Company. John Cain ’76 and Sue Ann Kocks Cunliffe ’76 at Pam Hill’s gathering. Carter Lewis ’73, Pamela Erb Melville ’73 and Kent Blocher ’79 apparently are not taking their golf game very seriously. Petie Dodrill, Dean Van Sant ’70, and Fred Thayer give an historical perspective in the Campus Center Theatre.

They’ve been to see the balloon man! All of these girls are daughters of 1996 graduates. Photo submitted by Stacie Kish Collins ’96.

Homecoming King Dominic DePompei and Queen Lacey Speck presided over the festivities.

Though the day was a brilliantly beautiful fall day, many activities took place in the Clements Center, “under the big top,” such as the very popular balloon man (right) and the zoo animals (above) such as this armadillo. Many dance teams also performed.
Tour the Canadian Rockies for the first five days of this Arctic Adventure to Calgary, Lake Louise, Banff, Kamloops and Vancouver. We’ll travel by motor coach from Calgary International Airport to Banff to see views of Bow Falls, Surprise Corner, the Hoodoos, and Sulphur Mountain. We will depart Banff by train car to Kamloops, the gateway to British Columbia’s interior, seeing Yoho National Park and Glacier National Park. Heading to Vancouver we will travel along the Thompson River to Fraser Canyon. After a day in Vancouver, our luxurious cruise will depart for eight days to get a close-up look at our gorgeous 49th state. See massive glaciers, eagles, wildlife and marine animals. Even if you’ve cruised Alaska in the past, this itinerary includes visiting the new, exciting Icy Strait Point. You’ll also cruise the Inside Passage, Hubbard Glacier, and visit Skagway and Juneau. Optional activities include flying in a helicopter to a glacier, riding a train over White Horse Pass in Skagway, salmon fishing, visiting a totem pole park, and much more.

Price has yet to be set by the cruise company along with the exact travel dates. There will be a three to five month window to sign-up in early spring ’07. A deposit to secure your place on the tour and cruise or cruise only is $250 per person which is fully refundable until 71 days prior to departure.
